SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1888.

Editorial Announcement.

For the information of the friends and patrons of the SENTINEL, and the public generally, the undersigned announces that, with the issue of this date, he becomes its editor. This arrangement involves no change in its proprietorship, or in the business management which will still be under the efficient charge of Mr. Jno. H. Mitten.

The new editor considers a formal salutatory unnecessary, and is content rather to let the SENTINEL speak for itself in the future than to indulge in profuse promises concerning its editorial conduct. It will, however, be his constant effort to make it an acceptable visitor to its many readers and patrons; and in this he will have the hearty concurrence and assistance of all identified with its publication.

It remains only to add that, politically, he will endeavor to make the SENTINEL a faithful exponent of Republican principles and an earnest advocate of Republican supremacy in local, State and National government.

Respectfully,

WM. L. W. SEABROOK.

The Delegates at Large to Chicago.

Several of the delegates at large from this State to the Chicago convention are men of note and prominence. Walter Brooks was the Republican candidate for governor in 1887 and is one of the most substantial and respected business men in the State. He is said to be in favor of the nomination of Jas. G. Blaine. Gen. Adam E. King is the most eloquent, persuasive and forcible Republican speaker within the limits of the commonwealth. He is an ardent friend of Mr. Blaine and has more than once lent the aid of his powerful oratory to the Republican cause in Maine. Wm. D. Burchinal is a man of strong characteristics, bold, fearless and faithful to his convictions and true to his friends. He has been twice elected to the Senate from Kent county, a high compliment in the face of the obstacles which he had to surmount to achieve success. He is also a strong Blaine man. David D. Dickson is a colored man who possesses strong influence with his race. It is said that his presidential preference is Senator Sherman. Some of these gentlemen will be heard from in the convention, and will help to give the Maryland delegation prominence and influence in its deliberations.

It is not denied by the disciples of "tariff for revenue only," that the prices of all kinds of manufactured products are as low as they have ever been, while wages are at a maximum; yet these same revenue reformers talk glibly about the onerous taxation imposed upon most of the articles entering into the daily consumption of the wage earner. Their theory is that a duty, say of 50 per cent., on any article imported, adds just that much to its cost when purchased by the consumer. The theory is fallacious. It has been demonstrated over and over again by the inexorable logic of facts, that the protection afforded American products by the imposition of duties on foreign articles of a like character, has stimulated enterprise, developed manufactures, mining and other industries, and in the end cheapened such products. The inventions of labor saving machinery, which have undoubtedly played an important part in these results, have been, to a very large extent, the outgrowth of the system of protection to which the country owes the marvellous development of the last twenty five-years. The administration of President Cleveland, backed by a large majority of his party in the House of Representatives, proposes to strike down this system and substitute for it a measure generally at variance with the principle of protection. The effort will probably be unsuccessful, but it will be the issue of the approaching Presidential campaign, and the citizen who does not wish eventually to see the great industries, that have grown up under the beneficent provisions of a protective tariff, crushed and broken beneath the iron feet of the Moloch of free trade, should vote against the candidates who stand as the representatives of the theory.

Dr. F. T. Shaw, in his speech recently delivered in the House of Representatives on the Mills Tariff Bill, contended, in substance, that import duties levied for other purposes than revenue are in violation of the Constitution of the United States; and that, as a necessary consequence, a protective tariff must fall within that category. His argument was ingenious and forcible from a free trade standpoint; but nobody contends that duties on foreign imports should be laid primarily as a protective measure. There never has been and probably never will be an occasion when it will not be necessary to provide the revenues of the general government by this system of taxation.

It would probably be as impossible in the future as it has been in the past to raise an issue on the subject before the courts of the country; for whatever motives may enter into the action of the Congress in framing and passing tariff bills, these laws can express but one purpose—that of revenue. That, as an incident of the law making authority, legislation of this character may be so adjusted as to operate, in a secondary manner, by way of protection, upon the industries of the country, without becoming obnoxious to judicial objection, seems perfectly clear. The importer who would decline to pay duties imposed by law, upon the assumption that such duties were unconstitutionally imposed because the purpose of the law-makers was not to raise revenue, but to foster manufactures, or what not, would probably be satisfied with a single experience. If, then, no judicial inquiry is possible upon the point at issue, who is to determine that a principle that is as old as the nation and has been accepted and approved, in some measure, by all parties, is at variance with the plain provisions of the constitution. It is not probable that protective legislation will ever be rendered inoperative because individuals may hold that it is without constitutional warrant.

