THE MEETING PLACE.

Is. XXXV. 10.

Where the field flowers shall freshen—
Freshen never more to fade:
Where the shadel sky shall brighten—
Brighten never more to set:
Where the sun blaze never scorches;
Where the air leaves tense is still;
Where no tempest stirs the echoes
Of the wood, or wave or hill:
Where the morn shall wake in gladness,
And the noon the joy prolong;
Where the daylight dies in fragrance,
'Mid the bursts of holy song:
Brother, we shall meet and rest,
'Mid the holy and the blest!

Where the shadow shall be filler,
Where life's care parade is o'er,
Where the sleep of sin is broken,
And the dream-dreams are no more;
Where the bond is never severed;
Partings, claspings, sob and moan;
Midnight waking, twilight weeping,
Heavy noon-tide—all are done.
Where the child has found his mother,
Where the mother finds the child,
Where dear families are gathered,
That were scattered on the wild:
Brother, we shall meet and rest,
'Mid the holy and the blest!

Where the hidden wound is healed,
Where the blighted life reblooms,
Where the smitten heart the freshness
Of its early youth resumes;
Where the love that here was lavished
On the withering leaves of time,
In an ever spring-bright clime,
Where we find the joy of loving,
As we never loved before—
Loved unchanged, and worshipped purely,
Free from sin that mars it here:
Brother, we shall meet and rest,
'Mid the holy and the blest!

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Good Story.

Between eighty and ninety years ago there lived in Connecticut valley two farmers, one of whom was named Hunt and the other Clark. The former in early life had been a man of strong will and somewhat hasty and violent temper. Sometimes he had been seen beating his oxen over their heads with the handle of his whip, in a way to excite the pity of the by-standers, and when expostulated with excused himself by saying that he had the most fractious team in town. By and by an alteration took place in the temper of farmer Hunt. He became mild and forbearing, at equal pace with himself.

In the course of a few years the two farmers were chosen deacons of the church, and they both adorned their profession. About the time of their election, a grievous famine prevailed in the valley, and the farmers generally were employed in laying up their corn to plant the ensuing season. A poor man living in town, went to Deacon Hunt and said: "I have come to buy a bushel of corn. Here is the money; it is all I can gather." The deacon told him he could not spare a bushel for love or money. He was keeping double the usual quantity for seed corn the next year, and had to stint his own family. The man urged his suit in vain. At last the man said, "Deacon, if you do not let me have the corn, I shall curse you." "Curse me?" replied the deacon. "How dare you do so?" "Because," said the man, "the Bible says so." "Nonsense," exclaimed the deacon; "there is no such thing in the Bible." "Yes, there is," replied the poor man. "Well," said the deacon, "if you can find such a text, I'll give you a bushel of corn."

They went to the house, when the poor man went to the old family Bible, turned to Proverbs 11:26, and read: "He that withholdeth the corn, the people shall curse him; but blessings shall be upon the head that selleth."

The deacon was fairly caught. "Come along, I will be as good as my word." He took him to the corn house, measured out a bushel of corn and heaped the man to put it on his shoulder, and just before his departure, being somewhat of a wag, he said with a twinkle of the eye, "I say, neighbor, after you have carried this corn home, go to Deacon Clark and curse him out of a bushel."

Narrow Escape of a Rebel General.

The Cairo correspondent of the St. Louis Republican has been visiting the Rebel camp at Columbus under a flag of truce. He relates the following story told by the Rebel General Cheatham, of the manner in which he escaped capture at the battle of Belmont, Mo.:

Just as the opposing armies were approaching one another, Gen. Cheatham discovered a squadron of cavalry coming down a road near his position. Uncertain as to which force it belonged, accompanied only by an orderly, he rode up to within a few yards of it and inquired:

"What cavalry is that?"

"Illinois Cavalry, sir," was the reply.

"Oh! Illinois Cavalry. All right; just stand where you are!"

