Boat Accidents

The power-boat "Kent," owned by Mr. Cyrus G. Howard, which has been doing a freighting business on the Chester river and Chesapeake Bay for a number of years, was badly damaged by fire on Friday on the Delaware River. Also 300 of a cargo of 3000 baskets of tomatoes were destroyed.

The boat was leaking slightly and some one went into her "hold" to stop the same. In looking for the leak, he lit a match, which ignited considerable gas.

The fire was extinguished before it gained such headway that the boat was unable to float, but some damage was done to both boat and cargo. The damage to the boat amounted to $600.

Messrs. Biggs, of Gale's Wharf, and Jack Johnson, of Chestertown, were both severely injured, while working on barges on the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal for Messrs. Rasin and Sills last Friday. Both were injured in the same manner, but at different times. While coming into a wharf, they somehow became entangled with a rope that was being made fast, and the rope cut and lacerated both men severely about the legs.

Mr. Jack Johnson was taken to Elkton Hospital for treatment, while Mr. Biggs refused to go to the hospital in Delaware City and a doctor was secured who took eleven stitches in his leg to close the wound.