Democratic Conventions.

The Democratic Congressional conventions for the several districts of this State met on Thursday and five of them completed their labors by the nomination of candidates. In the First district, Charles H. Gibson was renominated on the 179th ballot; in the Third, Fourth and Fifth districts, Harry Welles Rusk, Isidor Rayner and Barnes Compton were respectively renominated by acclamation; in the Sixth district, Col. H. Kyd Douglas was nominated without opposition.

The convention of the Second district met at Havre-de-Grace and organized, on motion of Jas. A. C. Bond, by the election of B. Frank Crouse as chairman. Four candidates were voted for—Dr. F. T. Shaw, of Carroll; J. Fred. C. Talbott, of Baltimore; Herman Stump, of Harford, and George W. Cruikshank, of Cecil. 75 ballots were taken on Thursday, without change, and at 10 o'clock, P. M., the convention adjourned until yesterday morning. The ballots stood from the beginning, 5 for Shaw, 6 for Talbott, 5 for Stump and 4 for Cruikshank.

The Canadian Treaty.

The Baltimore American alleges that Article XII of the Bayard-Chamberlain treaty confers upon Canadian fishermen the privilege and authority of entering the Chesapeake, Delaware and other bays on the Atlantic coast and despoiling them of their fish and oysters; the "right to be enjoyed until the bay or inlet narrows to ten miles."

The Republican Senators are endeavoring to have the treaty considered in open session, but the Democratic Senators are bitterly opposed to the proposition. The treaty is one of the pet measures of the Cleveland administration, but it is fair to presume that if it be of the character indicated there is not the most remote probability that it will be approved by the Senate. The course of Democratic Senators, in seeking to maintain secrecy on the subject, is strong ground for supposing that the public exposure of its provisions would seriously damage the administration. It is believed the Democrats will resort to filibustering to prevent the removal of the secret rule.

The Tariff Question in Congress.

It has been definitely determined that the Mills Tariff Bill shall be taken up in the House of Representatives on Tuesday next and considered item by item, thus allowing an opportunity for amendments. Whether the Republicans will endeavor to amend the bill into a shape acceptable to their views, or submit a bill of their own framing, as a substitute, is not yet quite clear. It is asserted by some of the most reliable authorities that no bill will be introduced by the Republican side of the House, but that the Democratic members will be held to the responsibility of perfecting a measure that will meet the approval of a sufficient number of them to constitute a majority of the House; or, failing in this, be driven to the admission that they are unable to deal with the subject. On the other hand it is alleged in some quarters that the Republicans will submit a bill and make a square issue between it and the Mills monstrosity. Which of these views is correct remains to be seen. It is, however, exceedingly improbable that the Mills bill will pass in its present shape, and it would be more improbable still if it were not known that it would not have the ghost of chance of success in the Republican Senate. Some moderate protectionists, among the Democrats, may vote for it rather than separate from the majority of their party, because they are fully aware that there is not the slightest possibility of it becoming a law, in which case they would be found in the opposition.

Memorial Day.

Memorial Day, May 30th, is near at hand and the Grand Army committees are making arrangements for its proper observance. Col. Theo. F. Lang, department commander, has issued general orders No. 4, relating to this occasion, which are, in part, as follows:

The Rules and Regulations of the Grand Army of the Republic designate May 30th to be observed as "Memorial Day". Custom, however, exceeds the law of the Order in stimulating the zeal of the comrades to a full sense of duty on this hallowed day; and the issuing of orders, by those in authority, for the observance of the day seems almost superfluous. The occasion is held in perpetual remembrance by every loyal heart throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The observance of the day was instituted by, and is still in the hands of, the Grand Army of the Republic; but the garlanding of the graves of our fallen comrades, not being the duty alone of soldiers and sailors, but of every liberty-loving citizen of the Union, it is recommended and confidently hoped that Post Commanders throughout the Department will invite the people within their jurisdiction to assist in the solemn ceremonies of the day; and that the children, especially, be encouraged to participate; that it may be instilled into their minds that the hallowed memories of those "who died that the nation might live" are not forgotten by a grateful people.