The cavalry obeyed the Rebel order, and unmolested by them, who supposed he was one of the Federal officers, the General rode safely back, directly over the guns of another Federal regiment, which had by that time come up, but who, seeing him coming from the direction of the cavalry, also supposed that he was one of them. Some of our officers remembered the incident and agreed with the hero of it, that if they had known who he was, it was very probable that there would have been one Rebel General less that night.

The Confiscation Bill.

The following is the confiscation bill introduced into the House of Representatives by Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, and which has since passed:—

Be it enacted, That if any person or persons within any State or Territory of the United States, after the taking effect of this act, shall engage in armed rebellion against the government of the United States, or shall aid or abet such rebellion, all the property, moneys, stocks, credits and effects of such person or persons are hereby declared forfeited to the government of the United States, and the same are hereby declared lawful subjects of prize and capture wherever found, and the President of the United States shall cause the same to be seized, confiscated and condemned.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That such prizes and capture shall be condemned in the District or Circuit Court of the United States having jurisdiction of the amount, or in admiralty in any district in which the same may be seized, or into which the same may be taken and proceedings first instituted.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the Attorney General, or any district attorney of the United States in which said property or effects may at the time be, may institute the proceedings of condemnation, and in such cases they shall be wholly for the benefit of the United States; or any person may file an information with such attorney, in which case the proceedings shall be for the use of such informer and the United States in equal parts.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That every person who shall engage in, or aid or abet such rebellion as aforesaid, shall forfeit all claim which such person may have to the service or labor of any slave or slaves, and the slave or slaves of such person shall be and are hereby declared freemen, and forever relieved from such servitude, anything in the laws of the United States or any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That no person shall be arrested or surrendered as a fugitive slave upon the order of any person in the military or naval service of the United States.

Real Politeness.

A Jewish traveller on his way to Jericho, was overtaken by a gang of highwaymen, who sprang upon him and stripped him of his raiment, wounded him, and left him half dead. Presently a certain priest came that way "by chance." He looks like a gentleman; but from some urgency in his errand, or for a more probable indifference of feeling, he passes by, and leaves the wretched sufferer to groan on unrelieved.—Another traveller comes in sight. He is a Levite. He comes up to the spot where the blood is trickling out upon the crimsoned grass. "Is that Levite a gentleman? No! he is not even a man—he is looking in the ordinary feelings of humanity. For without a single word of condolence, that we read of, the heartless hypocrite hurried on his way. But at length that good Samaritan, whose name has become a blessed synonym for beneficence to this day, comes up. That the Samaritan possessed the real substratum of politeness, a kind heart, we know very well. But he had more. He might have hired some one to go back and fetch the wounded man to the inn, and yet not have been lacking in kind feeling. But the man so hired might have treated the unhappy sufferer rudely and roughly, and so he did not find it. He went in to his wounds. He gently lifts the poor Jew upon his own beast, and perhaps walks beside him all the way, and on the morrow when he leaves the inn, he does not put the money to pay his bill into the wounded man's own hand. That might have touched the sufferer's pride; it was enough to be wounded in his body without having his feelings wounded too, so the Samaritan very delicately pays the two shillings to the host, and says: "Whatsoever thou spendest more when I come again I will repay thee." Now here was genuine courtesy. Here was a true gentleman. There was kindness of heart, and also kindness of manner. These two things make up real politeness.

Money—How to Keep it.

The way to keep money is to earn it fairly and honestly. Money so obtained is pretty certain to abide with its possessor. But money that is inherited, or that in any way comes without a fair and just equivalent, is almost as certain to go as it came. The young man who begins by saving a few shillings, and thriftily increases his store—every coin being a representative of good, solid work, honestly and manfully done—stands a better chance to spend the last half of his life in affluence and comfort than he who, in his haste to become rich, obtains money by dashing speculations or the devious means which abound in the gossy region lying between fair dealing and actual fraud. Among the wise and thrifty men of wealth, the current proverb is, "money goes as it comes." Let the young make a note of this and see that their money comes fairly, that it may long abide with them.

