Republican Primaries and County Convention.

The Republican voters of Carroll county are hereby notified that primary meetings will be held at the usual places in the several districts on Saturday, August 11th, 1888, between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock, P. M., to select Five Delegates in each district to a County Convention to be held in the room of the Westminster Republican Club, Bowers' Hall, No. 49 East Main street, Westminster, on Monday, August 13th, 1888, at 10½ o'clock, A. M., which convention will elect Five Delegates to represent the county in the Second Congressional District Convention to be held in Dushane Post Hall, Baltimore, at noon, on Wednesday, August 15th, 1888, to nominate a candidate for Congress in the said District.

I. E. PEARSON, Chairman.
JNO. H. MITTEN, Secretary.

Not Homogeneous.

The Prohibition National Ticket is not homogeneous. Gen. Fisk, the Presidential candidate, in speaking at the Glyndon camp-meeting, on Friday of last week, about the Republican party, said, "I helped to found the Grand Old Party, and I followed it from Fremont to Garfield." In his speech, as we have seen it reported, while condemning the Republican organization because it does not adopt his views on the temperance, or Prohibition question, there is a lingering tone of affection for the party "that has done more for the country than any other," as he puts it, that shows how deeply he must be attached to its principles, and how proud he evidently has been of its achievements. All this is in marked contrast with the sentiments of his associate on the ticket, Rev. Dr. Brooks. The latter is credited with having made the following declaration: "I have been a rebel, a slave-holder and a fire-eating Democrat, but thank God I have never been a Republican, and I have not that sin to answer for."

The one proudly acknowledges himself one of the founders of an organization for which a vote, in the estimation of the other, is a sin. It does seem a little singular that a Republican, who followed the party from Fremont to Garfield, should find himself in such company, and that others who, as between the Republican and Democratic parties, infinitely prefer the former, should find themselves in the attitude of supporting a man who offers a gratuitous insult to every man who ever voted the Republican ticket. It isn't surprising that Mr. Brooks is anxious to destroy Republicanism, because to him it is the sum of wickedness; but just why he finds co-laborers among former Republicans it is difficult to understand.

What is the Matter With the Mails?

Complaints from subscribers to the SENTINEL about the irregularity of its reception through the mails have become very frequent and indicate a great lack of fidelity or capacity somewhere among the postal officers of the government. Rev. P. H. Miller, of this city, who is at Denver, Col., in letters to friends here says that while the Advocate has been received promptly and regularly the SENTINEL has not come to hand at all. In this case especial attention has been given the matter and the paper has been mailed without fail. From Mrs. Dr. Wilson, at Fort Meade, comes the complaint that the Advocate, which a friend sends to her daughter, "always comes one day and and sometimes two days in advance of the SENTINEL." Now, it is a very rare occurrence that the SENTINEL is not mailed at the Westminster postoffice in time for the 5 o'clock mail on Friday afternoons, and of course Mrs. Wilson's paper is not withheld at this office to a later date. We would be much obliged to the Postoffice Department if it would employ one of its numerous special agents to investigate the cause of this chronic irregularity. The New York Tribune has recently stated that similar complaints of its subscribers are common and frequent. A little Civil Service Reform in this direction would be worth a great deal more than any amount of profession on the subject. By the way, why is it that these postal failures usually occur with Republican papers? Can it be by design?

The Democrats are very anxious to get rid of "Johnny" Davenport, election supervisor in New York city. They put it on the plea that he has been "worth thousands of votes to the Republican party by the terrorizing and bulldozing process he invented to scare away naturalized citizens from the polls." The real trouble in the case is that he has reduced the fraudulent voting and repeating of the Democratic roughs in New York, to a minimum. The idea that honest Democratic voters in a city giving that party 45,000 or 50,000 majority, could be terrorized by anything a single Republican could do is the extreme of absurdity. Purging the lists and forcing a comparatively honest ballot has lost many thousand votes to the Democrats in New York, and that is where the shoe pinches.

FREE WHISKEY.

