SHEEP RAISING IN KENT

PROPER TREATMENT OF FLEECE AND MORE AND BETTER SHEEP WILL MEAN MONEY TO KENT FARMERS

While sheep raising in Kent County is considered one of the minor products of the farm, this industry should not be overlooked as the annual receipts from fleece and lambs are estimated at about $80,000.

Kent farms have about 8000 sheep and the annual crop of wool is estimated at 36,327 pounds, for which about $16,000 is received annually. Income from lambs is estimated at $65,000.

This annual income can be increased through the purchase of pure-bred rams, proper care of lambs and the proper wrapping of the fleece after being sheared. Bran makes a good feed for very young lambs, and as they grow older a ration of 4 parts corn, 1 part oats and 1 part linseed oil meal.

Progressive sheep raisers are using paper wool twine and sheep branding paint that will scour out of their wool. However, the wool trade reports that there is a need for still more improvement along this line. They point out that the owners of farm flocks of sheep are especially lax in the use of improper fleece twine, and that it would be to their distinct advantage to turn to the use of paper twine. Wool tied with paper twine will sell more readily than similar wool tied with twine of jute, hemp, or similar fibers. Fragments of paper twine will come out of the wool in the scouring process. Other twines leave bits of vegetable fibers which are removed from the finished cloth by expensive hand labor.

One of our argest wool growers reports a saving of 2 cents per pound on wool that is properly prepared. Most of the branding paint is removed in the wool sorting operation by sheet shears. The wool clipped off in this branding paint is practically a complete loss. Particles of paint which will not scour out are very objectionable. This means an increase in the shrinkage, a loss of wool, injury to other wool, a damage to the finished fabric and requires expensive hand labor and makes the wool sell less readily.

Further information on this matter may be secured from county extension agents or State agricultural colleges.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

POPULAR BETTERTON COUPLE PAID FITTING TRIBUTE BY FELLOW TOWNSMEN

Betterton people turned out Monday night to do honor to two of its oldest and most popular citizens, the occasion being the celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Brice. Practically 300 guests were entertained at Crew's Hotel, including friends from Baltimore, Wilmington, Washington and all sections of Kent County.

The dining hall of the hotel was decorated in yellow and white with a large cluster of jonquils as the centerpiece. Music was furnished by the Betterton String Orchestra, under the direction of former Postmaster Charles H. Brice, a son. "Captain Horace," as he is familiarly known to hundreds of travelers on the Tolchester steamers, has been a resident of Betterton practically all of his life.

He is 72 years old and his wife 70. Mr. Brice entered the employ of Turner & Bro., now Turner & Son, Betterton, in 1868, and for a number of years sailed a freight vessel between Betterton and Baltimore carrying grain. He has been superintendent of the Tolchester pier for many years.

GRAHAM GETS TWENTY YEARS

Clarence W. Graham, 28, of Harrington, indicted for first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Gordon C. Riley in Harrington on November 24, last, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the Court of Oyer and Terminer at Dover. The state accepted the plea and the case was brought to a speedy conclusion with the pronouncement of sentence to twenty years imprisonment and $1,000 fine by the court. The proceedings were concluded in less than three hours while the court house was thronged with an huge crowd. Graham was arraigned on the charge of murder to which he pleaded not guilty. It was then that he entered the plea of guilty to manslaughter.

THE MINSTREL SHOW PLEASES.

Local Talent Shows to a Packed House in Lyceum Theatre

The Chestertown M. E. Sunday School class of Mr. John N. Bennett of Chestertown, gave a minstrel show and farce comedy on Monday night at Lyceum Theatre to a packed house about four hundred paying admission. A local minstrel show is always pleasing and this was no exception. And the big crowd appreciated the efforts of the amateur actors to an extent almost unprecedented.

The rendering of local numbers by several members of the class was of a high order, while the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Rolph made the biggest hit of the evening with his dancing.

Mr. Clarence Newcomb, one of the premier comedians that ranges the local floors, was perhaps in the rarest form of years and found good marks in people of the community who served as targets for his satirical aim. Upon these he poured a flood of witticism which left them abashed and dismayed, perhaps, but unscathered and not humiliated.

The applause was unstinted at all times and drew many encores from the chief performers of the evening.

The program was as follows:

Minstrel Circle Chorus, "On The Bam, Bam, Bamy Shore," Company; Song, "Remember," Norman Graves, "Home," Harry Crosh; Chorus Five Foot Two Eyes of Blue," Company; Song, "Tell Me Again You Love Me," J. This progressive move cannot fail in its endeavors if its members show a willingness to support it and work for its aims. Meetings are held every Thursday.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE PROGRESSING.

EASTERN SHORE INSTITUTION FORGING TO THE FRONT AS AN EDUCATIONAL MEDIUM

Through the progressiveness of President Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, the Faculty, and the Board of Visitors and Governors, Washington College can now be classed as one of the outstanding colleges of Maryland. The value of its work in advancing educating on this Shore can not be over estimated and if this peninsula is to progress and come into its own, it will be through the efforts of the broad minded clear thinking citizenry, which is one of the outstanding results of higher education.

One of the accomplishments this year is the rasing of the standards to grade A College which will further increase its usefulness, its educational facilities and the value of a diploma from this old institution. A progressive move is now on foot to install a modern, sanitary and up-to-date Cafeteria in the basement of the gymnasium Dr. Paul E. Titswirth in a statement said, "I hope this move will become a reality, and that the new cafeteria will be installed and ready in September 1926." This cafeteria will take the place of the present over crowded dining room and make ample room for a much larger enrolment which the college will surely enjoy in the near future. It will be open all day.

