WESTMINSTER:

Rebel Arrogance.

The Rebel States increase in their arrogance with every day they are left to imagine that they have a right not only to declare their own status but dictate terms to the whole loyal States and the Government. The North Carolina Legislature has passed an act to "pardon all officers and soldiers of the State of North Carolina, or of the late Confederate States armies, or of the United States" for offences against the criminal laws of that State. Truly this is refreshingly magnanimous! She has no need for any favors from the National Government, inasmuch as she forgives not only her own crimes, but those also of the United States Who ever before heard of the criminal sitting in judgment upon his own case, and by his own ruling acquitting himself of crimes against the laws of the land? This is certainly a new rule in jurisprudence, and throws Blackstone and Coke entirely in the shade. It is moreover kind in the State of North Carolina to pass a "universal amnesty" act; for under her ruling the President and Congress might be indicted for acts committed against her sovereignty in invading her soil and subduing her soldiers.

This is in keeping with a late decision of one of the so-called Supreme Judges in Mississippi, who declared that the State did not lose her organization by the war, that she is as much of a State now as ever, and has a right to exercise all and every of her functions.

We are anxious to know what step she will next make. "My Policy" is working like a charm with Rebels, and Treason is being made fodious with a vengeance. But, thank heaven, we have a loyal Congress that knows its duty, and dares resist the arrogance of conquered Rebels. It is their duty to move smartly in the work of reconstruction, and by firm legislation teach these contumacious States their duties, where they stand and what they may expect.

Tell us, Somebody.

When gold was circulating away up, among the 275's and 290's, dealers informed us that the high prices demanded for all articles of merchandise was in consequence of the high price of gold. Reasoning from cause to effect, we accepted the argument, calculating, of course, by a similar process of ratiocination, that when gold should get dizzy, and fall, it would bring down merchandise with it. Is it not reasonable to suppose, that if the premium on gold regulates the price of produce and merchandise, when it has an upward tendency, it should regulate it when it is tending downward? Such is not the fact, however. With the premium on gold at 131, in New York to-day, many articles of merchandise are above the figures asked for them, when the premium was 290. Will some one explain? The dodge that gold regulates produce, etc., is "played out." Speculators, who would get their fingers burned, were prices to fall off with the premium on gold, are the men who are now extorting from consumers to save themselves. It is our opinion that there is no necessity for the present ruinously high prices. Will somebody give us light?

Governor Swann's Message.

His Excellency Gov. Swann availed himself of the custom to deliver to the General Assembly now in session, a message, which in point of length compares favorably with those of his predecessors. A careful reading of this document discloses the fact that he has spoken of himself one hundred and twenty-five times directly, and fully that number of times more, indirectly. The personal pronoun "I" figures prominently througbout the document, as you may infer from the number given above. Lest our readers may think we do the Governor injustice in charging him with officially blowing his own trumpet as a bid for the Senatorship, we give the closing paragraph of his Message, which is a fair index of the whole and a sufficient apology for us in not publishing it entire:

In the part allotted to me as your Executive, I shall go on, as I have done since this lamentable war ended, despite detraction and abuse, come from what source it may. Denounced as a traitor to principles which I have never recognized; to extreme men who have already brought shame and dishonor upon their State; to vindictiveness and intolerance which I despise; to that glorious Union which I have loved better than my life, I submit myself to the impartial judgment of the people of Maryland, through their chosen representatives, for the uprightness of my conduct and the purity of my intentions.

"I cannot forget that I am living in an epoch when Christian principles are the recognized rule of human conduct. If in the unswerving exercise of my official duties I have saved your State from threatened invasion by men who were ready to plunge it again into the horrors of civil war, and the not less disreputable machinations of revolutionary agitators in your midst—if I have turned back the current of a bitter and unforgiving party rancor which threatened the very existence of your political and social fabric—if I have restored to the people of my State their just rights under their constitution and laws, I may congratulate myself that my administration thus far has not been without its fruits, in maintaining the supremacy of the laws—the freedom of republican institutions, and the credit of constitutional government, upon which alone our permanency as a people must always rest."

True to their Colors.