Because the Republican platform declares that the party favors "the entire repeal of internal taxes, rather than the surrender of any part of our protective system, at the joint behest of the whiskey ring and the agents of foreign manufacturers," that immaculate friend of temperance, the Democratic party, is terribly scandalized and thrown into a perfect ecstasy of horror. "Those dreadful Republicans," it cries, "are in favor of free whiskey, and the demoralization of the people." A stranger, hearing the pious temperance talk of Democrats in this community, would not dream that less than a decade of years has passed since a prohibitory measure was defeated, in Carroll county, mainly by Democratic votes. An uninformed foreigner, reading the Democratic papers of the day would scarcely imagine that the Democratic Governor of New York, quite recently, vetoed a strong temperance law, passed by a Republican Legislature, and that the veto was sustained by the Democratic members of the Assembly. Such a man would hardly believe that a rigid temperance act, passed by a Republican Legislature, in the State that furnishes the Prohibition candidate for the Presidency, has just been declared valid, by the highest court of the State, after a hard fight against it by Democratic saloon interests; or further that saloon keepers, driven out of Republican Philadelphia, in consequence of laws enacted by the Republican Legislature of Pennsylvania, were flocking to Democratic Baltimore to ply their trade among people who are loudest in denouncing the Republican party as the advocate of free whiskey.

But all these facts are true; and it is further true that the platform of the Prohibition party is more emphatic in its declaration against the taxation of liquor than that of the Republican party. This is what it says on the subject: "That any form of license, taxation or regulation of the liquor traffic is contrary to good government; that any party which supports regulation, license, or taxation, enters into alliance with such traffic and becomes the foe of the State's welfare," and, that there might be no ambiguity in its utterance, that platform declares, unequivocally, "for the immediate abolition of the Internal Revenue system, whereby our National Government is deriving support from our greatest national vice."

In view of these things it is reasonable to conclude that the Democratic cry of "free whiskey," so persistently reiterated, is, to say the least of it, hypocritical and insincere.

Death of General Sheridan.

Another great soldier has surrendered to the last triumphant enemy. General Philip H. Sheridan is dead. He passed away at Nonquitt, Mass., at midnight of Sunday last. His death was quite sudden, although those best informed of his condition had little, if any, hope of his recovery from the disease under which he had been laboring for several months. Indeed, it seems almost a miracle that he resisted it so long. Once, before his removal from Washington, he was in a comatose condition and the functions of the heart were practically suspended. In that instance he was revived, when death seemed certain, by the application of electricity, and so gallant has been his fight with the destroyer, throughout his entire illness, that the whole nation hoped against hope that he might once more win a victory and regain a partial measure of bodily health.

The people mourn the demise of this gifted and gallant soldier of the Union. In the war which preserved the land from disintegration and destruction, he won imperishable renown and displayed the qualities of a great military genius. He was not, as many suppose, only a dashing cavalry commander, but a strategist of the highest order, and his name is indissolubly linked with the great struggle that must forever be held as the most important era of the nation's history.

As is well known he held the full rank of General of the Army. This rank is also held by Gen. Sherman, on the retired list, at whose death it will cease, if not again revived by Act of Congress.

Gen. Sheridan's remains will be interred at Arlington National Cemetery, Va., near Washington, to-day. He was a Catholic, and the funeral rites of the church will be conducted in St. Matthew's Church, Washington, D. C. Cardinal Gibbons will be present and participate in the services.

Major-General Schofield, as the ranking officer, will succeed to the command of the army, we presume with the rank of Lieutenant-General.

Calvin Brice, the chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, deserves the belt, as the champion funny man. He predicts that his party will not only carry the States usually denominated doubtful, but also Michigan, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. The natural inference is that in making this prediction he was only airing his wit. If otherwise he thoroughly discredited his own judgment and his party friends will not derive much comfort from his prophesy.

The Democrats appear to be on nettles about the Senate tariff bill and a new story concerning it turns up from Democratic Washington correspondents every day or two. In the meantime the Republican Senators are hearing the views of the business and labor interests of the country and perfecting a bill that will protect American industries and American labor and receive the sanction of the people whether or not it shall be approved by the Democratic House of Representatives.

Speaker Carlisle, in an elaborate address in Tammany Hall, in the campaign of 1880, argued that tariff taxation, for any other purpose than revenue, was a clear violation of the constitution. Other Democratic leaders have maintained the same doctrine, among them our own representative, Hon. Frank T. Shaw. They voted for the Mills bill. Is not that sufficient evidence that, in their judgment at least, it is not a protective measure?

---

George H. Hager, of Hagerstown, has been appointed postal agent on the Western Maryland Railroad, between Baltimore and Williamsport, vice John G. Carson, removed. And thus the beauties of Civil Service Reform are exemplified by the Cleveland administration. Mr. Carson was a faithful and efficient officer, and a consistent Republican.

Political Bulldozing.

Under this head the Advocate, last week, made a fierce attack upon the open letter of Messrs. England & Bryan, proprietors of the Schlosser Tannery, to Hon. Frank T. Shaw, published in the SENTINEL on the 5th of May last. For the purpose of bringing its contents afresh to the minds of the readers of the SENTINEL it is here reprinted, as follows:

PHILADELPHIA, April 25, 1888.