☞A Son of the "Emerald Isle," coming across a huge rattlesnake, the following soliloquy took place:

"Och, be jabers! an is it there yez are, ye divilish traitor? And ye're in favor of Jeff Davis and secession! ye're from the South, ye spalpeen; ye're a spy and a blackguard ye traitor; and we're in favor of the flag with our own beautiful image entwined around the staff. But I'll be after showing yez, which end of the glorious stars and stripes predominates in this neck of timber!"

And suiting the action to the word, he brought down a sprig of shillalee on the head of the rattler, with such force that he no longer remained an advocate of Southern rebellion.

Fascination of the Snake.

The following rather incredible story is authenticated by Samuel Beach, a naturalist, of two boys in New Jersey, who being in the woods looking for cattle, lighted by chance on a large black snake; upon which one of them, an inquisitive imp, immediately resolved to ascertain by experiment whether the snake, so celebrated for its powers would charm or fascinate him. He requested his companion to take up a stick and keep a good eye on the snake to prevent evil consequences, while he made a trial of his powers.

This, says Mr. Beach, the other agreed to, when the first advanced a few steps near the snake and made a stand, looking steadily on him: When the snake observed him in that situation, he raised his head with a quick motion and the lad says at that instant there appeared something to flash in his eyes, which he could compare to nothing more similar than the rays of light thrown from a glass or mirror, when turned in the sunshine. He said it dazzled its eyes, at the same time the colors appeared very beautiful, and were in large rings, circles, or rolls, and it seemed to be dark to him everywhere else, and his head began to grow dizzy, much like being over sea's running water. He then says he thought he would go from the snake; and as it was dark everywhere but in the circles, he was fearful of treading anywhere else, and as they still grew less in circumference, he could not see where to step, but as the dizziness in his head still increased, he tried to call his comrade for help, but could not speak, it then appeared to him as though he was in a vortex or whirlpool; and that every turn brought him nearer the centre.

His comrade, who had impatiently waited, observed him move forward to the right and left, and at every turn approached nearer the snake; making a strange groaning noise, not unlike a person in a fit. The nightmare, he could stand it no longer, but immediately ran and killed the snake, which was of the largest size. He that had been charmed was much terrified, and in a tremor, his shirt was in a few moments wet with a sweat, he complained much of a dizziness in the head, attended with pain, and appeared in a melancholy, stupid situation for some days.

Making Mischief.

The following, which we clip from an exchange, should be read by all, as it is appropriate to all localities:

"When I was eleven years old, my mother moved to the country. Our nearest neighbor was a minister by the name of Wayland, who in addition to his minister's duties, owned a large farm. One night my attention was attracted to a bright light in one of the upper rooms of our neighbor's house. In a moment I saw the wife fly past the uncurtained window, closely followed by the husband who was armed with a huge fire shovel—round she went, still pursued; and, as I listened breathlessly, I thought I heard a scream.

I hastened to my mother and told her what I had seen, and we both looked out, but the scene had gone, and all was quiet. Notwithstanding my mother's judicious warning, to say nothing about it to any one." Before school was out the next day I confided it to my bosom friend, and in a week half the village knew it and a great talk it made, I assure you.

Finally it reached the ears of the deacon, who proceeded at once to investigate the truth. My mother looked grave and troubled when they called me, but conscious of having told the truth I met them fearlessly and related what I had seen. Then they left, leaving in a "tee-hee" for the minister's to call him to account. With many apologies they made known their errand, when to their surprise, the minister broke out into a hearty laugh.

"Wait a moment," said he, "till I call Polly. You see, that night I found a big rat in the meal chest, and come down for a shovel, and bade her hold the light, while I killed him. Finding no other place that he could hide, the rascal took refuge in the folds of her dress, and she ran screaming till I managed to dislodge and kill him."

