The weather during the last week has been a fruitful topic of conversation. On Saturday there was rain, hail and snow in this city and elsewhere in the county. On Sunday a heavy frost prevailed, and on Thursday one much more severe. It has been quite cold during the entire week, making fires and overcoats a necessity. The cold has extended all ever the country and has considerably mitigated the fever epidemic at Jacksonville, Florida.

It has been a number of years since it sold at that figure. There is a probability that these and possibly still higher prices will be maintained. We hope our farmers will be prepared by sowing a large acreage, this season, to reap the advantage that may accrue from this state of things next year.

Thomas Harden, alias Hardy, the jail breaker, has been making another effort to escape from durance. Sheriff Fringer and his Deputy, Wm. F. Tyler, have been watching him closely, and discovered, one day last week, that he had cut the rivets of the irons on his limbs. He said it was done with a watch spring converted into a saw by George Blakeslee, an itinerant watch-mender, who was in jail on a peace warrant. For greater security he was re-ironed and placed in another cell. On Saturday Deputy Tyler found in the bed, previously occupied by the prisoner, a rope manufactured out of the blankets of the bed, which had been torn into strips for the purpose, and at the end of which was an iron hook made of a piece of an old poker. This was intended to be used in scaling the wall. It is extremely probable that this slippery individual will be kept securely until the court disposes of the charges against him, notwithstanding his persistent efforts to escape.

The sad news was conveyed, by telegram, to the relatives of John S. Mills, formerly of this city, on Sunday last, that his wife, Miss Annie Cecilia Mills, had died at her home in Washington, D. C., at 2 o'clock on the morning of that day. Mrs. Mills' death was caused by typhoid fever, and was very unexpected, as no apprehension of a fatal termination of the disease was felt until within a day or two of her demise. She was ill about ten days. She leaves two children, a son of 5 years and a little daughter about one year old.

John Knight a blacksmith and small farmer, of the vicinity of Warfieldsburg, died, very suddenly, on Wednesday afternoon. He ate a hearty dinner and, with a youth who was assisting him, went to the barnyard to load manure. He was conversing with his companion who was working on the opposite side of the wagon, when he suddenly reeled and fell to the ground. Assistance was obtained and he was taken to his house and a physician called, but death ensued in four hours. The cause of death was apoplexy. Mr. Knight was about 70 years of age. He was well known in this city, and was an industrious and worthy citizen. He leaves a family.

"The Wrens" were greeted with a full house, on the occasion of the entertainment given for the benefit of the Westminster Fire Department, on Wednesday evening last. The program was of the dramatic order, and included the dramatic contrast of "Sweethearts," written by W. S. Gilbert; a selection, "At Home," in the "Lights and Shades of Life," and a comedy, "Outwitted," or "All on Account of Eliza." The several parts in these plays were performed by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Wren, and John J. Pallas. Arthur C. Pell presided at the organ, which was from the establishment of J. Geiselman & Son. The Fire Department realized about $28 from the net proceeds.

In the distribution of the State public school tax, Comptroller Baughman has accorded Carroll county the sum of $3,398.55 for white schools, and $291.88 for colored schools—total, $3,690.43. At the same time the counties of Charles, St. Mary's and Calvert, which, combined, have a basis of taxation not much more than half that of Carroll county, received in the aggregate $9,108.31. Of course the distribution is correctly made, but the fact stated is a forcible illustration of the difference between high and low assessments of property. Southern Maryland can well afford a high rate on a low assessment, when by that method she is able to skim the cream from the State school fund.

Death of Roy Buckingham.

