LOCAL MATTERS

Local Construction Company.—A number of progressive citizens of Kent county are considering the forming of a construction company with headquarters in Chestertown. This company, if formed, will fill a lang felt want in this section, and will add much to the business life of Chestertown and Kent county.

Oysters High And Scarce.—Oysters are, of course, scarce in Kent these days. With the Chester ice locked for over two months and the bay frozen far out from land, is it any wonder? Oysters brought $1.70 per bushel last week, while opened oysters are quoted at $2.25 per gallon.

Red Cross Note.—Thomas DeCoursey Ruth, Esq., of Baltimore, has been appointed manager of the Potomac Division of the American Red Cross. The Potomac Division embraces Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. Mr. Ruth was a former Kent county boy and now enjoys a large law practice in Baltimore City. He was a first lieutenant in the recent war.

Every Town On Shore A "Queen."—In a recent article the "Baltimore News" says of the Eastern Shore towns: "On the Eastern Shore every town is its own queen. Cambridge writes herself down as the 'Queen City of the Peninsula.' Salisbury, nothing daunted, does the same. Easton is also the 'Queen City' of the Eastern Shore. Centreville is also a 'Queen City,' we are informed, while Chestertown claims a like honor. No county is complete without one. Even Princess Anne calls herself a queen, which is going some for a princess. There are about a dozen 'queens' scattered over the Eastern Shore, from Cecil to Somerset, which is pretty fair for a democracy."

Boats Resume Traffic.—The Chester River steamboat made the Chestertown wharf on Thursday evening at about 9.30, after being tied up in the Baltimore harbor by ice for over two months. Many thought that we would have no boat here until around the first of March and when it was announced that the boat had left Baltimore there was doubt in the minds of many as to whether or not it would reach here. Some heavy ice was encountered, about the heaviest being in "Devil's Retch," nearly opposite the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith, when the boat stopped for a short period. The "Bertie Tull" followed the M. D. & V. boat. Considerable freight was brought on the Chester River boat. The Tolchester Steamboat Co. will resume its winter schedule today, Saturday.

Tilghman's Island Again.—Every year about this time Tilghman's Island is in the public eye. An exchange says sadly: "While ordinarily trade thrives briskly all the time and much ready cash flows through the trade channels of the island, now with long weeks of ice-bound shores, and no steamboat connections, it is practically isolated. The lack of transportation of any kind has sorely affected the real necessities of life, and the stores there have been compelled to rely on Easton for much of their needs." Never mind, Tilghman's, the first appearance of the fish hawk, with a few days of open water, and the note of woe will change to one of joy, as the warm south wind rushes from the Chesapeake, the fish hawk builds his nest in the old tree, and the smell of the fisherman's tar is heavy on the air.

Wedding Anniversary.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Hurlock celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Friday evening, February 6, 1920, at their home near Kennedyville. A sumptuous dinner was beautifully served at 6 o'clock. The dining room and tables were tastily decorated with strips of paper suspended from the ceiling, the colors being white, yellow and green. A large wedding cake ornamented the center of the table. Sixty persons were present and partook of the dinner, while a large number were prevented from being present on account of the roads being blocked with snow. The most of those present were relatives and friends from this immediate neighborhood. Those from other places were Miss Catherine and Master John Hessner, of Philadelphia; Miss Edith Harley, of Montgomery Co., Pa.; Mr. Baker and family and Miss Baker, of Chestertown. Many beautiful, useful and expensive presents were received, consisting of silver, cut glass and other table ware. At about ten o'clock the guests retired, wishing the happy couple many more happy and prosperous years.

—A. S. Turner & Sons have a Dodge touring car on exhibition in their show room on High street. To every one who sees the car in there it is a mystery how they will get it out, as apparently solid petitions surround the car. They will get it out, however, when the necessity arises.

—Riverside farm, one of the finest country estates in Kent county, we understand is about to change hands, and in fact it may have been sold by this time. Negotiations were well under way at the time of going to press, but no definite information could be gotten. The probable purchaser is not a resident of Kent.