I have ever since been careful not to repeat an unfavorable report about my neighbors, at least until I know the whole report.

A Beautiful Idea.

In the mountains of Tyrol it is the custom of the women and children to come out when it is bedtime and sing their national songs until they hear their husbands, fathers and brothers answer them from the hills on their return home. On the shores of the Adriatic such a custom prevails. There the wives of the fishermen come down and sing a melody. After singing the first stanzas they listen awhile for an answering melody from off the water; and so sing and listen till the well-known voice comes borne on the waters, telling that the loved one is almost home. How sweet to the weary fisherman, as the shadows gather around him, must be the song of the loved ones at home, that sing to cheer him; and how they must strengthen and lighten the links that bind together these humble dwellers by the sea!—Truly it is among the lowly in this life that we find some of the most beautiful customs in practice.

A Good Hit.

A volunteer and some citizens were talking about the war at Elmira, a few days since, when a difference having arisen, some person proposed to settle it by taking a drink.

"No no," said the volunteer, "that is not the way to talk. You and all other men who can possibly leave home, should at once agree to enlist. This war must be fought out and settled with all possible dispatch. Drinking won't settle it; for if it would, our officers would have settled it long ago.

Irish Wit always Ready.

It is known that the surrender of Lexington was rendered a necessity by the want of ammunition, as well as by the want of water. A few of the companies had but one or two rounds left, but the majority had fired their last bullet. After the surrender an officer was detailed by Price to collect the ammunition and place it in safe charge. The officer, addressing Adjutant Cosgrove of the Brigade, asked him to have the ammunition surrendered. Cosgrove called up a dozen men, one after the other, and exhibiting the empty cartridge boxes, said to the astonished rebel officer, "I believe sir, we gave you all the ammunition we had before we stopped fighting. Had there been any more, upon my word, you should have had it, sir. But I will inquire, and if by accident there is a cartridge left, I will let you know."

The Rebel officer turned away, reflecting upon the glorious victory of having captured men who had fired their last shot.

An Irishman from Battle Creek Michigan, was at Bull Run battle, and was somewhat startled when the head of his companion on the left hand was knocked off by a cannon ball. A few moments after, however, a spent ball broke the fingers of his comrade on the other side. The latter threw down his gun and yelled with pain, when the Irishman rushed to him exclaiming:

"Blast yer soul, you owld woman, stop yer cryin'; you make more noise about it than the man that lost his head

Secessia Jokes.

The New Orleans Delta jokes pleasantly enough of the hard times, and seems disposed to put the best face on bad matters. In a late number it says: The old table of school days, "ten units make one ten, ten cents one dime, ten dimes one dollar," is played out. A dime or a dollar, in hard specie, is a sight good for diseased optics, and a five minutes' survey of ten dollars in specie would cure the most hopeless case of Asiatic cholera. But we have a new table of currency, and is published here free of charge, for the benefit of those who choose to cut it out and post it up for reference:

10 omnibus tickets make a half dollar.
5 Schenk's beer tickets make a drunk—if invested in lager.
10 Krost's beer tickets make one city shinplaster.
1 handful of shinplasters (with the pictures worn off) make a man cuss.
10 half dollars make a fool of a poor man.
40 beer tickets, 10 omnibus tickets, one handful of shinplasters and nary half dollar make an honest man steal. If they don't we should like to know what will.

Rich Without Money.

Many a man is rich without money. Thousands of men without nothing in the pocket and thousands without even a pocket are rich. A man born with a good sound constitution, a good stomach a good heart and good limbs, and a pretty good head piece, is rich. Good bones are better than gold—tough muscles than silver, and nerves that flash fire and carry energy to every function, are better than houses and land.

It is better than a loaded estate to have the right kind of father and mother. Good breeds exist among men as really do among herd and horses. Education may do much to check evil tendencies, or to develop good ones; but it is a great thing to inherit the right proportion of faculties to start with.