Roy M., eldest son of Mrs. S. K. Herr and the late Capt. Harry Buckingham, died at the residence of Col. S. K. Herr, East Main street, this city, on Saturday morning last, in the 12th year of his age, after an illness of just three weeks, of typhoid fever. Roy was an exceedingly attractive boy and his death is a severe affliction to Col. and Mrs. Herr, Mr. and Mrs. N. I. Gorsuch, his grand-parents, and other loving relatives. To a boy's buoyant and exuberant spirits he united thoughtful and studious habits and displayed marked talent, which gave promise of a bright and successful future. With a character already founded upon sound principles his friends had just reason to hope for him a life of eminence and usefulness. But the dark curtain of death has fallen and shut out the glowing picture. Another picture rises to the vision of faith, however, more beautiful than earth can paint. It is the little disciple of Jesus transferred from the cross and the conflicts of an earthly existence to the triumphs and glories of the celestial home. When nearing death and told that the end was at hand, he displayed no dread or apprehension. He was at his own request received, in his dying hour, into the membership of the M. E. Church and then quietly sank to rest and passed from the Church Militant to the Church Triumphant. He was a member of the "Boys' Meeting," and his name was, in fact, the first enrolled on the lists of that organization, as he is also the first to be called from its ranks by death. His remains were interred by the side of his noble father, in Westminster cemetery, on Tuesday afternoon, after funeral services in Centenary M. E. Church, by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Cooper, assisted by Rev. C. A. Reid. The pall bearers were Lewis Buckingham, of York, Pa., F. K. Herr, Hugo E. Fiddis, Wm. H. Bell, Wm. M. Cross and John E. Hanna.

Unveiling the Fountain.

The fountain procured for the diamond at the West End, was dedicated and unveiled with appropriate ceremonies on Saturday afternoon last. City Bailiff, Alexander Klinedinst, was master of ceremonies and the fountain was unveiled by two little girls, Ida May, daughter of Eli Snyder and May, daughter of Allen Friss; and the water was turned on by Clara, daughter of Ephraim Bankert. After these ceremonies very interesting addresses were delivered by Wm. A. Cunningham and B. F. Crouse, Esq's. That of the first named gentleman was facetious, witty and eloquent by turns and was highly enjoyed by the three or four hundred persons present on the occasion. Mr. Crouse reviewed briefly and succinctly the progress of improvement in our beautiful little city and made some witty and telling allusions to incidents connected with the fountain enterprise. The Westminster Band added zest to the affair by playing a number of beautiful selections in excellent style. The ladies who have been indefatigable in their efforts to procure this beautiful ornament for the Western section of the city are to be congratulated on the success of their endeavors and are entitled to the hearty thanks of the community. The fountain is of cast iron, 6 feet in height, surmounted by the figure of a child. It has two basins, the lower of which is 6 feet in diameter and the upper 3 feet.

For the SENTINEL.

The Village of Mexico.

BRUMMEL, October 1st, 1888.

ED. SENTINEL.—Observing that descriptions of some of our Carroll county towns are appearing in the SENTINEL, it has occurred to me to give a brief sketch of our little village, Mexico. It is so named in honor of one of our old citizens, a hero of the Mexican war. It is 2½ miles from Cranberry station, Western Maryland Railroad, and is situated on an elevated ridge, over 1000 feet above the level of the sea. From an eminence above the village there is a grand and picturesque view, stretching from Sugar Loaf mountain far beyond the famous Round Top at Gettysburg. There are nine houses in the village, and the business industries are a general merchandise store, a hotel kept in an excellent manner, where our hospitable young landlord accommodates the traveling public; and a bone mill which is doing a good business. Our citizens are, in fact, all enterprising people. Politically the Republicans have a majority of one.

The Blue Mountain Express and Penmar Excursion trains have been discontinued for the season. The travel has been exceptionally large, notwithstanding much unfavorable weather. The attractions of Penmar have drawn nearly one hundred and twenty-five thousand excursionists during the summer just ended; while the Blue Mountain House has been liberally patronized by those seeking a resort where beauty of scenery and a pure and health giving atmostphere combine to give assurance of benefit and pleasure. In every particular Penmar as a pleasure ground and Blue Mountain as a summer resort cannot be excelled anywhere in the country.

