SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1888.

Gen. W. T. Sherman is ill in New York. His disease is rheumatism, but the attack is not considered serious.

A cold wave struck the St. Louis convention on Wednesday. It developed in the State of Oregon, on Monday.

The St. Louis convention renominated President Cleveland by acclamation, on Wednesday, before adopting a platform, wisely concluding, perhaps, that if the solemn utterances of his letter of acceptance in 1884 were held as lightly as the idle wind, any declaration of principles would be acceptable to the great advocate of a single term.

Judge Thurman's red bandana is a suggestive emblem. It brings to mind the good old days of "tariff for revenue only," when labor commanded the magnificent reward of forty cents a day, or eight dollars a month; when the laboring man lived in a house with carpetless floors, and drank his coffee—if he ever had any to drink—without sugar. It will make an appropriate campaign banner for the Democratic party.

The London Times says "the only time an Irishman is of any benefit to the mother country is when he goes to America, becomes naturalized and votes for free trade." The slur upon Irishmen in their native land is, of course, undeserved, but naturalized Irishmen ought to see very clearly that they extend a helping hand to the oppressors of their countrymen, in the Green Isle, by voting the Democratic ticket. Free trade can only be realized under a Democratic administration.

Grover Cleveland, of New York, and Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, have been nominated by the Democratic National convention, at St. Louis, for the offices of President and Vice-President of the United States respectively. Mr. Cleveland was renominated by acclamation and Judge Thurman chosen upon the first ballot, with a few scattering votes for Black and Gray. The nomination was made unanimous. Notwithstanding the apparent unanimity manifested in these nominations two days were consumed in making them, the candidate for President having been chosen on Wednesday, and for Vice-President on Thursday.

Democratic inconsistency is forcibly illustrated in some of the provisions of the Mills Tariff bill. That curious instrument, which represents the views of President Cleveland, makes lumber and wool free, and imposes a tariff of about sixty per cent. on sugar and one hundred per cent. on rice. The sugar planters of Louisiana and the rice planters of the Carolinas and Georgia are protected against foreign competition in articles that enter into universal consumption, while the interests of the sheep raisers of Ohio and the lumbermen of Michigan and Wisconsin, are held as unworthy of consideration. But then Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin are not Democratic States; and it is safe to predict that they will not soon become so.

As the South furnished nearly three-fourths of the electoral votes that made Mr. Cleveland President, it looks like turning her the cold shoulder to continue nominating Northern Democrats for both the Presidential and Vice-Presidential offices. But she is biding her time. One of her representative sons remarked in our hearing several years ago, that the South would "stoop to conquer," but would exact her reward in due season. That reward, he declared in effect, was the concession that the Southern Democrats were the only people competent to administer the government in accordance with the true theory of Jeffersonian Democracy; and the consequent submission of the control of the government to their hands. The Democratic party has taken long strides in that direction. The South finds plastic material in most of her Northern allies and practically dictates legislation and shapes the policy of the present administration.

In 1880 and 1884 the South furnished the Democratic Presidential tickets with one hundred and fifty-three electoral votes, and it is confidently expected by the adherents of that party that the election of 1888 will be a repetition of that experience.

That result is absolutely essential to Democratic success, with a fair prospect that even a solid South will not save the party from defeat on a pronounced free trade platform; while on that issue it is not by any means certain that the phalanx will remain unbroken. West Virginia is not enamored with the star-eyed goddess, and it must not be forgotten that old Virginia elected a delegation to the present House of Representatives of whom a majority are Republicans. If the foolish quarrels of the Republicans in that State can be healed her electoral vote may go to swell the majority reasonably anticipated for the nominees of the Chicago convention.

The Mundine hotel, a three-story brick building, at Rockdale, Texas, was destroyed by fire, on Monday morning last. Eleven persons perished, among them Pemberton Pierce, a traveling salesman for George H. Zeigler, of Philadelphia, who jumped from the burning building and was killed.

