The Sentinel acknowledges the receipt, from Jno. H. Mitten, advertising agent, in Westminster, of Oehm's Acme Hall clothing establishment, Nos. 5 and 7, W. Baltimore street, Baltimore, of a large and beautifully illustrated calender for the year 1889.

Miss Grace Winfield Allen, daughter of S. L. Allen, of Grafton, W. Va., and niece of Mrs. Rev. A. H. Zimmerman, of this city, and Dr. John Webster Linthicum, of Baltimore, were married at St. Luke's P. E. Church, in the latter city, on Thursday last.

Messrs. Roop & Zile, seedsmen and florists, will occupy the new building, erected for their use, on Main street near the railroad, on Tuesday next, on which occasion they will have a flower show and display a magnificent collection of the choicest varieties.

Rev. Thos. H. Lewis, D. D., President of Western Maryland College, preached the sermon at the dedication of a new Methodist Protestant Church at Catoctin Furnaces, on Sunday last. Subscriptions and contributions on the occasion were sufficient to cover the remaining indebtedness on the structure.

Mrs. E. J. Rippard, proprietress of the Sentinel, acknowledges the receipt from Messrs. Roop & Zile, seedsmen and florists, of this city, of a beautiful boquet of carnation pinks, chrysanthemums, golden rod, &c., surrounding a magnificent lily. She desires to express her thanks for the courtesy.

Arthur, the little three-year-old son of W. E. B. Tipton, of Hampstead, while walking with his mother on Pennsylvania avenue, this city, last Saturday afternoon, fell and fractured his left arm at the elbow. It is apprehended that the accident will result in giving the child a permanently stiffened arm. Dr. E. D. Wells adjusted the fracture.

Charles Heird, of the vicinity of Mexico, was committed to the county jail on Monday last charged with threatening to kill his wife and child. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Tyler, whom he led a considerable chase before he could be captured. He acknowledged to Mr. Tyler that he threatened not only to kill his wife and child, but himself also.

The day set apart annually for national thanksgiving, by the Executive of the Nation, has been so generally observed in this community hitherto, that, it may safely be said, Thursday next, 29th inst., will be no exception to the rule. Religious services as is fitting will be held by most of the congregations in this city, and the occasion will be a legal holiday.

Peterson's Magazine for December is fully equal to the preceding numbers of the volume. This is saying much, as the improvement in the magazine is very marked. In fact it grows better from year to year and now excels all monthlies of its class, and ranks with the best in the country. Its subscription price is only $2.00 or two copies for 3.50. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Board of County Commissioners was in session on Monday and Tuesday last and transacted routine and general business. Among the proceedings was the appointment of Eli T. Bennett, John L. Lloyd, and James F. Rinker, as examiners to locate the new public road prayed by W. W. Naill and others, in New Windsor district. The Board adjourned to meet on Monday next and will be in session until Tuesday.

Young Tarner, news agent on the Western Maryland Railroad, who was shot in the arm, some time ago, by the accidental discharge of Harry Keen's gun, at the coal chute, near this city, visited Harry at his father, Jno. H. Keen's, last week, where he was kindly and hospitably ertertained, and spent a very pleasant day. He is rapidly improving and happily will at length recover the use of the injured arm.

A love-feast of the German Baptists was held at Benson Hall, Woodberry, Md., last Saturday, commencing at 2 P. M. The attendance was very large and every seat was occupied. The districts represented at the meeting were Beaver Dam, Pipe Creek, Sam's Creek and Meadow Branch. Among the Elders present were Jos. Lehman, of Illinois, Ephraim Stouffer, Uriah Bixler, David D. Bonsack, Emanuel Babylon, Joel Roop and others, of Carroll county; and J. F. Oller, of Pennsylvania.

Messrs. E. O. Grimes & Co., of this city, have placed in their warehouse, a "National Cash Register," a most ingenious machine for registering the receipts of sales. It is, in appearance, something like a type-writer of large dimensions. Some of the things it does is to record all cash sales, and, if required, all credit sales; prevent disputes between customers and clerks; make known errors in change, &c. It is simple in construction and easily operated.