To the Honorable Frank T. Shaw,
House of Representatives,

RESPECTED SIR:—We notice that by the provisions of the Mills Tariff bill now before Congress, that it is proposed to place Glue on the Free List, and as this will very materially affect our industry at Tannery Station, Carroll county, in your State and district, we would respectfully call your attention to the evil effects of such a measure being passed.

If Glue is placed on the Free List, it will affect our Tanning business very seriously, and might have the tendency, in connection with other causes, to make us remove our plant from your State.

The Tanning business is carried on with an extremely close margin and uncertainty as to profits, and as all the offal from the hides must be utilized and not wasted in order to help pay expenses, taxes, etc., and as the heads, fleshings and other offal cut from the hides from which Glue is made is a very large item, anything calculated to reduce the price of this article would be a great loss to the tanner. Should Glue be placed on the Free List, this part of the income of the Tannery would be cut off, as Glue makers could not compete with foreign Glue. This, together with the fact that we are in a section of country where we are paying more for labor and bark than we could get both for should we remove our plant to another State, and as we employ quite a number of men at the Tannery, thereby bringing a considerable amount of money into circulation and helping the business of your district, we think it would be to the interest of your constituents that this bill, or rather the portion of the bill that would place Glue on the Free List, should not be passed, and we hope that you will use all your influence against it. It will give us pleasure to hear from you on the matter.

Respectfully yours,
ENGLAND & BRYAN.

On this letter the Advocate comments as follows:

"During the present canvass it is quite likely that manufacturers will try the closing of mills dodge to intimidate workmen, but such clap-trap is most too well understood to deceive anyone. In fact it has already been tried, and right here in Carroll, too. Messrs England & Bryan, of Philadelphia, owners of the Schlosser Tannery, a few miles from this city, a few months ago issued a circular stating that if glue was put on the free list they might move their plant to another State. The circular consisted of a letter to Representative Shaw. Instead of being sent to him alone, a number were printed and circulated. If the firm, in writing the letter, had an honest purpose in view, the letter would have been a private one, would have contained facts intended to convince Representative Shaw that glue should not be put on the free list in the Mills bill, and thus induce him to use his influence to have the duty restored. It was printed in circular form for circulation and its publication requested in the local papers, and this was done to influence the employes of the establishment and those who found a market for their bark at the tannery against the Democratic party. The humbuggery of the circular was apparent to everybody. If glue was put on the free list it would affect every other State the same as Maryland, then what advantage would it be to remove the plant to another State? None, and none knew it better than Messrs. England & Bryan. It is quite likely that this firm would like to move their plant to another State, or wish it already there, but the question of glue has nothing to do with it. We haven't the circular before us, but the real cause is hinted at in their circular to get cheaper labor and cheaper bark."

Now, the letter of Messrs. England & Bryan was written and published before the nomination of either of the Presidential candidates. It told a straightforward and plain story, the facts of which are perfectly susceptible of ample verification. It gave abundant reason for the objection of its authors to the Glue schedule of the Mills bill, and its force is not to be broken by the assumption that it was an attempt to bulldoze anybody. It made it perfectly clear that an important industry in this community, which furnishes employment, at good wages, to fifty or more persons, was imperiled by pending legislation. The Advocate is in error, we believe, in saying that it "was printed in circular form for circulation." The SENTINEL received a type-writer copy, and it was given circulation through the columns of this and other papers. The fact that it was made an open letter in nowise detracts from its force. There can be no possible reason why the public should not be fully informed of its contents.

It cannot be news to anybody that some localities offer better facilities than others for the tanning industry. An abundance of bark, for instance, in a community far removed from commercial centres, where, by reason of such distance, rates of living would be less and wages appreciably lower, would offer the manufacturer a better opportunity of gain than could be realized where bark is scarce, living dear and wages proportionately high. The Schlosser Tannery was established in this vicinity when bark, of a superior quality, was obtainable in large quantities. That day has passed, and part of the supply must now be obtained from a distance, at a heavy expense for freight. Messrs. England & Bryan are employing, at this time, not less than fifty men, at wages ranging from $1.00 to $2.75 per day. They have a large and expensive plant, the removal of which would entail a heavy outlay and loss. Under the circumstances they prefer to continue the manufacture of leather in this community, at a small margin of profit. But the destruction of the Glue industry, which is a large factor in their business, would seriously cripple their enterprise if continued here. Is it bulldozing to tell the Representative of the District and the people of the community these facts?