Let the exercises of the day be so conducted as to reflect no discredit upon our organization. The day is not one of merriment or festivity, but a day of pure thought and earnest acts,—as patriotic as those that filled the breast of the American soldier when he volunteered in defense of his country's flag. It seems fitting, however, that Posts, in uniform, and with appropriate music, should turn out in parade, and that the citizen soldiery and the regular soldiery, and the naval forces be invited to participate.

The reverend clergy of all denominations are cordially invited to deliver appropriate discourses on the Sabbath next preceding May 30th, as a Memorial Service; and the Sabbath School superintendents to have patriotic hymns sung on that day.

Flags on Memorial Day should be displayed at half-mast.

The case of the Emperor Frederick, of Germany, is a perplexing one to the physicians. A week or two ago a fatal termination of the disease within a brief period seemed imminent. But the royal patient has rallied again and is now able to bear the fatigue of riding in a carriage.

Congressman Scott appears to have as firm a grip on the Democracy of Pennsylvania as that of Senator Gorman on the party in Maryland.

An event of more than passing interest has just marked the history of the empire of Brazil. The government has finally abolished slavery. Ever since the emancipation of the slaves in the United States, if not before that act, public sentiment in Brazil has been steadily developing in favor of the extinction of this enemy of true christian civilization, until, at last, it has culminated in the national fiat, "let the oppressed go free." Happy Brazil! Her great achievement is not marked by the fiery trial through which our own land attained a similar result. It was not reached over the slain bodies of her noblest sons, but by the peaceful means of national legislation, in concurrence with the will of the people and their enlightened ruler. The exact terms of the act are not before us, but they are of such a nature as to give positive assurance that a hope long deferred is to end in full and abundant fruition.

A most disastrous flood has desolated the country lying along the Mississippi river in Adams and Pike counties, Illinois. The submerged region embraces 250,000 acres of the best land in the State. Several villages were completely inundated. Hundreds of families were driven from their homes while many who failed to flee in time from the encroaching waters were compelled to resort to the upper stories of their houses and there remain during the prevalence of the flood. Those who fled are living in tents, huts, or in the open air on the eastern edge of the submerged district. Much sickness and suffering prevails, on account of want and exposure. The actual situation is beyond description. The loss will be immense, in the destruction of crops, buildings, fences, live stock, &c., and is estimated at nearly four millions of dollars. The inundation is without precedent.

The Signal Service reports for the last week indicate that throughout the Southern states the weather has been generally favorable for the growing crops, although more rain is needed. The cool nights have retarded the growth of young cotton, which is, however, reported in good condition. In the grain regions of the North-west and Ohio Valley the cold weather during the week has prevented any marked improvement in the crop condition, notwithstanding the abundance of rain in those sections. Damaging frosts occurred from Michigan southward to Northern Alabama. Reports from Minnesota state that the weather conditions have been generally favorable for crops, though too cold for rapid growth. Reports from Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri indicate that the weather during the week has been favorable for small grain, but unfavorable for corn, vegetables and fruit.

The first regular service of the German Baptist Conference of the United States began at North Manchester Saturday. It is expected that nearly 20,000 members of the church will be in attendance. Immediately after the opening sermon in the great tabernacle Elder James Quinter, editor of the Gospel Messenger, of Huntingdon, Pa., and president of the normal college at that place, led in prayer. While upon his knees on the rostrum in the centre of the tent, surrounded by an audience of 3,000 persons, he was stricken with apoplexy and died almost instantly. While praying, it was observed that he grew incoherent, and as he uttered the words, "We are glad to meet again," he expired. Elder Quinter was probably the most prominent man in the church.

The celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg will be opened by the First Corps on the 1st of July at 1 P. M., at the spot where General John F. Reynolds fell. The programme will be as follows: Address of welcome, Governor James A. Beaver; response, General Abner Doubleday; speeches by the war governors, A. G. Curtin, Austin Blair, J. Gregory Smith, S. J. Kirkwood, Frederick Holbrook, William Sprague and Frederick Smythe; Generals John C. Robinson, James Longstreet, Lucius Fairchild; J. H. Stiné, historian First Corps; Gen. James A. Hall, Joseph Dickinson, and J. P. Rea, commander-in chief G. A. R.

In the appointment of the standing committees of M. P. General Conference, now in session at Adrian, Michigan, the delegation from the Maryland Annual Conference were allotted as follows: On revision of books of discipline, L. W. Bates, F. T. Tagg; on education, D. L. Greenfield, W. J. C. Dulany, J. B. Thomas; on ministerial education, J. T. Murray, Horace Burroughs; course of study, T. H. Lewis, S. Van Nort; judiciary, J. D. Kinzer, Dr. J. W. Hering; on publishing interests, M. W. Strayer, C. W. Button, J. R. Caton; Ecumenical Council, J. D. Kinzer; Sabbath, Col. Aydelotte on ritual, W. S. Hammond.

The Senate on Tuesday passed the Department of Labor bill. The bill provides for a Department of Labor, the general design and duties of which shall be to acquire and diffuse among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with labor in the most general and comprehensive sense of that word, and especially upon its relation to capital, the hours of labor, the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, social, intellectual and moral prosperity.

On Sunday last, at Curtis's Bay, a notorious resort in Anne Arundel county, Wm. Johnson, a young man of twenty years, shot and killed George A. Riley. Riley left a wife and three children. The murder was the result of an attempt on the part of Riley to protect a young woman of bad character from Johnson who had made an assault upon her. There would seem to be great remissness on the part of the Anne Arundel authorities in failing to suppress the flagrant violations of law notoriously common at the scene of this crime.

A destructive cyclone swept over Brownton, Texas, Thursday afternoon, destroying the Methodist, Baptist and Congregational Churches and eight dwelling-houses. One building was carried across the railroad track and crushed, and Amanda Willis, colored who had taken refuge inside, was instantly killed. Eight persons, including the sheriff and county recorder, were fatally injured. The damage will exceed $12,000. A terrible rain, hail and lightning storm followed.

The Oriole Base Ball Club, of Baltimore, seems to be making a dive for the leather medal.

The following communication, addressed to the editor of the Carrolltonian, appeared in that paper last week in such shape as to make its re-publication a measure of simple justice to the writer:

WESTMINSTER, May 15th, 1888.

Jno. E. Nicholson, Esq., Editor Carrolltonian.

SIR:—As you are the ostensible author of a remarkable attack made upon me, in the editorial columns of The Carrolltonian of May 12th, I address you this open communication for the purpose of saying that you did "hazard a very random shot" in crediting me with either the authorship, or inspiration, of certain articles published, editorially, in the AMERICAN SENTINEL. The assumption was wholly gratuitous and unfounded. With the single exception of the SENTINEL's editorial of May 5th, I had no knowledge of the articles in question previous to their publication.

Within the last two months the manager of the SENTINEL has, in several instances, consulted me as to the propriety of publishing, in his editorial columns, articles containing animadversions upon The Carrolltonian, among which was the one that appeared May 5th. I unhesitatingly advised against their publication, and assigned as a reason that while, in my opinion, the interests of the SENTINEL would not be promoted thereby, injury to the Republican party would be a probable consequence.

The manager of the SENTINEL concurred in that opinion, except as to the article that has brought upon my unoffending head the vials of The Carrolltonian's wrath and malice.

Further, my "veiled hostility" to The Carrolltonian, with which you say it "had to reckon" from the first, simply consisted in abstinence from active efforts in its interests. I have not, in any manner, attempted to influence public support in favor of the SENTINEL, or against The Carrolltonian.

But the mistakes of your strangely malignant article are not confined to its groundless assumptions. They form a marked feature of its entire text. I will not attempt to follow you through them all, but call your attention to a single one as a fair example of the whole. You say I "endeavored to use the favor of Dr. Shaw to secure retention in office after the Republican party had lost control of the administration." What excuse you can offer for this bald assertion I am at a loss to conjecture, inasmuch as an inquiry of Dr. Shaw, which you could have readily made, would have placed upon it the seal of a most emphatic denial.

