THE TRANSCRIPT

THE NEW YEAR

Before another issue of the paper the New Year 1928 will have dawned upon us. There will no doubt as usual, be many new resolutions made by many of us. These resolutions will be made in good faith and many of them will be carried out, while many, perhaps will be broken, therefore lets be careful and not make too rash resolutions; but when once made lets be equally careful to be true to our promise and carry out that obligation. To all patrons and readers of this paper we extend our greetings and hope the year 1928 will be a prosperous and happy one to you all.

KIDNAPS TAXI DRIVER

Winford Pleasonton, 18 years old, formerly of near Millington, now a sailor on the U. S. S. Utah, was arrested last week in Chestertown and turned over to the Delaware authorities on Monday of this week where he is being held on a charge of kidnapping.

According to Richard McGeachie, son of the Judge of the Orphans Court of Wilmington, Pleasanton hailed his cab at 11 p. m. Saturday evening and at the point of a pistol forced McGeichie to drive him to Chestertown where Pleasanton stated that he intended to kidnap a girl and rob a bank.

The cab driver endeavored to attract the attention of pedestrians on the trip but Pleasanton kept the gun pressed so hard against his ribs that he was afraid to call for help.

The cab was driven to the front of the Third National Bank and then up town where Pleasanton alighted and ordered McGeachie to wait for him. McGeachie then escaped and drove to Mr. P. C. Lee's garage where he nearly collapsed from fright and told his story. Mr. Lee quieted the boy and allowed him to call the Wilmington authorities, who in turn notified Sheriff Hadaway who arrested Pleasanton, finding the revolver on him.

After the Wilmington authorities finish with Pleasanton on the charge of kidnapping the Kent county authorities will hold him on a charge of assault and carrying concealed weapons.

It is the belief that Pleasanton's threat to kidnap a girl and rob a bank was made to scare the cab driver, and that he merely wished to come to Chestertown to spend Christmas with his sister who lives here.