Notwithstanding the apparent enthusiasm at St. Louis over the nomination of the noble old Roman, as the Democrats are pleased to call Judge Thurman, the cool headed Democratic Senators at Washington, with remarkable unanimity, regard his selection as a very grave mistake. They were not within the influence of the fictitious cyclone that carried away the judgment of the convention. Some prominent Democrats in this vicinity were in full accord with the Senators on the subject. Of course they will hedge now; but their deliberate judgment was more reliable than their forced acquiescence in the result.

Gen. P. H. Sheridan, at last advices, was again alarmingly ill. He has made a gallant fight with death, having rallied several times from a condition that banished hope. The whole country looks on with profound sympathy as he battles with the last great enemy of man, and many a prayer goes up for his recovery. He was promoted to the full rank of General of the army, on Friday last, in pursuance of a special act of Congress, passed upon the motion of Hon. Roger Q. Mills.

The platform adopted, after much wrangling, by the Democratic National Convention, is a poor attempt at a straddle. It reaffirms the platform of 1884, but endorses the President's low tariff message of 1887. A separate resolution, indorsing the Mills bill, was adopted. The time has passed in the history of politics in this land when the people can be gulled by a trick so transparent. The issue is free trade or protection and the Democratic party will be held to the official record made by its President and Representatives in Congress, on the subject, during the last six months.

The Republican National convention will meet at Chicago, on Tuesday, 19th instant. It will be a mighty gathering representing the friends of American prosperity and progress in all parts of our great country. No one of the several eminent Republicans named in connection with the Presidential nomination has as yet developed sufficient strength to make a prediction of his selection safe. Depew, Sherman, Gresham, Alger, Allison and Harrison all have considerable strength, but the convention will only act after the delegates have had an opportunity to compare notes and agree upon the strongest man. Should an Eastern, or New York man, head the ticket there is little doubt that Harrison, of Indiana, will be tendered the nomination for Vice-President. A considerable majority of the Maryland delegation is said to be in favor of Mr. Depew for the Presidency, and New York also favors his nomination.

Oregon fires the first gun in the campaign against free trade and the destruction of American industries. The election for a member of Congress, State legislature and other officers, was held on Monday and resulted in a sweeping Republican triumph. The majority for Hon. Binger Hermann, the Republican candidate for Congress, is upwards of 4,000, and that party elects sixty-five out of ninety members of the Senate and lower House of the Legislature. The Democrats confidently anticipated a victory for free trade, which they made the leading issue of the contest. Oregon is usually a comparatively close State, with Republican tendencies. At the election two years ago the Democrats elected the Governor and Judge of the Supreme Court, but there were dissensions in the Republican ranks which have since been healed. In the recent canvass the Democrats made desperate efforts to carry the State. A circular was sent to every postmaster in the State instructing him to use his best efforts to get at least three votes outside of his own party for the Democratic ticket. The notorious New York corruptionist, Smith M. Weed, and others of his ilk, have been in the State, for weeks past, well supplied with money to influence and manipulate votes and, if possible, secure a Democratic victory. The result is a severe rebuke to the tariff tinkers who, whatever may be their purposes, are pursuing a line of policy calculated to bring ruin and disaster upon many of the leading industries of the country, and misery and distress into the homes of wage earners. It was believed by the apostles of this anti-American creed that the Pacific slope was ripe for the movement. How widely they were mistaken is manifested by the returns of the Oregon election. The victory is more thorough and sweeping than the most sanguine Republican anticipated. It presages the great victory that is to restore the national authority to the party that preserved the nation from destruction.

The litigation over the Southern Pennsylvania insurance company's affairs, lately of Hanover, is ended; and on the order of the Dauphin County Court the Receiver has distributed the assets among those entitled. The contest was chiefly between the officers on the one hand, and certain insurers on the other. The decision was against the officers. The insurers received the net sums due them—being credited with the amount of insurance on subjects who died before the insolvency of the company, and charged with their unpaid assessments on other policies, persons who held policies who were living at the time of the company's insolvency. Several thousand dollars will come into this and the adjoining counties.—Star and Sentinel.