A new map showing the lines of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway and its connections and branches, adorns the walls of the editorial sanctum of the Sentinel. It was presented by Jos. H. Krichton, who is the ticket agent of the Railway named, at Westminster, and, in addition to its advantages as an advertising medium for the company, is an excellent map of the States and Territories West of a line drawn South from the eastern line of Michigan.

Among the regulations governing the shipment of milk, on the Western Maryland Railroad, is a provision requiring each can to be "tagged with the name of consignee and destination plainly printed on both sides of tag, black ink being used for Fulton and red ink for Hillen" stations. The Sentinel office is prepared to print to order tags, for the purpose designated, plainly and neatly, in the colors required. Tags kept on hand, already printed, for dairies known to the office.

Christmas is of Ye Olden Times, and the first article in the Christmas Number of Harper's Magazine is therefore most appropriately of Ye Olden Time, too. "The Last Mass" is its title, and Walter Besant, the writer, puts the narrative in the mouth of a sweet English girl, who tells of her love and her lover, of Queen Bess, the Spanish Fleet, and an old Roman Catholic abbess, a relic of England under the Papacy. Those acquainted with Mr. Besant's style need no assurance that he has written a delightful sketch; those who do not know Mr. Besant in his books (if any there be) will be of this opinion as soon as they have read the story. There are many illustrations in it, and they are charming.

Several weeks ago the Sentinel stated, on the authority of the Baltimore daily papers, that Chas. F. Roop, of Keysville, had been granted an increase of pension as a disabled soldier of the war for the Union. Mr. Roop writes that the statement is incorrect and that he has not received an increase of his pension although justly entitled to it. The Sentinel regrets that an error was made by the authority from which the information was derived, both because such mistakes are always vexatious to the printer and because Mr. Roop is not as fortunate as he has been deemed by many persons who read the item referred to. It is to be hoped the increase may not be long delayed by the Pension Department.

On Wednesday afternoon Willie, a little son of Dr. E. D. Wells, of this city, was thrown from the wagon of Mr. J. J. Koller, one of the wheels of which passed over his ankle, bruising it severely. The wonder is that it was not crushed, as the wagon was heavily loaded. Willie had climbed on the wagon as he was returning from school, and his bag of books caught in the wheel and dragged him to the ground. The accident occurred in the vicinity of the Sentinel office into which the boy was immediately carried by the manager and one of the employes. It was soon discovered that he was not seriously injured and he was taken to the residence of Mr. F. H. Orendorff, where he was attended by Dr. F. T. Shaw.

Many members of the Methodist Protestant congregation, of this city, paid a visit to the parsonage, in a body, on Tuesday evening last, taking with them substantial tokens of their regard for their estimable pastor, in the shape of such articles as are needed in every household. The worthy Dr. Murray and his family were literally and truly surprised as they had received no intimation of the visit. Rev. J. T. Ward, D. D., was spokesman of the visitors, and his words of appreciation of the faithful and untiring efforts of Dr. Murray to advance the interests of the Church and the cause of Christ, were very gratifying to the esteemed minister, who responded in fitting terms to the remarks of Dr. Ward. It was a very pleasant affair and will leave kindly and enduring memories with all who participated in it.

Rev. S. B. Pond, who has been rector of Ascension P. E. Church of this city for a number of years, tendered his resignation on Wednesday, to take effect today. Mr. Pond has received a call to the Church of the Annunciation at Philadelphia, of which he will assume the pastorate December 2nd. Mr. Pond is a thorough churchman, a gentleman of pronounced and emphatic views in matters properly claiming his consideration and will make his individuality felt in any sphere to which he may be called. He carries with him to his new home the best wishes of a large circle of devoted friends.

Its Twenty-Fourth Year.

The Sentinel inadvertently omitted to notice, last week, that, with its issue of the 10th instant, the Democratic Advocate entered upon the 24th year of its publication. It is not yet too late, however, to tender congratulations upon the event and to say that the Advocate is well worthy the generous support accorded it by the Democratic party, which it supports with energy and ability, and, apart from politics, of the community generally in a business aspect. The Advocate is a good newspaper, well printed and ably conducted, and occupies a leading place among the local journals of the State.