That man is rich who has a good disposition—who is naturally kind, patient, cheerful, hopeful, and who has a flavor of wit and fun in his composition. The hardest thing to go along with in this life is a man's own self. A cross, selfish fellow, desponding and complaining fellow—a timid care-burdened man—these have all been deformed on the inside. Their feet may not limp but their thoughts do.

☞At G——, some years ago, a game of poker was being played. Jim C——was in it, and during the game contrived to steal the four aces and lay them on his knee to be played at the proper time. The player who set next to him saw the move, and slipping the aces from their hiding place, put four other cards in their stead. Jim's turn came to deal; he called on all hands to go in blind. "I'll go in over all of you."—When all were in deep enough to suit him, he reached for his aces and brought up something else. Throwing his cards on the table, in a tone of indignation, he exclaimed:—"By jingo, gentlemen, I don't play in this game. There's cheating going on!"

Testimonial to Gov. Hicks.

On Tuesday last a committee from the Third Maryland Reg'ment waited on Governor Hicks, and presented to him, on behalf of the officers of the Regiment, a handsome service of silver, consisting of a salver, pitcher and goblet, a plate up in a very elaborate style, and bearing an appropriate inscription.

The presentation was made in a highly complimentary manner by the Rev. Mr. Kraney, Chaplain to the Regiment: and the Governor accepted the handsome testimonial in a brief and feeling speech.

Heavy Ordnance Ordered.

On Tuesday an order went from the Ordnance Department to the three largest cannon founderies in the country—the Fort Pitt in Pittsburg, the West Point and Alger's in Boston—to manufacture to their utmost capacity 10-inch columbiads for the next twelve months. Their present make would in that time yield eighteen hundred guns. Contracts for immense quantities of small ordnance, arms, and shot and shell, have been made this week. There is no sleeping in the War Department over our dangers, foreign or domestic.

YOUNG MEN

Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or wielded to resdress the living lyre, may call upon me with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.

Married Persons, or Young Men, contemplating marriage, being aware of Physical weakness, or Local debility, &c., should consult immediately and be cured.

He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a Physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS

Immediately Cured and Full Vigor Restored. This Dreadful Disease—which renders Life miserable and Marriage impossible—is frequently paid by the victims of improper indulgence. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue—Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those leading this pernicious habit than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasure of offspring, &c., one of the most serious and destructive symptoms is both body and mind arise. The system becomes Deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Dyspepsy, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, a Wasting of the Frame, Cough, Consumption, &c.

A CURE WARRANTED IN TWO DAYS.
Not Mercury or Noxious Drugs

DR. JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London. Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has had occasion of the most astonishing cases that ever were known; many troubled with purging in the bowels, cases when asleep great nervousness as being alarmed at sudden sounds, startlishness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with a derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE!

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgences and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dizziness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption.

MERCURY. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self-Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of consumption.

DR. JOHNSTON'S INVIGORATING REMEDY FOR ORGANIC WEAKNESS.

By this great and important remedy, Weakness of the Organs is speedily cured, and full vigor restored.

Thousands of the most nervous and debilitated, who had lost all hope, have been immediately relieved. All impediments to Marriage, Physical or Mental Disqualification, Nervous Irritability, Trembling, Weakness or Exhaustion of the most fearful kind, speedily cured by Dr. Johnston.

YOUNG MEN

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when the system is in full vigor, and renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons should, before contemplating reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisition to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospect hourly darkens, to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted, with our own

DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame, or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability can alone befriend him. He falls into the hands of ignorant and designing pretenders, who, incapable of curing, filch his pecuniary resources, keep him trifling month after month, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and in despair leave him with ruined health to wish over his galling disappointment, and by the use of that deadly poison, Mercury, hasten the constitutional system of this horrible disease, such as affection of the Throat, Nose, Skin, etc., progressing with frightful rapidity till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering by sending him to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns.