The Glyndon Park Temperance Camp-Meeting Association will hold the second annual camp-meeting at Glyndon, W. M. R. R., commencing Friday, July 27th, and closing Tuesday August 7th. On Thursday, August 2d, the annual Prohibition convention will be held, when a new State Central and Executive Committees will be elected, electors for President and Vice-President chosen, a platform of principles enunciated, &c. The convention of the Second Congressional district will also meet on the same day to nominate a candidate for Congress.

Among the twenty-three cadets of the six year class at the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, who have passed a final examination, Samuel M. Strite, of Maryland, stood number 12. Frederick N. Kress, who graduated at the head of the four-year class two years ago, did not enter the examination on account of illness, and is said to be suffering with consumption.

A telephone message reports that Harrison Garrett, of Baltimore, brother of Robert Garrett, lately President of B. & O. R. R., was drowned Thursday night. A steamer collided with his pleasure yacht in the vicinity of seven foot knoll light at mouth of Patapsco river. The particulars of the accident were not given.

Edward F. Trail was shot and killed by Edgar M. Watkins, near Middlebrook, Montgomery county, about 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Three shots were fired by Watkins, all of which took effect, one of them in the heart, causing instant death. The shooting, it is alleged, was in self-defence.

A damaging hail and rain storm passed over a portion of Southampton county, Va., on Thursday.

This year's graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy, at West Point, numbers forty-five. At the last examination Munroe McFarlane, of Md., stood 35th on the list.

The oldest man in Northwest Missouri is Husselton Compton, of St. Joseph, who celebrated his one hundredth birthday on the 1st of May.

The St. Louis convention found slight protection against the Oregon blizzard a prime necessity.

There has been a heavy snow-storm in the district of Ben Lomond, Scotland.

Ice formed at Oakland Saturday night and Monday morning.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Bird Hill Items.

Our farmers are now busily engaged working their corn and potatoes. There is still some sugar corn to be planted in this section.

On Saturday last Elias Ogg, blacksmith of this place, shot a bald eagle, in the woods of Thomas B. Bartholow, which measured 6 feet 9½ inches from tip to tip of wings. Mr. Ogg brought it to his shop where it was seen by a number of people. It is quite a curiosity to the younger folks.

While William Blizzard was planting corn in a piece of new ground one day last week his little girl, who was with him in the field, called him to her, when he saw a large black snake lying within a few feet of the spot at which she stood. The reptile was quickly dispatched. It measured over six feet in length.

Master Albert Jordan, who was badly hurt by a wagon passing over his arm, last week, is rapidly improving.

Mrs. Thomas A. Phillips is confined to her bed with fever.

Mrs. John Evans and Miss Laura A. Blizzard are on a visit to relatives and friends in Arlington, Baltimore county.

July 1st will be observed as Children's Day at Deer Park M. P. chapel.

Elias Davis burned a kiln of lime last week.

Woodbine Items.

We learn that the people in the vicinity of Bloom Post-office are anxious to connect that office with the Woodbine route to Winfield. This would give them their mail in the morning instead of late in the afternoon.

Frank Glennan lost a horse last week valued at two hundred dollars; disease colic. He accidentally killed a valuable farm dog recently by running a heavy roller over it. Many of the worthless curs that are destroying the farmers' grain by running through it should be disposed of in the same way. It is a pity our lawmakers cannot inaugurate such legislation as would give the farmers protection against worthless dogs, if nothing else.

Mr. B. Gosnell, of near Day, raised a barn this week, Mr. Jackson Shipley carpenter.

Mr. Stephen Gartrel had a quantity of tobacco stolen from the bulk recently.

Buck having failed to bleat, now proposes to blow, but it will only be wind when he does. He reminds us of the couplet of Parnell:

"Boy, blow the pipe until the bubble rise,
Then cast it off to float upon the skies."