Letter from Miss Mary B. Shellman.

The SENTINEL is permitted to publish the following interesting letter from Miss Mary B. Shellman, written to the Republican Club of this city:

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Sept. 23, 1888.

To the Republican Club, Westminster, Md.:

I promised several members of the Club to write to them after I reached Indianapolis, but I really have not had time, and I think I will combine my letters into one and tell you some of the impressions made upon me during my Western trip. I left Westminster on Saturday afternoon, September 8th, with nothing of importance to mark the ride. However, on Sunday morning after I reached Camden Station, Baltimore, and heard the martial strains of Wilson Post Band, and the cheers of the assembled crowd bidding us "God speed" on our journey, I caught the spirit of the hour and began to enjoy myself; and every moment has been pleasant and full of variety, too, excepting politically, and that has been all sameness but not monotonous. It was "Hurrah for Harrison!" then, and all along the route, and it is "Hurrah for Harrison!" every moment of the day since I have been in Indiana. Some of our Democratic friends said before I left home that Indiana might be a doubtful State. Tell them it is doubtful, very doubtful—for Cleveland. We reached Columbus on Monday morning, September 10th, not very tired, and full of enthusiasm. Cold must be the heart that would not be fired with enthusiasm at the sight of that magnificent column of battle-scarred veterans with their tattered and blood-stained banners. The procession was five and a half hours in passing a given point and made one feel that even though a foreign foe might visit our shores, there is life in the old land yet, and muscle enough to give blow for blow. And how the old soldiers do love Gen. Harrison. Delegation after delegation from all over the country, from Maine to California put themselves to the inconvenience of coming miles away from their regular course to pay their respects to him. I have not the time to tell you all I saw and heard in Columbus; but I can say this much—we need have no doubt of the soldier vote; it is solid for Harrison. I wore a Maryland ribbon on my hat, and I had an ovation from the time I reached Columbus until I left. I can never forget the pleasant greetings given me from men representing every State in the Union. I was covered with badges and trophies because I was from Maryland. I used to think that Maryland was a little State, but I have come to the conclusion that she furnished half the citizens of the United States. It was "Maryland, my Maryland" and "Please let me shake a Maryland hand" from morning until night. The pleasantest and most cordial greeting I received was from a California delegate—the State in which our Democratic friends say Harrison stock is so much below par. I was wearing a Harrison badge when I met him on the stairway of Wells Post Headquarters and I can never forget his, "Maryland, God bless you, nd a Harrison badge from Maryland? Shake ands." Oh, I could make a regular stump peech I am so full of Harrison enthusiasm. ut how can I help it? The last reception I ttended was that of the Woman's Relief orps, and there I had the pleasure of meeting nd greeting, and listening to the speeches of enator Warner, of Missouri, Govs. Foraker nd Beaver, Alger and Thayer and Fairchild, red. Grant, the son of the hero of Appomatox; Warner Miller, the next Governor of New ork, and others whose names alone inspire nthusiasm. But let me hurry away from olumbus or I will never get through.