TO STRANGERS.

There are so many unlearned and worthless Pretenders Advertising themselves as Physicians, trifling with and ruining the Health of the already afflicted, that Dr. JOHNSTON deems it necessary to say to those unacquainted with his reputation that his Credentials or Diploma always hang in his Office.

The Remedies and Treatment of Dr. JOHNSTON are unknown to all others, prepared from a life spent in the great Hospitals of Europe, the first in this Country, and a more extensive private practice than any other Physician in the world.

ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS.

The many thousands cured at this institution within the last eighteen years, and the numerous important Surgical Operations performed by Dr. Johnston, witnessed by the reporters of the "Sun" and many other papers, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

Skin Diseases Speedily Cured.

Persons writing should send that portion of the Advertisement which describes Symptoms; also, be particular to enclose a Postage Stamp to be used on the reply and direct in the following manner: Dr. J. M. JOHNSTON, of the Baltimore Lock Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland.

WASHINGTON, August 24, 1861.

Dr. H. T. Markley—Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in giving you a certificate as to the efficacy and virtue of Dr. Markley's Balsam and Cathartic Pills. I had been suffering for more than nine years with severe nervous headache, dyspepsia and after trying everything that I could think of without receiving any benefit, I almost despaired of being cured but by chance I heard of your medicine in Prince George county, Ohio, in May, 1861. I obtained three bottles Balsam and three boxes Pills, and after taking one bottle of Balsam and two boxes of Pills, I can with truth say that I was entirely cured and feel as well as I ever did in my life, and have not had a symptom of a return of the dreadful disease for some days since. I feel it my duty to give this certificate for publication, that others like myself, may be induced to try those valuable medicines and be cured also.

Yours respectfully, ADAM GILBERT,
Of Washington, D. C.

Dr. Markley—Dear Sir:—Some ten years ago I purchased of you a bottle of medicine as a remedy for my complaint, which was pronounced incipient consumption by Physicians who had employed me. After consulting with your letter, I concluded to try it, and found it to be the very medicine I needed to restore me to health, and I return it to you with my thanks for the benefit I have received from it. Please send me a large supply of your medicines from you old hand. I have said more than I intended when I sat down to write, but my heart was full. Respectfully yours,

The Great Remedy for the cure of WEAK STOMACH, GENERAL DEBILITY, and for PURIFYING and ENRICHING the BLOOD, are absolutely unsurpassed by any other remedy in earth. Take warned of this, it is only necessary to make the trial. The Wine itself is of a very superior quality, being about third stronger than other wines; warming and invigorating the whole system from the head to the feet. As these Bitters are quick and alterative in their character, and by their strength and invigorate the vital system and give a lasting and healing action to all its parts, by equaling the circulation, removing obstructions, and producing a general warmth. They are also excellent for Dyspepsia and Weakness, peculiar to FEMALES, where a Tonic is required to strengthen and brace the system. No Lady, who is subject to Hysteria and Faintness, should be without them as they are revivifying in their action.

THESE BITTERS

Will not only Cure, but Prevent Disease, and in this respect are greatly valuable in the purpose to many of them. Even

INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION,

Weak Lungs, Contraction, Dyspepsy, Diseases of the Nervous System, Parasites, Piles and Liver Affections requiring a Tonic

Dr. Dods' Celebrated Wine Bitters

Are Unsurpassed,

For Sore Throats so common among the Clergy, they are truly valuable.

For the aged and infirm and for persons of a weak constitution—for Ministers of the Gospel, Lawyers, and all public speakers—Seamstresses, Factory Keepers, Tailors, Seamen, Students, Artists, and all persons leading a sedentary life, they will prove truly beneficial.