—Some one said the other day that they saw a robin red breast—a "sure" harbinger of spring. Some one else said other signs indicated the approach of spring. We have not seen any signs of spring yet, but are looking longingly to the day when we can face the warm south wind and catch the faint fragrance of the arbutus on the breeze.

Aunt Ruth was a great great aunt of Mrs. Morton Dukehart, of Baltimore, formerly Miss Mabel Woodland Comegys, of this county. The letters will be continued next Sunday.

WEDDINGS

The marriage of Miss Anna May Gale, of near Galena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Gale and Mr. Clement Acton Davidson, of Chesapeake City, was solemnized on Wednesday, February 11, 1920, in Chesterville parsonage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wagner, pastor of the church at Chesterville. The bride was dressed in blue georgette crepe with bead trimmings over blue silk. Her traveling suit was brown mannish cloth with hat and shoes and gloves to match. Her sister, Miss Helen Walker Gale, was bridesmaid and Mr. Samuel Caldwell acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony they left by auto for Middletown, taking the train there for Wilmington, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They will be at home after Feb. 22 near Chesapeake City, the groom being a prosperous farmer.

Still Pond Farmers' Club Meets

The Still Pond Farmers Club met at the home of Mr. J. Leonard Price on Thursday, January 29. The president, Mr. E. A. Corey, was absent and Mr. F. A. Cornelius was made chairman of the meeting. All the good and bad points of tractors were discussed at the morning session. Tractors requiring a gas mask for the operator were not favored. The comfort and ease with which they can be operated were considered very important. No particular make could be agreed on as the best.

After we had eaten a "farmers' club" dinner, we were ready to discuss the topic selected for the day—"lime".

Mr. Derrick was the principal speaker. He urged all to have their soil tested so as to know how much lime it needed. He said that two thirds of the land in Maryland needs more or less lime. Hydrated lime acts quickly and will do good work in the soil for about three years. Ground lime or shells does not act so quickly and requires about six years to get the full benefit of it. The test blanks and why they were needed was explained. A lime map of the state is to be made for the benefit of all farmers.

Tomatoes and grass seed were selected as subjects for the next meeting, which will be held at Mrs. E. B. Pennington's Thursday, Feb. 26.

Pick-Ups

A young visiting minister, while walking along the state road near Chestertown a few days ago came up behind two colored men and overheard the following conversation:

A—"I's done bought my cow."

B—"You is?"

A—"Yes, sar, and I's named her the United States."

B—"You is? What's you named her dat for?"

A—"Case she's done gone dry."

Mr. Frank Smith, stable boss of the public road stables at Worton, intending to come to Chestertown last Wednesday evening, entered the waiting room at Worton Station early in the evening and took his seat to await the arrival of the down train. When the hour arrived for the Station Agent to go home he went out of the station house and locked the door, leaving Mr. Smith sitting in the waiting room, and did not return, as is his custom. When the train arrived Mr. Smith says he beat and kicked on the door, but on account of the noise made by the train he could not attract the attention of any of the train crew, so the train passed on leaving him locked up for the night. When the agent unlocked the station room door the next morning he was met by Mr. Smith who greeted him with lauguage unfit for print. The wise agent dropped his head in reverence to the epithets of the indignant Mr. Smith and passed on.

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of our dear little children, Annie and Albert Anderson, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 14.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left two vacant chairs
This world can never fill.

Tenderly we nursed and cared for them,
Trying in vain to restore their health,
And prayed that they might longer stay,
Which to us meant more than wealth.

The month of February again is here,
To us the saddest of all the year,
For it was on a February day
That our darlings passed away.

MR. AND MRS. OWEN ANDERSON,
Parents.

Death has robbed me of sister and brother,
Of the ones I loved so well,
Taken from this world of sorrow
Safely home with Christ to dwell.

When you miss them?
Yes, it fills my heart with pain,
But their spirits softly whisper,
Grieve not, in Heaven we'll meet again.

SISTER MARY.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear children,
'Tis sweet to breathe thy name;
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.

You are resting in peace, dear children,
One sad year has passed away,
You are gone, but not forgotten,
As I think of you each day.