W. D.

Wakefield and Medford Items.

On last Sunday evening as Jacob Kiler with his wife was driving up the hill at the brick church his horse ran upon a bank and overturned the buggy. Both Mr. and Mrs. K. were badly hurt. The horse was caught by Basil Smith.

While Ezra Nicodemus was on his way to New Windsor, on Tuesday evening, his buggy was badly broken. Mr. N. was not injured.

Frank J. Devilbiss has closed out his store at Wakefield, and the village is now without such an establishment.

George Chilcote has accepted a position as clerk in a provision store in Baltimore, and left for his new sphere of duty, on Monday last.

Miss Mary Bowers closed her school on Friday of last week.

Miss Lou Roop, of Medford, who has been very ill, is convalescent.

Miss Mary Nicodemus is improving the barn on her farm occupied by B. Smith.

There will be a children's meeting, at the brick church, on June 24th.

An ice cream festival will be held at the brick church, on the 21st, 22d and 23d of June.

David Englar's new store room is ready for the plasterers.

A day or two ago a Medford lad was hurt considerably by jumping from a train of cars.

The road leading from Wakefield to Samuel Reifsnider's mill has been put in fine condition. MUSCOVY.

Report of the Grand Jury.

CARROLL COUNTY,
MAY TERM, 1888.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court for Carroll County:

Having no further business to transact the Grand Jury ask to be discharged and beg leave most respectfully to submit the following report: During the session they have diligently investigated all business presented for their consideration. The result of their deliberations has been the examination of 200 witnesses; the finding of indictments, for larceny 4, for felony none, for assault with intent to kill 3, for keeping disorderly houses 2, for selling liquor to minors 6, for selling liquor on Sunday 7, for rape none, for abortion 1, for illegitimacy 1, for disturbing religious assembly 1, for selling liquor on election day 2, 37 complaints were dismissed. The Grand Jury visited the jail, interviewed the prisoners and examined the building. They would especially call attention to the dilapidated condition of the inside of the yard wall and recommend that it be repaired without delay with strong cement coating. In its present condition it is certainly very insecure and the sheriff should not be held responsible for the safe keeping of prisoners if allowed the freedom of the yard. They would strongly recommend the placing of two gas lamps between the court house and jail. They also recommend two gas jets in the hall of the jail and placed out of the reach of the prisoners. The Grand Jury feel it a duty incumbent on them to call the attention of the court to the apparent remissness on the part of the constables of the county in not observing the frequent violations of law and their failure to scrutinize more closely the conduct of keepers of ordinaries and those selling liquor to minors and on Sundays and report the same to the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury are forced to the conclusion that some of the said officers are either grossly ignorant of their duties or they are disposed to shirk their responsibilities. Their almost uniform testimony revealed no infringement of the law in their Bailiwicks, and yet the Grand Jury were able to get from private citizens abundant evidence of gross violations. In pursuance with the instructions of the court they have given the violation of the liquor law a fairly rigid investigation, and although there was much reluctance manifested on the part of many witnesses, and equivocation and evasion resorted to in the evidence of most of them, the result, so far as the Grand Jury have observed, compels the conclusion that the law against selling liquor to minors and on Sunday, has been almost entirely ignored. To the view of the Grand Jurors it presents a sad commentary on the remissness of those who have charge of the enforcement of the laws, and a still more sad subject for the contemplation of parents and those who hope for the happiness and welfare of their fellow beings.

The Grand Jurors most respectfully call the attention of the proper authorities to the need of better ventilation of the Grand Jury room; the present architectural arrangement being but ill suited to ensure comfort or health.

In conclusion the Grand Jurors take pleasure in bearing testimony to the uniform courtesy and attention to the needs of the Jury by the State's Attorney and all other officers of the court.

DAVID RINEHART,
Foreman Grand Jury.

Periodicals.