My first evening in Indianapolis, Saturday, eptember 14th, I spent with the Hon. James . Black at a reception of the Irish American lub of Chicago, where I heard several excelnt speeches. If you could have heard the nthusiasm you would not be afraid to trust e Irish vote. "It's all right!" On Monday vening I attended the reunion of the exrisoners of war at Tomlinson Hall, a magnifint Hall seating between four and five thound people. It is not a political organization d is composed of men from every State in e Union; but no one could be there and lisn to the all-pervading sentiment ringing rough every speech, and then doubt for a oment that Harrison will get the solid vote the organization. But time and space prents my saying much more. I will pass over e ovations given to Gen. Harrison every day, elegations of one, two and three hundred at time, old men and young, all fired with enusiasm, and with one object in view, to reet the next President and assure him that He's all right." I am staying but a few doors om him, and I hear martial music and cheers om early morning until late at night. The eneral is standing the strain wonderfully ell, and his charming wife takes every heart y storm. Mrs. Cleveland may be beautiful nd charming and her fair face be lovely to ok upon, but when Mrs. Harrison takes her ace as the first lady of the land, we will ever have reason to blush for her. She is qually at home in the drawing room and at e bedside of the poor and afflicted. She is a ypical American woman and will grace any osition she is called upon to fill. Yesterday fternoon I visited them in their own home, d was most cordially received. I saw all e relics and tokens of remembrance which ave been sent him from all parts of the ountry. I told him we intend to try and ve him more than a shooting cracker from aryland; to which he replied, "What? 20,000 emocratic majority?" I said, "No; we hope make it at least 2 Republican." He exessed the hope that we may soon say in uth, "Maryland, my Maryland." A large elegation from Chicago, composed of comercial travellers, came over Saturday afteron. They brought with them a large carpet ck labeled "Orders from the firm. Vote for arrison." The bag was filled with the cards prominent business firms all over the State d country. I have only a few minutes time ft to tell you I heard Anna Dickinson on aturday night. Tomlinson Hall was filled, otwithstanding the Democrats had a mass eeting and procession. They hired some en at $5 apiece to fire a cannon near by, t it did not disturb Anna in the least. When e first report came she said, "Is that Democratic music?" When told that it was she plied, "All the powers of the lower regions n not silence the voice of liberty and jusce." To the second report she said, "Let em thunder now. We will thunder back a ply on the 6th of November that will shake e whole country." And again just as she d been describing the slavish condition of e working man in the South a louder report was heard and with a tragic gesture she xclaimed, "And the Democratic cannon reponds Amen." And with this I will say ood-bye. When I come home I will be ready o be interviewed and can talk Harrison and Protection from morning until night. With ind regards to all, and a cheer for Harrison nd Morton, believe me sincerely

Your Friend,

MARY BOSTWIC SHELLMAN.

Obituary.

At Middletown, Pa., Wednesday evening, September 5th, Mrs. Salome F., wife of Rev. H. C. Holloway, D. D., quietly and peacefully fell asleep in the Lord. She was the daughter of Rev. F. E. Vandersloot, of Herndon, Va., and was born at Dillsburg, York county, Pa.

While she was yet a child, her father moved to Gettysburg, where she resided until her marriage, October 6th, 1863. Her wedded life lacked one month of twenty-five years. During her residence at Gettysburg, many of the students of the College and Seminary became acquainted with her, and still remember her as a lady possessing many excellent qualities, and will learn of her death with sorrow.

Appropriate services were held at the parsonage on Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, when the writer of this tribute preached the sermon; based on Heb. iv. 9. On Monday morning her remains were taken to Gettysburg, and laid to rest in Evergreen Cemetery, in the hope of a joyful resurrection.

There is much that is praiseworthy in the character and life of Mrs. Holloway. The common verdict of all who knew her is, "She was a good woman." The life which she lived was "by the faith of the Son of God." From her childhood she was a Christian. This is the secret of her amiable and useful life. She was a great lover of God's word, which she read frequently and thoughtfully. From a note in a Bible presented to her mother in 1874, we learn that she had then already read the Bible through in regular order eight times. Her religion was not a mere profession, but a life. The mind of Christ was in her. In her home, in the church, and in social life, it was evident that she had been with Jesus and learned of Him. The spirit of faith and charity was visible in her conduct. In her lingering and painful sickness the power of grace was especially manifest. Through it all she was patient, submissive and trustful. Those who visited her during her sickness felt that she was supported by an unseen power, and were deeply impressed with her wonderful patience and resignation. As her end drew near, the light of life seemed to gain on her soul. After having calmly spoken her parting words to her husband and to each of her children, she peacefully fell asleep. Thus sublimely ended a "meek and quiet life," which was "full of mercy and good works." There are many throughout the church who deeply sympathise with her bereaved husband and children. The Lord sustain and comfort them. H.