Of course the tanning business would suffer injury in every locality by the destruction of the value of the Glue-making material, but it would work peculiar hardship in the case of the Schlosser Tannery, for the reasons stated. Is there any good reason why the people to be injured should not know the fact?

Messrs. England & Bryan expend not less than $20,000 per annum, at the Schlosser Tannery, for labor alone, not to speak of the large outlay for bark and other materials. The whole community is benefitted by the enterprise, and the proposition to cripple it is only one little feature of the many vicious details of the Mills bill. As very forcibly shown by its detailed review in the New York Tribune, that measure is arranged to endanger and destroy many an American industry that cannot exist without protection. It is not likely the masses of the people, whose interests are preserved and homes made happy by Protection, will be frightened into supporting the measure and voting for its instigator, Mr. Cleveland, because somebody calls it bulldozing to tell the public the plain, unvarnished facts of the case.

The New York Tribune is doing an excellent work by reviewing the provisions of the Mills bill in detail. This process reveals the free-trade character of the measure very forcibly, and utterly demolishes the claim made in some quarters that it is really a protective bill. The whole drift of the changes made, except in a few articles, is toward free-trade. Its enactment into law would be the direst misfortune that has befallen the people of the United States for many a day. Let it be buried beyond hope of resurrection by the election of a Republican President and a Congress thoroughly in accord with the principle of Protection.

Gen. Harrison on Woman's Wages.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 6th.—When the Kansas City Blaine Club called on Gen. Harrison to-day, Miss Abbie Burgess, one of the several ladies accompanying the club, in a graceful speech presented General Harrison with a beautiful satin badge, inscribed "The Kansas City Blaine Club Greets Their Next President, August, 1888."

Miss Burgess said she presented the souvenir as a representative of the working women of America, whom, she declared, were grateful for the industrial protection that enables them to earn better wages than can be obtained by their more unfortunate sisters in Europe. As the lady concluded, she stepped forward and pinned the badge on the General's breast amid thunders of applause. General Harrison was visibly affected by the incident, and, paternally addressing Miss Burgess as "My young friend," he expressed his grateful appreciation of the souvenir, said that the women of the land could never be forgotten. To those of them who are toilers for their daily bread the first thought goes out in considering the question that involves depreciation of wages, and concluded by declaring that if cheaper coats and cheaper garments were to be had by still further reducing the wages of the sewing women of America, then he was not in favor of cheaper apparel.

As the General concluded his remarks, an enthusiastic visitor cried out, "God bless Gen. Harrison," which was warmly applauded and followed by three cheers.

Levi P. Morton Not a Railroad Director.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Concerning Mr. Levi P. Morton's reported retirement from the board of directors of the Canada Pacific Railway Company, inquiry at the office of Morton, Bliss & Co. this afternoon elicited the statement that Mr. Morton was elected a director about a year ago to fill a place temporarily in the board until a selection was made of a suitable Canadian director. Since that election, he has never, even in a single instance, attended a meeting of the board or exercised any of the functions of a director. His resignation was forwarded to the board in the early part of the summer, and his place will be filled at tomorrow's meeting in Montreal.

The Inman Line steamship City of New York, with Mr. Blaine on board, had not arrived up to Thursday night. Notwithstanding this fact, however, a monster parade occurred in honor of the distinguished statesman, and was reviewed by the Republican candidate for Vice-President, Hon. Levi P. Morton. The Young Men's Republican Club, of Baltimore, was in line, and made a splendid appearance. Cheers and waving of handkerchiefs greeted the Maryland boys continuously. A despatch from New York yesterday morning stated that the steamship having Mr. Blaine on board was sighted south-west of Fire Island at 1.15 A. M.

Democrats for Harrison.

The procession of Democrats from Cleveland to Harrison still continues. Our weekly review includes the following:

L. L. Dean, senior member of the firm of L. L. Dean & Co., of the Park Knitting Mills, of Amsterdam, New York.

Levi J. Deland, Ex-Assemblyman, of Monroe county, New York, who was also a former Democratic county-committeeman.

A battalion at Rochester, N. Y., composed of 127 veteran Democrats, now organized for Harrison.

Harris Greenwold, one of the wheelhorses of Democracy in Schoharie county, New York.

A. Snyder, of Mercer county, Pa., a heavy wool grower, now 81 years old, who has always voted the Democratic ticket.

Richard D. Gibney, of Chester county, Pa., a prominent farmer, who has always taken an active part in politics, as an earnest Democrat. He says he cannot follow his party in the program that has occasioned so much pleasure to the English.

J. F. Bowen, superintendent of the Coatesville, Pa., gas works. He says he wishes to vote for the good of America, not for England.