"Peterson" for June is the magazine that every lady should get who wants the fullest description of everything new in the way of summer fashions; it is also the magazine for everybody who wishes the best in the matter of engravings, stories, and literary matter in general. With this number, the first volume of the present year closes, and, excellent as it has been in all respects, the new volume promises to be even better. Terms: Two dollars a year, with great reductions to clubs and elegant premiums to those getting up clubs. Send for a sample-copy. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Harper's Magazine for June is an example of what a magazine for early summer ought to be. It contains a judicious mixture of the best things in literature, and is thus suited to all the moods of a June day. Fiction is provided for lazy hours by W. D. Howells, Henry James, and William Black, and there is much charming poetry. Neither are solid articles for serious reading lacking, and the artistic features of the number are most delightful. Reinhart, Abbey, Chas. Graham, E. P. Sanguinetti, Alfred Parsons, W. H. Hyde, and F. Barnard, all contribute specimens of their best work. The frontispiece is an excellent portrait of the late Mrs. Craik, and belongs to the article on "London as a Literary Centre," which abounds in good likenesses of English novelists.

The June number of The Century opens with the second of Mr. Kennan's illustrated articles, this one being on "Plains and Prisons of Western Siberia." The frontispiece of the magazine shows an exile party on a muddy road near Tiumen. The subjects treated by Mr. Kennan are "Siberia's Enormous Territory," "Varieties of Climate," "A Farming Region," "Flowers and Mosquitoes," "The Forwarding Prison," "The Hospital Wards," "The Women's Prison," "An Exile Marching Party," "The Convict Barge," etc. The Lincoln History in this number contains chapters on "The Advance," "Bull Run," "Fremont," and "Military Emancipation." The last of the present series of illustrated Western articles by Mr. Roosevelt is entitled "The Ranchman's Rifle on Crag and Prairie." This, like the other articles, is accompanied by Remington's graphic sketches of Western scenes.

The June St. Nicholas has a very strong leading article, entitled "A Great Show," by Professor Alfred Church, describing the Circus Maximus at Rome. Louise Chandler Moulton writes a full but simple memorial of "Louisa May Alcott," containing extracts from her letters to the editor of St. Nicholas; and the article is illustrated by a new picture of Miss Alcott, which is much more pleasing than any before published, and also by a picture of her adopted daughter (the child of her sister "Amy") Lulu Nieriker. In "The Men who Died," Ruth Hays tells of a little negro boy's wish on Decoration Day to do honor to the dead soldiers, and Kemble has fittingly embodied the hero. "Dogs of Noted Americans," Part I., contains accounts by Gertrude Van R. Wickham of the dogs belonging to Garfield, Lee, Eggleston, Whittier, Miss Woolson, and Mrs. Burnett. The pictures, from photographs, are full of character.

For little folks beginning to read there is nothing so good as Our Little Men and Women, published by D. Lothrop Company, Boston. The June number is before us and we can say this from personal examination. It costs but a dollar a year. The publishers will send a sample for 5 cents—or of their four magazines for 15 cents.

Commencement Exercises at New Windsor College.

The exercises of commencement week, at New Windsor College, began on Sunday morning last with a sermon before the graduating class by Rev. A. M. Jelly, D. D., president of the College. On Sunday night, Rev. Maurice E. Wilson, of Baltimore, addressed the literary societies of the college. He took for his subject, "Joyful Religion," and for his text: "And both Jesus was called and his disciples to the marriage."

Monday was class day. The program of exercises comprised a greeting by the president of the class, Clarissa Bankert, Waynesboro', Pa.; prophecy, Janie Mathews, West Virginia; instrumental solo, Mamie E. Courtney, Michaelsville, Md.; class ode, Kate E. Armentrout, West Virginia; history of the class, Laura J. Graddick, Georgia; phrenological survey, Mamie E. Courtney; advice to intermediates, Kate E. Armentrout; farewell address, J. Cromie, New York.