Election of Officers.

With the beginning of the present month Carroll Chapter, No. 31, Royal Arch Masons, entered upon the second year of its existence. The officers for the new term are: Rev. James W. Reese, M. E. H. P.; Geo. R. Gehr, E. K.; Milton Schaeffer, E. S.; Prof. S. Simpson, Secretary; James A. Diffenbaugh, Treasurer; Chas. H. Baughman, C. H.; George E. Sharrer, P. S.; B. Frank Crouse, R. A. C.; Charles E. Goodwin, M. 3. V.; George E. Baughman, M. 2. V.; Prof. Thos. F. Rinehart, M. 1. V. and Organist. The administration of P. H. P., William A. Cunningham, just ended, has been able and successful, and he retires from his high office amid the well-earned plaudits of the Companions. The next convocation of the Chapter will be held next Tuesday evening, the 27th inst., when the degree of Most Excellent Master will be conferred on several candidates.

Death of David A. Owings.

David A. Owings, a well known farmer of the vicinity of Warfieldsburg, in this district, died, on Sunday last, of peritonitis. Mr. Owings had been ill for several months with typhoid fever, but was recovering, when peritonitis supervened and caused his death. He was aged 66 years, 8 months and 21 days. He was a well known citizen and had been one of the judges of election in Westminster district for about 20 years. His remains were interred in a burial lot on the farm on Tuesday. Mr. Owings' family has been severely and sadly afflicted during the last few months. His son Thomas B., aged about 18 years, died just a week previous to the father's death, after a long illness, of typhoid fever. Of the six surviving children two boys, aged 8 and 2 years, respectively, are now down with the fever, and very ill. Mrs. Owings has recently recovered from a similar illness, and other members of the family have also suffered with the same disease.

Meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge.

The Masonic Lodges of Carroll county were all well represented at the semi-annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, which was held at Masonic Temple, in Baltimore, this week, commencing on Tuesday evening. Among the representatives and past masters present, from this county, were Messrs. James A. Diffenbaugh, Charles E. Goodwin, B. F. Crouse and George E. Sharrer, of Door-to-Virtue Lodge, Westminster; Charles F. Falkenstein, of Lebanon Lodge, Manchester; John Decabaugh, of Freedom Lodge; James J. White, Plymouth Lodge, of Union Bridge. P. J. G. W., Wm. A. Cunningham, of Door-to-Virtue Lodge, was also in attendance. An interesting event in the proceedings of the Grand Lodge was the presentation to Grand Secretary, Jacob H. Medairy, of a Masonic silver Loving-Cup, in honor of the 25th anniversary of his faithful and efficient services in that station. The cup, which holds a gallon, was filled with wine, of which each member present took a sip. Bro. Medairy is held in high estimation by the craft, not only because of his untiring devotion to the duties of his office, but because of his unswerving integrity and many amiable and excellent personal qualities, and the gift of his brethren was a well-deserved tribute to his worth as a man and a Mason.

Gen. Thomas J. Shryock was elected, for the fourth term, as Grand Master; Sylvester L. Stockbridge was elected Deputy Grand Master; W. S. Keech, Senior Grand Warden; George Medairy, Junior Grand Warden; Jacob H. Medairy, Grand Secretary, for the 26th consecutive term; Wm. H. Shryock, Grand Treasurer.

Wedding Bells.

YOUNG—GEIMAN.