Governor Saulsbury, in his message to the Delaware Legislature, opposes the Consitutional Amendment, approves of the selling of negroes into slavery as the best punishment for crime, and the most salutary restraint against its commission, recommends laws restricting negro immigration, and declares his purpose to enforce the laws against negroes possessing arms. This has the true ring of Democracy and rather throws Governor Swann's effort into the shade.

Impeachment of the President.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American says, there is good authority for saying that a resolution looking to the impeachment of President Johnson will be offered in the House of Representatives some time this week, by Mr. Ashley, of Ohio. The vote in favor of the impeachment has been closely canvassed, and the friends of the resolution say they have no doubt of its passage. The President has been notified of the fact, and replied that he was entirely prepared to meet the issue.

Payment of Additional Bounty.

Our Maryland "Boys in Blue" will be glad to learn that paymasters have been assigned to pay the additional Bounty of $100 to the soldiers of our State, and that they will commence the discharge of their duty at an early day. The rule has been adopted that in no case will a special payment be made out of the regular order of payment. This rule has been adopted not merely to expedite the payments to all interested, but were such special payments permitted they would operate unjustly upon the mass of claimants by postponing payments to persons equally meritorious and needy. We advise such of our Carroll County Soldiers who have not filed their claims for this Bounty to do so at once. Our young friend A. D. Schaeffer, being engaged in the prosecution of such claims, we take pleasure in recommending him to their consideration.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature of the State of Maryland assembled at Annapolis on Wednesday week, the 2d instant. Nearly all the members of both Houses being present.—Billingslea, of the Senate, and Benton of the House, from this County, being absent. Nothing was done beyond a temporary organization, when they adjourned.

On Thursday a permanent organization was effected, the standing Committees appointed, &c., in all of which a strictly partizan spirit was manifested, the Radicals receiving the cold shoulder on all sides.

On Friday the Governor's Message was transmitted and read and the very limited number of 20,000 copies ordered to be printed, 5,000 in German.

Leaves were obtained to report a number of bills looking to a general enfranchisement, and thorough revolution in the present government of the State, as well as the municipal government of Baltimore city. One Friday evening both Houses adjourned over to Monday noon.

Address of Lt. Governor Cox.

In the course of the Lieutenant Governor's address, at the opening of the Maryland Senate, he said:

If the extinction of slavery be desirable and the whole country, notwithstanding the annoyances and embarrassments incident to the change has seemed to acquiesce in its propriety—be it remembered that Maryland was the first to shake off an incubus stifling to her prosperity: and although she is unprepared now, as she will ever be, for the adoption or sanction of any measure tending to so absurd and revolting a result as the social equality of the races, much has been and will yet be accomplished towards securing to the colored man the advantages of mental and moral improvement, as well as suitable protection in his person and property.

In this connection one act of simple justice remains, without which emancipation becomes a solemn mockery, namely, the right of testifying in the courts—a right to which every man, of whatever complexion: is justly and indisputably entitled. This privilege, already conceded by a number of States south of us, ought not to be longer delayed as a legislative measure in our own humane Commonwealth.

But one of the chief glories of our State is unquestionably her system of public instruction; and it is flattering to the sagacity of our people that its foundations were being laid at the moment the armies of the sections rallied for deadly conflict upon the soil of a sister State. The collected wisdom of the past enabled its founders to mature a scheme of common school education more free from defects and possessing greater advantages than attach to other State systems. The abundant good fruits which have already crowned its progress fully attest its intrinsic value, and its peculiar adaption to the wants of our population. Mental culture is an essential condition of our liberties, the foundation stone of republican government.

We trust the Lieutenant Governor understands the import of his own utterance in all its broad significance, and will work up to that measure.

Looking after the President.

On Wednesday week, when the General Appropriation bill came up in the House of Representatives, a motion was made to strike out the appropriation for the President's "pardon clerk," which was adopted. An amendment was also offered, providing that Collectors and Assessors of Internal Revenue not appointed to fill a vacancy caused by death or resignation, should not be entitled to receive any salary or emolument of their office unless confirmed by the Senate. The amendment prevailed. "These are bitter pills, but the Doctor says they must be taken."

☞Nearly two thousand Germans now leave Europe every week for the United States, in the Bremen and Hamburg mail steamers. A company is established at Copenhagen to encourage the emigration of Danes, Swedes and Norwegians to the United States. The children of all these emigrants are taught the English language as their mother tongue.

