FOOD CONTROL VS. RECLAMATION.

(From the New York World)

In discussing the farmer's troubles, Jared Van Wagenen, Jr., a farm leader in New York State, has this to say in the September number of Farm and Fireside about the problem of over production:

I cannot think of anything funnier than the fact that we wrestle at Washington, on the one hand, with the problem of marketing an unwieldy surplus and at the same time continue our efforts to bring water to arid lands. Whatever else we do, we can at least adopt this policy: That all efforts at reclamation be held in abeyance.

Heretical at this may appear to Western Chambers of Commerce, there is wisdom in it. And the suggestion is especially timely at this moment, when there is a definite movement on foot to link new reclamation projects with the immediately urgent problem of flood control. Ex-Senator Stanfield of Oregon is now actively campaigning for a combination of flood control with irrigation and power development. Last week the Pacific States realtors in convention assembled passed a resolution declaring that flood control and reclamation were one and the same problem. In this case, it should be noted, the demand for reclamation did not come from farmers.

All of this shows which way the wind is blowing. Western landowners are trying to cash in on the troubles of the Mississippi Valley. The next Congress should be carefully watched for signs of obstruction and log-rolling while flood relief is under consideration.

WEDDING NOTES

COMEGYS—HEDGER

St. Andrew's P. E. Church, Wilmington, was the scene of a wedding of interest Saturday afternoon when Miss Nathalie W. Comegys, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Comegys and the late G. Spencer Comegys, became the bride of F. Howard Hedger, of Brooklyn, formerly of Wilmington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Richard W. Trapnell, rector of the church. The bride given in marriage by her cousin, Joseph Cochrane Griffith ,of Drexel Hill, Pa. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Mary Elizabeth Comegys, and her little niece, Janet Bolton, of Hillside, N. J., was flower girl and strewed rose petals in the bride's path. Alfred Turner was best man and the ushers were Herbert McNinch and Courtland F. Denney.

The wedding gown an imported model of white chiffon made over silk crepe. Her shower bonquet was composed of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. A reception at the home of the bride's mother followed the service, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hedger left on a wedding trip by motor through Maryland stopping in Chestertown.

Mrs. Hedger is a graduate of Chestertown High School and lived in Kent county and Chestertown until 1918 when she moved to Wilmington. Mr. Hedger is a graduate of the University of Delaware, having graduated with the degree of chemical engineer, and received his M. S. degree during the past year.

A wedding of interest here was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marcy Bayne Philips, 3909 Brookline Avenue, Baltimore, when their daughter, Dorothy was given in marriage to Mr. Wm. Tomlinson Smith, son of Mrs. Belle Smith and the late William Smith, of Chestertown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Wise, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Forest Park, Batimore, at an alter erected for the occasion. Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed on their honeymoon after which they will make their new home in Louisville, Kentucky, where Mr. Smith is in the banking business.

FAT MEN ARE HONEST.

It is always a comfort to find the latest discoveries of science confirming the teachings of the past, says the London Times. It is many a long year since great Caesar exclaimed, together with many other reverberating things, "Let me have men about me that are fat." Now from the National Surety Co., of New York comes the amen of exact science. Mr. William Shakespeare the poet is supported by Mr. Harry Huff the actuary, who brings facts and figures to show that fat men are in cold mathematical truth a more honest lot than thin ones. The surety company is accustomed to insure churches against the risk those who collect or guard their funds will go off with them, to insure business houses against defaulting accountants, and in general to accept premiums to cover loss through the unreliability of other people. It has watched and measured human probity for many years. It praises the honesty of other large classes—women, the married in general, Chinese. But it has a special word for the stout.

Fat men will be relieved, if surprised, to learn that their great prototype Falstaff would have been a good insurance risk in New York. A man of such genial dimensions could always be trusted where money was concerned. Fat men tend to be modest, perhaps in apology for taking up so much room, but generally because they do not feel the need for asserting themselves or for making the earth realize they are on it. —

—Washington Post.

SUMMER GRAIN RAISES WINTER YIELD OF MILK

Dairymen usually cannot count on summer as a time of extremely high milk production. As the lactation period advances for fall calv'ng cows, there is the natural shrinkage in milk flow, and to this hot, dry and unfavorable weather may materially contribute.

Rairy authorities urge owners to regard the summer months, however, as a sort of "training" period during which these cows should be put in the best possible health and condition for fall and winter. Indeed, they really require good care and feeding in summer, though, as arule, they actually get far less at this time than at any other.

Right after awinter of heavy production, when cows are again in calf, is not the time to put them on diet of grass alone, because it will not give them nourishment enough to keep up their own condition, grow their calves, and alsoproduce milk.

It is for this reason more than any other that the best feeding authorities regard a daily grain ration as the best feed investment a dairyman can make in summer. They emphasize the fact that "grass alone is not enough"—that no cow can possibly eat enough pasturage straight through the summer to get the nourishment she needs.

Of course, it would be folly to advise any dairyman not to use the pasture that nature provides. When grass is plentiful and fresh, it is the best possible ration to supplement grain. Cows like it. It tones them up and stimulates thedigestive apparatus.

But that dairyman is unwise who feeds pasture to the exclusion of grain, for sooner or later the insufficient diet is going to show its bad effects on body weight, condition and milk flow. Feed your cows at least ont pound of grain for each five pounds of milk they produce, even with the best pasture. It will pay dividends later in the year.