As a Beverage, they are a wholesome, innocent, and delicious to the taste. They produce all the exhilarating effects of Brandy or Wine, without its deleterious and are a valuable remedy for persons addicted to the use of excessive strong drink and who WANT to refrain from it. They are pure and entirely free from the poisonous and destructive qualities contained in the adulterated Wines and Liquors with which the country is flooded.

These Bitters not only CURE, but PREVENT Disease, and should be used by all who live in a country where the water is bad, or where Chills and Fevers are prevalent. Being entirely innocent and harmless, they may be given freely to Children and Infants with impunity.

Physicians, Clergymen, and temperance advocates, as an act of humanity, should endeavor to introduce these truly valuable BITTERS over the land, and thereby essential to establishing Temperance and Disease.

In all Affections of the Head, Sick Headache, or Nervous Headache, Dr. Dods' Imperial Wine Bitters will be found to be most Salutary and Efficacious.

FEMALES,

The many certificates which have been received by us, and the letters which we are daily receiving, are come to the proof that among the women these Bitters have given satisfaction which no other preparation ever has done. No woman in the land should be without them and those who once use them, will not fail to keep a supply.

DR. J. BOVEE DODS'
Imperial Wine Bitters

Are prepared by an eminent and skilful physician who has used them successfully in his private practice for the last twenty-five years. The proprietor, before purchasing the exclusive right to manufacture and sell Dr. J. Bovee Dods' Celebrated Imperial Wine Bitters, had them tested by two of the most eminent medical practitioners who pronounced them a valuable remedy for disease.

Although the medical men of the country, as a general thing disapprove of Patent Medicines, yet we do not believe that a respectable Physician can be found in the United States, acquainted with their medical properties, without highly approving DR. J. BOVEE DODS' IMPERIAL WINE BITTERS.

In all newly settled places, where there is always a large quantity of decaying timber from which a poisonous miasma is created, these Bitters should be used every morning before breakfast.

DR. J. BOVEE DODS'
Imperial Wine Bitters

Are composed of a pure and unadulterated Wine, combined with Barberry, Solomon's Seal, Gentiney, Wild Cherry, Tree Bark, Spikenard, Chamomile Flowers, and Gentian. They are manufactured by Dr. Dods himself, who has an experienced and successful Physician, and hence should not be classed with the quack nostrums which flood the country, and against which the Medical Profession are justly prejudiced.

These Imperial Wine Bitters have been so thoroughly tested by all classes of the community for almost every variety of disease incident to the human system, that they are now deemed indispensable as a Tonic Medicine and a Beverage.

WILCOX & GIBBS
SEWING MACHINES.
PRICE WITH HEMMER AND FELLER,
$35.00.
THIS MACHINE HAS POINTS OF SUPERIORITY PECULIAR TO ITS OWN
Stitching, Hemming, and Felling with a Single Thread.

It forms a flat, even, and elastic seam, which is WARRANTED not to rip in WEAR, even if the seam is CUT at frequent intervals, and is under all circumstances "GOOD AS A NEW WASH-TUB."

A Patented device of great utility in fastening, prevents the possibility of the machine being set in the wrong direction, and has also been brought to a very high degree of perfection.

Another feature which deserves particular notice is the WILCOX PATENT NOISELESS FEED MOTION.

Two thousand Stitches or two yards of work, can be done in one minute without dropping a stitch.

These Machines so simple and accurate in their construction, supercede the use of the shuttle; and with one thread produce equally practical results of the two thread machines, and more; for these LOCK-STITCH machines are the first ones in the field ever using a single thread.

Although at about half the price of the other first class machines, they will, a common thing, double the sewing in a given time.

"It is unquestionably the good, new, and Family Sewing Machine that the public have long been waiting for."—Boston Traveller.

"It is indeed a wonderful production and for family use especially, no other machine can approach it."—Philadelphia Evening Journal.

"A mechanical wonder."—Scientific American.

"Among the best and most agreeable sewing machines. Light and elegantly finished, and so simple in its construction, that it never should require other