☞Senator Roberts, of Texas, paints a horrible picture of affairs in that State.—He says that twenty-seven hundred freed men have been murdered within a year, and the persecution of the unfortunate blacks is so fearful that they are praying for a restoration of slavery as a protection against the murderous hate of the reconstructed white rebels. The President of the United States may fairly be charged as being in league with the whipped traitors who are now decimating the black inhabitants of the South. The picture is indeed too horrible to contemplate.

Thad. Stevens on Negro Equality.

We do not know whether Mr. Stevens had a glance at Senator Saulsbury's copy of Governor Swann's Message when he made his speech in the House on Thursday, but the following in reference to negro equality reads as if he had:

"What is negro equality, about which so much is said by knaves, and some of which is believed by men who are not fools? It means, as understood by honest Republicans, just this much and no more: Every man, no matter what his race or color; every earthly being who has an equal right to justice, honesty and fair play with every other man; and the law should secure him those rights. The same law which condemns or acquits an African should condemn or acquit a white man. The same law which gives a verdict in a white man's favor, should give a verdict in a black man's favor, on the same state of facts. Such is the law of God and such ought to be the law of man. This doctrine does not mean that a negro shall sit on the same seat, or eat at the same table with a white man. That is a matter of taste, which every man must decide for himself. The law has nothing to do with it. If there be any who are afraid of the rivalry of the black man in office or in business, I have only to advise them to try and beat their competitor in knowledge and business capacity; and there is no danger that his white neighbors will prefer his African rival to himself. I know there is between those who are influenced by this cry of "negro equality," and the opinion that there is still danger that the negro will be the smartest. For I never saw a contraband slave that had not more sense than such men.

There are those who admit the justice and ultimate utility of granting impartial suffrage to all men, but they think it is impolitic.

Right Step in the Right Direction.

The political machinery put in operation by Andrew Johnson in the late rebellious States, which he styles State Governments, having disappointed public expectation, and proved more rebel in spirit and in fact than their Confederate predecessors, it devolves upon Congress to establish proper Governments in those States. The system of domestic rule to which they are subject has not the semblance of legality, and has no claim to recognition by the General Government.—Loyalty to the Union in those States is regarded as treason, while hostility to it is considered as evidence of patriotism. Rebels are of the privileged class. Union men the target of persecution and oppression, therefore the work of reconstructing those States should be undertaken without further delay. The usurpations of President Johnson which are fast crushing out every sentiment of loyalty in the South should be tolerated no longer, and reconstruction should commence and go on until the present dynasty is thoroughly extirpated.

We are glad to see that something in this direction is to be done. The House of Representatives, before adjourning, adopted, by an overwhelming vote, a resolution ordering the Committee on Territories to report bills establishing Territorial Governments in the recent insurrectionary States. This is a right step in the right direction. We endorse the declaration of Mr. Johnson, made a year ago, that if there are only five thousand loyal men in a State, or a less number; but sufficient to take charge of the political machinery of the State, these five thousand or less number, are entitled to it, though all the rest should be otherwise inclined. He said he looked upon it as being fundamental that the exercise of political power should be confined to loyal men only. The resolution of the House indicates that that body also endorses the President's declaration, and that it is not only alive to duty but has the courage to perform it. Congress owes it to the country to see that every portion thereof is governed by loyal men; and it is hoped that an end will be put to the heresy that State Government can be created by Executive authority and continue to exist without legislative sanction. Let them crush out of existence the illegal governments of the rebel States, and, if the President desires to test whether he or the law-making power is entitled to rule in this country, let him try the question on the issue whether his government or those established by law, shall prevail.

Congress should take this matter into consideration at once to the end that these States may be provided with proper governments with as little delay as possible. Nothing short of this will afford any kind of guarantee of future peace and tranquility; and with such governments in operation as Congress would establish, it is probable that the rebels of the South will learn, in a few years, that the people of the North have done with trifling, have no compromises to make, and are resolved that this Government shall henceforth be controlled and administered by loyal men. When they have learned that lesson, they may be in a frame of mind to realize the force of what Andy Johnson said when he declared that "treason must be made odious."