An interesting wedding occurred at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Jeremiah W. Geiman, in Cranberry Valley, near this city, last Tuesday afternoon. The contracting parties were Miss Mary B. Geiman and John H. Young, son of John Young, a well known and highly esteemed farmer of Uniontown district. The bride was dressed in cream Henrietta cloth and carried a boquet of Marshal Neil roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Annie Geiman, sister of the bride, and Miss Lizzie Geiman, cousin, Miss Fannie Brook, of Uniontown, and Miss May Stouffer, of Sam's Creek. The ceremony was performed by Elder Solomon Stoner, of the German Baptist Church, of Uniontown. The ushers were David Royer and Howard Geiman. About one hundred and fifty guests were present, among whom were Miss Lizzie Shoup, of Ohio; Misses Geiman and Emma Simpers, Virginia; Fannie Englar, Milton, and Abraham Snader, Sam's Creek; Emma Stoner, Alice and Arthur Englar, Wm. Caylor, Union Bridge; Ada Shorb, New Windsor; Misses Biggs, Mount Pleasant; Maggie Stoner, Abraham Geiman and family, John Royer and family, George Shaeffer and family, Misses Annie Warner, Laura Royer, Annie Cassell, Abby Stone, Scott Roop, David Crowl, Westminster; Misses Lizzie and Jesse Fuss, Miss Laura and Earnest Senseney, Linwood; Misses Emma, Mattie and Jessie Weybright, Double Pipe Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Young received a number of presents, and left for a trip to Virginia."

ENGLAR-STONER.

A very pretty and interesting wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. Samuel Stoner, the father of the bride, Trevanian, in this county, on Thursday. The bride was Miss Clara M. Stoner, and the groom Mr. Joseph L. Englar, of New Windsor. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. T. Valliant, D. D., pastor of the M. P. Church, Pipe Creek circuit. The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Englar, sister of the groom and the best man Mr. Lee Myers. The bride was handsomely arrayed in a gown of old rose satin, and wore a veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid was also attired in old rose satin. The ushers were Messrs. George B. Englar and B. Cookson. The bridal party entered the spacious parlor to the strains of Mendelsohn's Wedding March. About 75 guests were present. A reception and collation followed the marriage ceremony, after which the newly married pair were driven to Westminster where they took a train for Richmond and the South. Among the guests present were the bride's uncle, David Stoner, one of the Commissioners of Carroll county; John Stoner and wife, of Mechanicstown; John Babylon and wife, of Baltimore, and F. J. Devilbiss and wife, of New Windsor.

The Carroll County Teachers' Association.

The Carroll County Teacher's Association convened in Central Hall on Friday, November 16th, and was called to order at 10.30 A. M. by the President, Levi D. Reid. After prayer by J. Albert Angell, and a solo by Miss A. M. Mikesell, Miss Irene Everhart presiding at the organ, a very interesting essay was read by Geo. W. Hess, subject, "The importance of impressing on the mind of the child those portions of physiology which treat of the effects of alcohol and tobacco on the human body." Miss Ida Lockard then sang a solo, with organ accompaniment by Miss Maggie Lockard. An instructive essay, on "Errors of Teaching," was read by William W. Wilson, and was followed by a reading by Miss M. E. Gilis, which, as a reminiscence of a country schoolmaster and his school of a generation ago, caused great amusement, even while exciting pity for the unfortunates intrusted to his care. A vote of thanks was then extended by the association to those who had so pleasantly entertained it. This was followed by the Examiner's address on various topics requiring the attention of the teachers. The semi-annual examination of the pupils of the public schools of this county was announced to take place on November 26th, 27th and 28th. At the close of the address Miss Josephine Beaver made a short address in which humor and earnestness were pleasantly blended. Several questions were propounded to the Examiner, appertaining to school work, and these led to a lively interchange of ideas on various subjects connected with the same, in which the following teachers participated: Joel Ebaugh, John C. Nutting, Mrs. Marion R. Forney, Miss M. E. Gillis, Grove J. Shipley and C. H. Baughman. After roll-call the association adjourned. The attendance was large and the opinion prevailed that, though the program was brief, the essays were so well handled, the music so well rendered, and school affairs so thoroughly discussed that the session had proved both interesting and instructive.

The Union Mills Log Cabin.