James Farley, an intelligent working man, who has always voted with the Democrats, but says it is time the workingmen were learning who are their friends.

Michael Hanna, an influential Democrat, of New Castle, Pa. He is an ironworker and has been a devoted Democrat all his life, but declares that careful study of the Mills bill has convinced him that his own interest and that of his employes forbids him to follow that party any further.

Hiram Parks, a farmer, of Mahoning township, Lawrence county, Pa., a pillar of Democracy among the farmers in that region. He wants wool protected and will vote for Harrison and Morton.

Marsh H. Tucker, a prominent real estate agent, of Elizabeth, New Jersey, who has voted the Democratic ticket for forty-five years. He says, "I have voted the Democratic ticket for over forty-five years and of course voted for Mr. Cleveland four years ago; but I am disgusted with him and his free-trade notions and will vote for Harrison and Morton."

E. P. Noell, of Shiremanstown, Pa., a Democrat who voted for Van Buren in 1840, and has been an influential member of that party ever since, now says he can no longer stand free-trade and will therefore vote for Harrison.

Major M. R. Zahniser, of Mercer county, Pa. He was a candidate on the Democratic ticket, for the Pennsylvania Assembly, in 1884, a Union veteran and always a staunch Democrat. He rebels against the free-trade proclivities of Mr. Cleveland and his party.

F. Falkenburg, druggist; Simon Turk, clothing merchant; A. L. Coffin, bookkeeper in the Erie Railway despatcher's office; Charles McGuire, hardware merchant; James Gray, a leading citizen; John McGreevy, grocer; John Kennally, boot and shoe merchant, and Dennis Hefferman, hotel keeper, all of Hornellsville, Steuben county, New York. These men were prominent in Democratic circles, but the free-trade movement of their party has driven them to the support of Harrison and Morton.

John Terwilliger, of Elmira, New York, a veteran of the Mexican war. He has been a Democrat for fifty years, but is now doing good work for Harrison and Morton.

The Hancock Legion, an association of old soldiers, which did good work for Cleveland at Elmira, New York, four years ago, is now hopelessly divided and a large number of them have declared for Harrison and Morton, and for Protection to home industries.

There seems to be a widespread revolt against Cleveland and free-trade in the towns along the Erie Railroad, between Hornellsville and Buffalo. At Jerusalem, Yates county, fourteen pronounced Democrats have joined a Harrison and Morton Club.

W. J. McCrea, a prominent young Democratic politician, of Renovo, Pa. His defection from Cleveland to Harrison has caused quite a commotion in Democratic circles, as he is a young man of decided influence in politics. His change was caused by hostility to free-trade.

Edward Dundon, an extensive lumber dealer, of the same place. He is an Irish-American who believes in Protection and will therefore vote the Republican ticket.

Gen. James A. Walker, of Wytheville, Va. This is a valuable recruit. He has been Democratic Lieut.-Governor of Virginia and is a man of large influence. He says he cannot stand free-trade and will vote the ticket of the party that stands by Protection. He thinks Southwestern Virginia will vote strongly for Harrison and Morton.

Ex-Judge William J. Beacon, C. J. Everett and Col. Eastman, Republicans of Utica, New York, who voted for Cleveland in 1884, are now earnestly for Harrison, and say that Oneida county will return to her old-time Republican majority, every Independent in the county, as far as it can be ascertained, being solid for the Chicago nominees.

William Sheurer, of Cape May, New Jersey, a cigar manufacturer and dealer. He was a Union soldier and cannot stand Cleveland's pension vetoes; but he is also dissatisfied with the tax on tobacco, which the Democrats have persistently refused to remove, and has determined to vote for Harrison. He has been an active and influential Democrat.

Patrick Donahue, an active Democratic politician, of Elizabeth, New Jersey. He is a well-known contractor and political boss of the fourth ward of Elizabeth. He says there are many Democrats around him who will vote for Harrison and Morton, as he intends to do. There are eight of them under his own roof. They cannot stand English free-trade for America.

Dr. C. F. Hitchner, a large real estate owner, of Elmer, New Jersey. He has heretofore been a prominent Democrat, but being interested in several co-operative factories is bitterly hostile to free-trade. He will vote for Harrison and Morton.

Ex-Mayor Samuel C. Breth and Ex-School Director Charles E. Fettinger, of Altoona, Pa. These gentlemen have both been prominent leaders in the Democratic party for years. They have declared their purpose to vote for Harrison and Morton. There are 5700 employes in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona that will run up a tremendous Protection majority this year.

But thy memory will be cherished
Till we see thy heavenly face.