The Southern States having defiantly and insultingly rejected the generous and liberal terms upon which Congress proposed to recognize their fraudulent State Governments, there is but one alternative left, and that is to reduce them to a territorial condition, with officers to guide the machinery who are free from the taint of treason. It is the imperative duty of Congress to go to work. They are fully advised of the wishes and feelings of their constituency; they know their views in regard to the work of reconstruction, and there can be no pretext for further waiting upon the caprices and whims of insulting and impenitent traitors.—Fred. Examiner.

☞If we may credit our Washington despatches the President is relying upon the Supreme Court to aid him in his fight with the loyal people of the Union. He believes the Court will decide the Southern States fully restored to the Union and entitled to representation in Congress, and therefore, is still urging these States to reject the Constitutional Amendment.—Whatever the Supreme Court may do in this direction, the South may be assured that it will not be received back until the guarantees demanded by Congress are fully complied with. The people will reverse any such decision, should it be given, as surely and completely as they did that in the Dred Scott case.

☞Mudd, Spangler, and the other assassination conspirators now at the Dry Tortugas, have friends at court. The people of Baltimore, that is, those who stoned Union troops as they passed through that city to defend the national capital have sent two lawyers to the President to plead the cause of Lincoln's murderers, and insist on their unconditional release. Had two damsels been employed to secure this release, there might have been some fear entertained that the murderers would be set free; and even as the case is represented, if it can be proven that the prisoners hate Congress and glorify Johnson, their pardon in sure.

☞Congress has again checkmated the President by passing the District Seffrage Bill over his veto.

SPECIAL COURT.—PETER W. CRAIN, Special Judge, has directed the Special Court to be held here on the 15th inst., to be adjourned until the regular May Term. Jurors, Suitors and Witnesses heretofore notified to attend on the 15th are requested not to do so.

Temperance Meeting.—On Saturday night last the officers elect of Carroll Division No. 42, Sons of Temperance, were publicly installed, and notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the large hall was well filled. Several short addresses were delivered, and the meeting was a most pleasant, and we trust profitable one.

Dedication.—The New Ev. Lutheran Church in Reisterstown, Baltimore County, will be dedicated (D. V.) on Sabbath the 20th of JANUARY, 1867. Dr. J. G. Morris and the Rev. Mr. Brandau, of Baltimore City and the Rev. Mr. Heilig of Lutherville, will officiate on the occasion.

Neighboring Clergymen and the friends of the Redeemer are respectfully invited to attend. J. MARTIN, Pastor.

Progress of the Good Work.—We are happy to state that the effort of the Ladies to get up a Fair in aid of the new Lutheran Church, is meeting with the most encouraging success. At the meeting on Friday night last the soliciting committees reported the snug little sum of eighty-five dollars in cash, in addition to that previously reported, besides numbers of both useful and fancy articles. We also learn that in different parts of the County numbers of ladies are busy in preparing articles and soliciting donations for the Fair. This is highly praiseworthy, and shows a repudiation of both sectional and secular prejudices in a joint effort to accomplish a great public good. As proof of this it is our pleasure to acknowledge, on behalf of the ladies, the receipt of a large package of dry goods from Mr. Henry M. Nixdorff, an enterprising merchant of Frederick city, through Mr. Jacob Elgin. These goods came very opportunely, and elicited the hearty thanks of every lady present, and suggested to us the idea that some of our own merchants might readily dispose (in the same way) of a portion of the remnants that accumulate upon their shelves, to be worked up and thus serve a good purpose.

The next regular meeting will be held at Carroll Hall, on Saturday afternoon the 19th inst, at 2 o'clock, when we hope to see a full attendance.

☞Governor Chamberlaine, in his message to the Legislature of Maine, advocates the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment as a step in the right direction, but says he will not regret if the late rebellious States should reject it, as the question of reconstruction will then become an open one, and the next proposition submitted to them will not be less regardful of the rights of humanity.

☞A Washington despatch to the Cincinnati Gazette, says: "An attempt has been made by certain parties to induce Louis Weichman to refrain from testifying against Surratt. Strenuous efforts are expected to prevent either the witness or the one who exposed Surratt in Europe, from telling all they know in this matter. Enough, however, has already transpired to warrant the belief that, if these men can be induced to testify freely, the whole mystery of the assassination will be unfolded.
