Democracy Victorious

Judge Crothers Elected Governor by a Plurality of 9,369.

DR. HERING, ISAAC LOBE STRAUS AND C. C. MAGRUDER ELECTED BY LARGE MAJORITIES.

Every County on the Eastern Shore Goes Democratic Except Dorchester.

DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE MORE THAN A THREE-FIFTHS MAJORITY IN NEW LEGISLATURE.

Judges Adkins and Hopper Win by Handsome Majorities.

Smith Carries Senatorial Primaries and Will be Next United States Senator.

GOOD OLD KENT ELECTS EVERY DEMOCRAT ON THE TICKET BY SAFE MAJORITIES.

Results in Other States.

The Democratic party of the State acheived a notable victory on Tuesday when Judge Austin L. Crothers was elected Governor by a handsome majority, and the other state officers received even a larger vote. Every county on the Eastern shore except Dorchester goes Democratic by comfortable majorities, and the next legislature will have more than a three-fifths democratic majority so that the Democrats may be in a position to pass an amendment to the constitution, to be submitted to the people at the election two years hence. The victory in Kent county was a splendid achievement of the party, and convinces those who study the signs of the times that the people of the county and state are opposed to intrusting the destines of the state to the Republican party. The victory on Tuesday is the best evidence of the fact that Maryland is a Democratic State, and so long as the party managers conduct the affairs of the state in the interest of pure politics and sound business principles, so long will the people vote to retain them in power.

The result of the Senatorial primary in the county as well as throughout the state is a victory for former Gov. John Walter Smith. He carried Kent county by 417 majority, the vote being Smith 1136, Warfield 719, and Whyte 1350. The following is the official vote of the county both in the election and senatorial primaries.

GOV. CROTHERS' IMPRESSIVE TALK.

On the day of my notification that I had been nominated I was taken ill with what proved to be quite a severe attack of typhoid fever. From that day to the present I have not been out of my room, and have been able to sit up for only a short time. I am now in the convalescent stages, with the full confidence of a complete recovery, and I thank Almighty God for His goodness in restoring me to health. My sickness prevented what I had looked forward to with genuine pleasure—the satisfaction of meeting my fellow-citizens throughout the State.

"Of course I am greatly pleased at the result of the election. I take no delight in the triumph over my opponent, whom I have known for several years and whom I greatly esteem. I am pleased because the victory is a victory based on good sound Democratic principles. Our party must demonstrate by its conduct that we all recognize that our success is due to the fact that the people believed that if successful we would by every means in our power give to them a continuance of that good government which they have heretofore enjoyed under Democratic rule.

"For my own part I think it more than likely that my political career will terminate with the end of my term as Governor, if I should be spared to live so long. I have not the means to support a political life, and I shall enter the gubernatorial office with a firm and conscientious determination to do my duty toward the whole people in the State as fully as any man who ever held the office.

"The campaign is over, and any differences or political bitterness that have been engendered, if any, should be forgotten, and we should all join hands for the purpose of accomplishing the greatest good for the old State we all love so well.

"The party and the party leaders made a great fight in this campaign, by those who so ably and eloquently espoused the cause of Democracy upon the hustings. The work in this regard of Senators Whyte and Rayner, Governor Warfield, State Senator Gorman and others has put the party under great obligations to them, and as for myself I take this opportunity to express to them my deepest thanks for the invaluable services rendered by them to myself and the other candidates. They were united and enthusiastic."

GOV. WARFIELD SATISFIED.

"As far as the result of the primary election is concerned," remarked Governor Warfield, "I haven't much to say further than that my opponent won. I did the best that I could, and in all the campaigning that I did my appeals were made to the people direct. If in getting over the state and addressing the voters aided in the election of the Democratic ticket, then I have good reason to feel perfectly satisfied.

"And now as it is all over, I wish to thank my fellow Democrats who supported me for United States Senator. These men did so out of their love for honest politics, and not of any hope for future reward. I had none to offer them, and this on its face makes me feel their loyalty all the more. Even though defeated, I consider that both myself and my friends have gained a victory for clean politics, and again I say that I am satisfied."

"But what about the investigation of the alleged frauds discovered in many precincts? the governor was asked."

"Regarding any supposed frauds," he replied, "I have no comment to make upon them. I know of no frauds, in fact I have not gone into the matter thoroughly and do not care to make any statement whatsoever about such charges."

CAN PASS AMENDMENT.

According to the returns of Tuesday's election the call for a new constitutional convention was defeated by a majority so overwhelming that it is scarcely necessary to give the figures.

While defeating the call for a constitutional convention the Democrats and those Republicans who voted with the Democrats elected a three-fifths Democratic majority of the House of Delegates and added enough senators to Democratic holdovers to constitute a three-fifths Democratic majority in the next Senate.

These majorities in the two houses mean that the Democrats have the power, under the Constitution, to pass a disfranchising amendment, to be sumitted to the people two years hence, and as they are committed to such a proposition by their last state platform, there is no doubt that they will proceed to pass an amendment for submission to voters two years hence.

OTHER RESULTS.

In Queen Annes the entire regular Democratic ticket is elected by from 125 to 300 majority.