The log cabin that appeared in the torchlight parade at Westminster, last Monday night, with the Union Mills delegation, and which was so favorably commented upon along the line of march, was built by Messrs. Martin Yingling, Sylvester Mathias, Louis E. Shriver, Aaron Burgoon, Harry Shriver, Harvey Tagg, Thomas Burgoon and several others. Chas. E. Nusbaum had charge of the six-horse team that hauled it to Westminster. The cabin was 8x10 feet square and about six feet high to the eaves. Its interior was very cozy, being furnished with carpet and chairs. Mr. Eli Bankert, an 1840 veteran, was given the seat of honor in the cabin, and the Republican ladies, whose voices made it merry and whose handerchiefs gaily waved from its crevices as the procession moved along, were Mrs. Daniel Frock, Misses Cora, Lizzie and Mamie Yingling, Lillie Lookingbill, Mollie Tagg and Ella Burgoon. Leander Mathias, Daniel Frock, Sylvester Mathias and Harvey Tagg were among the gentlemen that rode with the log cabin to see that everything went well with it. The time worn flag that floated from a staff on the rear of the wagon was one that was used at Union Mills in the Harrison campaign of 1840.

Union Bridge Celebrates the Victory with a Big Parade.

Friday evening of last week should be marked with a red letter in the annals of Union Bridge. The Republicans of that thriving little city, with the assistance of a number of their compatriots from Westminster, Uniontown, McKinstry's Mills, Middleburg, Linwood, New Windsor, Johnsville and other places, celebrated the Republican victory of the 6th inst.; and right nobly and royally was it done. A procession, bearing torches, banners and transparencies, paraded the streets, under the command of James J. White as chief marshal, with Wm. Wood, Harvey Caylor, Hammond Dern, Thomas Furney, Emanuel Stultz, Wm. J. Haines and Harry Miller as assistants. The delegation from Westminster numbering about 100 was under command of Mayor Milton Schaeffer and was accompanied by the Westminster Band. The McKinstry's Mills delegation, numbering upwards of 200, was under the command of W. R. Zumbrun, and was accompanied by the Oak Orchard and Sam's Creek Bands. Jas. P. Perry and George W. Wilson were the Marshals of the Middleburg, and Wm. B. Grimes of the Johnsville delegation. The visitors from other points were under the general direction of the chief marshal and his aids. The procession moved shortly after 7 o'clock, with citizens of Union Bridge in the van and lead by the Union Bridge Band. The citizens Æolian Band, of Union Bridge, was the next musical organization in line, and these, with the Bands previously mentioned filled the air with strains of stirring music. Many of the houses were not only brilliantly illuminated but tastefully decorated and presented a very handsome and attractive appearance. As the procession moved through the streets it was enthusiastically greeted by the crowds which lined the sidewalks, all apparently rejoicing in the occasion of the grand jubilee. Nothing, as far as could be learned, occurred to mar the pleasure of the celebration. No offensive, or unworthy demonstrations toward the defeated Democrats were made, and the greatest good humor prevailed throughout. The procession was dismissed at the rink, where a meeting was called to order by Mr. David Rinehart, who proposed the following officers: President, Wm. Wood; Vice-Presidents, D. Stem, Thomas Wright, Jos. Wolfe, Charles G. Miller, Wm. Zumbrun, Benj. Jones, Evan Smith, Joseph Englar; secretaries, Harvey Caylor and Harry Miller. Speeches were then made by Dr. J. J. Weaver, Jr., Harry M. Clabaugh, and Wm. L. W. Seabrook, after which the meeting adjourned and the people dispersed to their homes.

Middleburg Celebrates.

The Republicans of Middleburg were determined not to be outdone, in the matter of celebrating the recent victory, by their brethren of larger districts, and on Tuesday night rallied in great force and painted the village a vivid crimson in honor of the election of Harrison and Morton. They were assisted in the undertaking by delegations from Ladiesburg, Frederick county; Union Bridge and Taneytown. From the latter place came the Republican club in its strength, with banners and torches, making a beautiful display. The procession was formed about 8 o'clock and, headed by the Union Bridge Band, marched and countermarched, with blazing torches and waving banners, through the town. There were few houses unilluminated and the decorations were very pretty and tasteful. In the glare of the flaming torches the scene presented an exceedingly beautiful appearance. Grant Dayhoff was in line, riding the now famous bull that was in the Uniontown and Westminster parades.