The present enrollment of 183 students is one of the largest in the history of the college and from all indications the enrollment will reach 225 in September next. It is reported that the Faculty will be increased by three new instructors next term who will increase the staff of the following courses: Modern Language, Mathematics and Science, English and Physical Education.

A large part of the credit for the progress of Washington College is due President Paul E. Titsworth, who is a business man as well as an educator He is a worker in all progressive moves of the community as well as the college; he is a good mixer and always on the job, and with his leadership Washington College will continue to go forward.

Immediately a hue and cry was raised which resulted in the capture of Kline shortly after noontime.

THE WISDOM OF A CHILD

Children frequently make remarks that have in them wisdom of solomon. A little four-year-old Chestertown girl recently said to her mother: "Buddy, Charles Blank don't care for hardly anyone. He don't like the Lord; he don't like the Angels even. He said the only ones he loved were his mother and Santa Claus!

THE PESSIMIST.

W .D. Foulke In Indianapolis Star

He hezn't done so very much in all these sixty years,
Except to find the things that's wrong and talk about his fears.
He knew they'd sowed the corn too late—'twould ketch the early frost.
He saw they'd made the fence too low —the stock would get across.
The preacher's got his sermon mixed; the doctor couldn't tell
What was the matter when he had that dreadful sinkin' spell;
The rheumatiz was in his jints; his liver out of fix,
And in his stomach every thing was in an awful mix.
His neighbors tried to cheat him and his children wouldn't mind;
His crops would all be ruined and his horse was going blind;
The frost would kill the peaches; the rain would spile the hay;
The hogs would catch the cholera; the hens would never lay;
The roads were torn up by the flood; the bridge would surely fall;
The government—well, better have no government at all
For the courts was all corrupted and the law was all askew,
A net to catch the decent man and let the rascals through.
It kind o' seemed as if the Lord had made the earth and skies
So he could see how wrong they wuz and set and criticize.
n the same house the hired girl, who cooked and washed the clothes,
Would sing and laugh the whole day long under his very nose.
And when the old curmudgeon turned and asked her what it meant,
She answered him: "I laugh and sing because I am content."

FEAR ITALIAN TOMATO

MAY BE A MENACE TO THE INDUSTRY ON THE EASTERN SHORE

At a meeting of the canners of Caroline County held at Denton, recently, Mr. Frank M. Shook, the newly appointed Field Secretary of the Tri-State Packers' Association was present and explained the duties of the Field Secretary and some of the activities hoped to be carried on by his office. At the present time the canners are very much exercise over the tremendous increase in the importation of Italian tomatoes. The tariff on tomatoes has been reduced twice recently; the last time being in 1922 when it was lowered to 15% ad valorem. Since this reduction imports have jumped by leaps and bounds.

The year the last reduction was made, which was in 1922, the imports were approximately 300,000 cases. This increased in 1923 to 624,000 cases; in 1924 to 1,100,000 cases and in 1925 to the enormous total of 1,833,000 cases based on 24 No. 3: size cans to the case.

On a basis of No. 2 size cans, which many of the Italian imports consit the importation of Italian tomatoes for the year 1925 would be equivalent to 2,933,075 cases of 24 cans, 20 ounces each, or more than the entire pack of the States of Delaware and New Jersey of all sizes for the year 1925.

The importation of tomatoes from Italy practically all enter the Eastern Seaboard and come into direct competition with the goods of the growers and packers of this territory.

HOW TO KEEP CHILDREN WELL

HIEF BUREAU OF CHILD HYGIENE GIVES SOME RULES FOR HEALTH

If you want the kiddies in your house to stay well, keep them away from others who have coughs, colds, measels, mumps, whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or any other "catching" disease, is the advice of Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Maryand State Department of Health.

"We hear a great deal," he said, "about the importance of protecting school children from communicable diseases, and it IS important, but few people realize that it is just as vital to protect the babies and the other children who are too young to go to chool.

"A great many people still have the old notion that children are going to have these diseases any way, so hey may as well get them and have it over. The truth of the matter is that these diseases are much more dangerous—as a rule apt to end fatally. Two out of every three of the deaths from measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria, occur among children under five. In the case of whooping cough, our records show that nine out of every ten deaths from that disease occur among children under five.

"Measles, in particular, is apt to be spoken of lightly, when it really is to be regarded as a wolf in sheep's clothing. It is especially dangerous for babies and children under three, and ordinarily it is least dangerous for the children between five and fifteen years old. It is twenty-five times as fatal for babies under a year old as it is for the four year-olds,—and it is nearly fifty times as fatal for the babies under a year old as it is for the children between five and nine. Even when it is not immediately fatal, it is likely to leave a trail of bad after-effects. It frequently opens the way for eye and ear troubles and often is followed by pneumonia. Instead of regarding the disease lightly, every precaution should be taken—especially when other children in the family or in the neighborhood have the disease—to safeguard the little ones and to keep them from catching it.

"Against one serious infectious disease—diphtheria—we have a definite means, of protection—toxin-antitoxin and physicians and health officers all agree that all young children, beginning with the year old babies, should be given this protective treatment.

"Another catching disease, that is particularly hard on the babies and very little children and from which they should be carefully safeguarded is the so-called common cold. Like the measles, this is much more dangerous for the little children than for the older ones. The little children cannot get rid of the infectious material in the throat and nose as the older ones can, and very often these persistent colds lead to broncho-pneumonia and to other diseases.

"There are two ways of protecting the children from all of these catching diseases.

First: Develop their resistance to disease, by intelligent care, paying special attention to food, fresh air and plenty of rest.

Second: Keep them away from all other people—grown-ups as well as children who have any sort of a communicable disease."
