CHESTERTOWN WITNESSES

The Names Of Chestertown Persons Familiar To All

Who are the witnesses?

They are Chestertown people—

Residents of Chestertown who have had kidney backache, kidney ills, bladder ills; who have used Doan's Kidney Pills. These witnesses endorse Doan's.

One Chestertown resident who speaks is Thomas S. Clements, retired farmer, S. Mill St. He says: "I suffered from backache. Whenever I had to bend over, I suffered from extremely sharp pains in the small of my back. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my home for several years, I got some from M. A. Toulson's Drug Store. I have not been troubled since using them."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Clements had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FARM NOTES

BRIEF ITEMS THAT WILL BE OF INTEREST TO OUR KENT COUNTY AGRICULTURISTS

An Anxious Season For Kent Farmers.—The troubles and disappointments of the past year have been many for our farmers of Kent county, in common with farmers of many other sections, and they approach the coming season with some anxiety. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Record, after discussing the very serious problems raised by the exodus from the country to the cities and the growing disinclination of Americans to take up farm life, offered the suggestion that the immigration laws should be so framed as to "compel all working foreigners coming to our shores to spent the first three years in America on the farm." The legality of such legisaltion may well be questioned; but there can be little doubt that the result aimed at, the supply of a greater number of workers for the farms, could be reached, in part, at least, by the exercise of greater diligence on the part of Government officials and private organizations in directing newcomers to those parts of the country where their services would be in greatest demand and in assisting them to make a promising start in their new surroundings. A alrge number of the immigrants who have come to America in recent years, especially those from Italy and southeastern Europe, have been engaged in agricultural labor in their old homes, and are much better fitted for that than for the industrial occupations into which they are forced when they become city residents. Lacking the skill and the alertness which come naturally to those descended from generations of urgan workers, they are unable to command high wages, and are compelled to adopt a standard of living which is dangerous both to themselves and to their fortunate neighbors. Under such circumstances dissatisfaction and discontent are natural enough; and from such sources comes not a little of the prevailing unrest of the age.

*****

Whitwashing The Outbuildings.—One of the cheapest and most beneficial of all disinfectants and beautifiers on the farm is whitewash. Whitewash is the cheapest of all paints, and may be used either for exterior or interior surfaces. It can be made by slaking about ten pounds of quicklime in a pail with two gallons of water, covering the pail with cloth or burlap and allowing it to slake for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to a consistency which may be applied readily. A weatherproof whitewash for exterior surfaces may be made as follows: 1, slake 1 bushel of quicklime in 12 gallons of hot water; 2, dissolve 2 pounds of common salt and 1 pound of sulphate of zinc in 2 gallons of boiling water; pour 2 into 1, then add 2 gallons of skim milk and mix thoroughly. We have heard that this latter will make a waterproof whitewash, but we have never tried it.

A New Idea.—The live-stock farmer having only a few pure-bred animals for sale at rather infrequent intervals often has some difficulty in disposing of them, because purchasers do not know what he has to sell. The Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the state, county and local agents has inaugurated a plan which assists buyers in obtaining information regarding the location, character and number of pure-bred animals. The success of this plan is dependent on the co-operation of the breeders in a county or community with each other and with the county agent. Through the Co. agent, according to the plan, the state agent in marketing to the Bureau of Markets at Washington are kept in touch with the supply. These agencies likewise keep in touch with the buyers and so are able to serve an increasing number of buyers and sellers effectively.

The History Of Apples.—Plutarch once remarked that it was a very difficult thing to "trace and find out the truth of anything by history." He would have made the statement even stronger if he had lived in the present time and had tried to investigate the history of some of our modern apples. Even those sorts which belong to the aristocracy among fruits, the promological "four hundred," have most uncertain family trees as far as genealogy is concerned. The history of some of our best-known sorts is already lost and we know but little more of the origin of the Ben Davis than we do of the use of apples by the ancients. On the latter subject we know that apples were used by the lake dwellers in Switzerland before the time of written history. The apple of cultivation belongs to the botanical division known as pyrus malus and was unknown to the American continent before the coming of the white man. The indians used the wild crabs and certain of the haws, but these were poor substitutes for the sure-enough apples which the earliest settlers brought with them. Most of the varieties which we have in our orchards today originated in this country, but in every case they are derived from imported stock. The native crab has never been improved to any extent. The wild haws, of certain sorts, all relatives of the apple, make a beautiful jelly that has a flavor all its own. It also requires more sugar than could be spared in wartime, so we have none of this delicacy on hand at this writing. Frequently "wild apple trees" will be found in the woods and many farmers and almost all city folk believe them to be truly wild trees. As a matter of fact they are what the botanist calls escapes, meaning that they are forms which have escaped from cultivation. In the woods near my house stands an old gnarled apple tree that has every appearance of being wild. It is certainly a part of the picture. As a matter af fact it is wild in the sense that it was never planted by any man. Probably the seed was carried to the woods with the winter store of some small animal, a squirrel or a mouse, and was lost. In time it germinated and formed the tree as we now see it—a wild, worthless seedling.—County Gentleman.

—Isaiah Fountain's trial will be held in Towson, Baltimore County, early in April, it is understood.