Yours &c.,

WM. L. W. SEABROOK.

Prof. McDaniel's new work on Calisthenics is out from the press.

Quoit pitching is now the proper thing among the boys.

The Seniors are enjoying their vacation.

Shipley Items.

We are now enjoying a good rain which is much needed to help the growing vegetation. The weather is cool, and the corn is coming up very irregularly. The early corn came up reasonably well in most instances, but the frost nipped it and the early potatoes. The grass crop is short, but the wheat and rye have improved rapidly in growth during the spring. The pea crop we fear will be light and short. The potato beetle is numerous and is expected to need a good supply of Paris green to prevent its destructiveness.

READY.

Salem Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Westminster, celebrated its fortieth anniversary on Friday night, 18th instant, at the Odd Fellows' building. The exercises in the lodge room were opened with prayer by Samuel Hughes, after which Dr. Chas. Billingslea was introduced by Jno. J. Reese and made a very interesting and appropriate address on the work of the order, &c. Rev. Wm. A. Crouse also made a neat little address, after which the members, with invited guests, proceeded to the hall, where refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and lemonade were served in abundance. About sixty persons were present, including the Odd Fellows, members of their families and other guests. A toast to the ladies was responded to by Wm. L. Seabrook, and Jno. H. Mitten responded to a toast to the press. It was altogether a very pleasant and enjoyable affair.

We have received a copy of the 56th annual catalogue of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa., from which we learn that the number of students now in that institution is 193. Among these students are the following from Carroll county: Sophomore class, Noah E. Yeiser, of Union Mills; Freshman class, Arthur F. Smith, Chas. E. Stitely and Luther C. Stitely, of Westminster; Preparatory department, John H. Brough, of Uniontown. Hon. Jno. E. Smith is a member of the Board of Trustees. This old and eminent institution of learning is in a prosperous condition. The catalogue contains a brief historical sketch of the College, statements of the system of instruction in the different departments, donations to the Cabinets and other information. It also contains an engraving of a handsome and commodious new building now in process of erection. This building will be used for recitation, library and museum rooms and for the literary society halls. Rev. Harvey W. McKnight is President of the institution.

DIED

After a short illness, at Burnsville, West Virginia, May 21, 1888, Howard, only son of the late H. L. Morris, of this city, in the 26th year of his age.

At Union Mills, May 19th, 1888, Josiah Koontz, aged 64 years and 12 days.

At Pleasant Valley, May 20th, 1888 Elsie Blanche, daughter of Andrew P. and Martha J. Helwig, aged 2 years, 3 months and 19 days.

Near Winfield, May 21st, 1888, Mrs. Lucina McQuay, aged 46 years, 10 months and 21 days.

Our mother is sleeping, so free from all pain;
O, make not her sweet spirit to suffer again.
She slumbers so soundly, O, let her sleep on:
Her sickness is ended and troubles all gone.

O, think what she suffered and moaned with pain;
In the long night hours we soothed her in vain:
Till God, in his mercy, sent down from above
An angel that whispered a message of love.

O, come where all is glory, on the banks of the shore,
Where suffering and weeping and pain are no more;
And if we prepare with our Master, and walk the bright way,
Together with mother we'll have great joy some day.

—BY HER CHILDREN.

On May 18th, 1888, in Uniontown district, after a lingering illness, Maggie A. Fair, beloved wife of William Fair, aged 34 years, 11 months and 9 days.

A light from our household is gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our hearts
That never can be filled.

Long months of pain and sickness
Had dimmed her loving eye,
And Death, the king of terrors,
Was standing closely by.

Upon her brow of marble
We saw the chilly blight,
And knew her spirit's pinions
Were pluming for their flight.

Then came the feeling over us,
She is passing, passing away.

—BY THE FAMILY.

Away, ye know that tears are vain;
That death nor heeds, nor hears distress:
Will this unteach us to complain
Or make one mourner weep the less?
And then, who tell'st me to forget,
Thy looks are wan, thine eyes are wet.