On Tuesday night Rev. Alexander Allison, of Philadelphia, preached to the students and a crowded audience at the Presbyterian Church, on the connection of the Bible with a higher education. He urged that the Bible should be made a text book in all schools and colleges, both public and private.

On Wednesday night the annual soiree and contest between the societies of New Windsor College and Windsor Female College were held. The program was as follows:

Instrumental trio, "Le Cuirassier," Misses Benton, Holtz and Mathews; reporting, Harry J. Jelly; instrumental duet, "Charge of the Uhlans," Daisy and Bessie Bennett; German recitation, "Der Hans Heer Strolch," instrumental duet, "Leben und Lieben," Misses Benton and M. Mathews; English essay, "Lights and Shadows," May Smith; "The Value of Character," Earle Carlisle; instrumental solo, "Le Sylph," Addie C. Jelly; Greek declamation, "Philip's Defense Before Arrippa," James D. Simmons; oration, "The Value of Time," Sophia Newkirk; instrumental trio, "Hope March," Misses Bankert, Blanche Bennett and L. Pressman; French essay, "Le Plaisir de la Lecture," Maggie D. Lyon; vocal duet, "When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie," Miss G. Lambert and H. Ensor; instrumental solo, "Valse Brillante"; oration, "Refinement a National Benefit," J. W. Beatty; instrumental duet, "Orphee aux Enfers," Misses Jelly and Graddick; Latin declamation from Cicero, John Ensor; instrumental duet, "Semiramide," Misses Benton and Bankert; New Windsor College reconnoissance, Josie Myers; instrumental duet, "Bicycle Galop," Misses Reiss and Cowan; declamation, "John Wilkes's Speech for the American Colonies," John Norris; chorus, "There's a Baby in the House," Misses Bennett, Jelly, Lyons, S. Lambert, A. Ecker, O. Townsend, and Mary and Mattie Murphy; oration, "Latent Energy," William T. Stuchell; instrumental duet, "Misses Courtney and Woodall; chorus, "The Wandering Savoyards," Misses Chamberlain, Mason, Lewis, G. and L. Lambert, Townsend, A. Lyon, and Messrs. Carlisle, Ensor, Robinson and Kirkland.

On Thursday evening the commencement exercises of the graduating class were held, consisting of music, essays, &c., as follows:

Music, overture, "Reception," Schiepegrell; prayer, Rev. J. H. Marsh, New Windsor, Md.; salutatory, Clarissa Bankert, Waynesboro', Pa.; music, "Grand Selection Bellman," Von Suppe; essay, "We Live in Deeds, and Not in Years," Mamie E. Courtney, Michaelsville, Md.; prize essay, "Lady Macbeth," Laura J. Graddick, read by L. Josephine Mathews, Lewisburg, W. Va.; music, "Sans Souci," overture, Kauh; honorary essay, "There is No Such Word as Fail," Kate E. Armentrout, Richlands, W. Va.; oration, "Truth and Promise," James Cromie, New York city; music, "Serenade," Funck; valedictory, Laura J. Graddick, Barnesville, Ga.; music, "Grand Medley"; conferring of diplomas, degrees and awarding medals of honor, by the President, Rev. A. M. Jelly; music, "Maryland, My Maryland"; benediction.

The graduates are: James Cromie, New York; Clarissa Bankert, Waynesboro, Pa.; Mamie E. Courtney, Michaelsville, Md.; Laura J. Graddick, Barnesville, Ga.; L. Josephine Mathews, Lewisburg, W. Va.; Kate E. Armentrout, Richlands, W. Va.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Sentinel.

Dear Sir.—Permit me through your columns to express to the members of the grand jury, recently adjourned, my grateful thanks for the courtesies and very gentlemanly treatment extended to me, a member of said jury, during its session. The fact that I was not made to feel the distinction in color, is a matter, that to my mind, is deserving of the highest commendation, and justly deserves this acknowledgement of gratefulness from me.

Very Respectfully,
GEO. W. BELL.
