TO CAMP IN JULY

Announcements from the office of the Adjutant General of the State of Maryland that the summer encampment of the National Guard will take place during the last two weeks of July, have caused a pleasant stir of preparation at the Armory here. For many of the Guardsmen, this will be the first taste of camp life, because a large percentage of the personnel of the local company consists of boys new to the ways of military life.

While it is expected that the initiates look forward to the event with fresher anticipation than do the veterans the latter are keen for the opportunity of renewing their acquaintance with the obstreperous mess-kit. Not only is it a distinct pleasure to break back into the old routine of camp life, but the satisfaction of meeting the men one served with "over there" must not be overlooked. Since hundreds of service men have enlisted in the National Guard, the number of re-unions at camp should be great. And for these reunions there could be no place more ideal than around the camp fire in the twilight after a good day on the maneuver field.

Basing their opinion on these two attractions, one for the old and another for the new, the officers of Co. "S D." confidently predict that attendance at camp this summer will be excellent. Contrary to former days, when it was hard to get men to the training areas, it is believed that every member of the company here will be eager to go when camp opens.

The National Guard of today differs so vastly from that of former times that it would be hard to compare them. The new organization, built along new lines, and by new methods that are exceptionally broad, has proved a strong attraction to the young men of the state, with the inevitable result that recruiting has been satisfactory and the class of the recruits extra ordinarily high.

One of the most noticeable differences between the old Guard and the new one is the spirit in which the latter has been received by the public, and especially by those of the business world. In the World's War the National Guard proved beyond doubt that it was efficiently and ready to serve. Its glorious record, coupled with the new system of arganization, has brought it to its rightful place in the esteem of the people whom it serves.

Partly in recognition of this esteem, the employers of young men, in every community throughout the State that is fortunate enough to have a unit of the National Guard, have made it easy for these men to attend camp During the recruiting drives last year, employer after employer gave public notices that his men should have the necessary time off for camp without in any way interfering with vacations.

Older business men have another reason for their attitude toward the National Guard. They come to realize that the one possible form of "Community Insurance" is that which is able to provide protection when it is needed. Nothing can give this protection so well as the National Guard. The protection, morever, is available not only in time of War or Revolution, but in all times of need, such as that caused by famine, fire flood and epidemic. The Guard may be called out to preserve law and order, as it is always on the side of law and order, taking no one's part thru mere prejudice.

Our local company is a community asset, the great value of which it would be impossible to estimate. And this is another reason why the busines man supports the National Guard. The amount of money brought into this community on account of Company "S D." runs into thousands, and every cent of it is spent at home. The armory is the community center and meeting place for the city. The schools and welfare associations know it is available for bazars, entertainments and lectures. The business men know it is the place for holding conventions, fairs and larger gatherings. And the young folk know that no dance floor can equal it will be seen that even the material value of the company cannot be computed.

In addition to all this, the training the young man gets in the summer encampment will make him strong, fearless, self reliant. It will teach him how to do things, how to overcome obstacles, how to take care of himself and others. Above all it will teach him a great deal about "Americanism and if it did nothing more, it would be well worth while.

Ford Producing 4000 Cars A Day

Ford is building cars at full speed. And, according to an official statement from the factory at Detroit, the demand for Ford cars and trucks still exceeds the output, despite the fact that a new high level of production has been reached.

By the first of May the figures representing daily production were in the neighborhood of 4000 a day, so the May schedule was set at 101,135 cars and trucks, not including the output of the Ford Canadian plant or any of the foreign assembling plants. The output mounted daily; May 12th brought forth 4092, the greatest number that have been produced in one day so far this year. Since the month has 25 working days, present indications point to a new high record.

A comparison of Ford production figures for 1920 and 1921 discloses the fact that for April, 1921, the output was greater by 34,514 than for the corresponding month of a year ago. The output for May, 1921, will probably overshadow May, 1920, by between fifteen and twenty thousand cars and trucks.

Approximately 43,000 men are at work in the Detroit plant of the Ford Motor Co. The factory is operating on full time, six days a week and three shifts a day.

"We were never in a better condition than we are right now, said Henry Ford recently.