The procession was under command of Charles H. Bowman, chief marshal, with Albert Stansbury, John Newman, Samuel Angel and Jacob Roop as aids. Franklin Bowersox was chief marshal of the Taneytown delegation, Edward Kempfer, John Kiser, aids. The procession was dismissed at R. L. Koons' store, where a meeting was called to order by Geo. W. Wilson, of the County Central Committee, and the following officers appointed: President, Dr. C. Birnie; Vice-Presidents, F. T. Birely, A. Koons, Jno. Buffington, Wm. Wood, Dr. J. Roop, John Smith, Samuel Fuss; Secretaries, R. L. Koons, Samuel Johnson, Martin Koons. Speeches were made by W. L. W. Seabrook, editor of the Sentinel, and A. Lincoln Wolfe, of Union Bridge. In view of the fact that most of those who participated in the demonstration were also at Union Bridge on the previous Friday night and at Westminster on Monday night, its success was simply surprising. In fact the people who voted for Gen. Harrison, or would have done so if they could have voted, never seem to tire of rejoicing in the great victory. This prolonged after election enthusiasm is something phenomenal, and indicates a deep current of feeling on the distinctive issue of the campaign. It is the voice of praise and thanksgiving, going up from American hearts, for the triumph of the great principle of protection.

Proceedings of Court.

Since last week's report the following, among other business, has claimed the attention of the court.

Robert. Green vs. David Miller, assumpsit. Tried before jury; verdict for plaintiff for $104. Bond and Thomas for plaintiff; McKellip & Clabaugh, and Maulsby for defendant.

On Tuesday Judge Jones arrived and took his seat on the bench. As no business was ready for the action of the petit jurors they were discharged until Monday next.

On Wednesday, after a highly creditable examination, Thos. O'N. Baumgartner, Esq., was admitted to practice at the bar of the court.

Up to Thursday 22 presentments were made by the grand jury,

Hammond Bros. vs. Emily J. Bassman. Two cases; tried before court; judgment for plaintiffs in one case for $169.25 and in the other for $143.77. Fink for plaintiffs; McKellip & Clabaugh for defendant.

Celebration at Winfield.

The Republicans of Winfield held a lively celebration of the election of Harrison and Morton, last Saturday night. The town was illuminated and a procession with torches and banners paraded the streets. Winfield has modestly said very little about the affair, but, from inquiries made in regard to it, we are convinced it was, in every way, a highly creditable demonstration. The decorations were handsome, the illumination brilliant and the procession large and enthusiastic. James Easton was chief marshal, David Cover and Fletcher A. Baile, assistants.

The Republican Jubilee.

The predictions of the weather bureau on last Sunday morning were not very reassuring to the Republicans of Westminster, whose jollification in honor of Harrison had been postponed from Thursday night of last week till Monday night of this week. But many hoped against hope that the portentous clouds that gathered in the sky on Sunday night would pass away and Monday dawn with bright sunshine. They were sadly disappointed. The drip, drip, drip of falling rain was the first sound that greeted them as they awoke from their night's slumbers, and another postponement was sadly contemplated. The committee of arrangements, however, met and promptly resolved to proceed with the jubilee regardless of the weather. Messages were sent to the outlying districts, and thus the people were advised of the purpose to celebrate, rain or shine. Considering all the circumstances and hindrances operating to defeat the project, it proved a decided and gratifying success.

The principal feature of the program, it was anticipated, would be the torchlight procession. This was, of course, diminished in proportions, as many hundreds who expected to participate were prevented from doing so by the inclement weather. It was, however, very creditable in numbers and imposing in appearance, the flashing torches, extending along many squares, presenting a scene of rare attraction and beauty. The procession was formed under the chief marshalship of Colonel Wm. A. McKellip, with these aids: Whitfield Stansbury, John E. Buffington, Charles C. Currens, Harry H. Brough, James Easton, Levi Frizzell, Charles P. Baile, Geo M. Prugh, Charles Merryman, Joseph D. Brooks, William B. Thomas, Harry M. Clabaugh, Phillip J. Babylon and Arthur Smith.

It marched in three divisions, the first of which was under the command of Chas. E. Goodwin, marshal, assisted by Wm. A. Shriver, D. K. Shriver, O. D. Gilbert, E. D. Bowersox, F. C. Sharrer, Jno. H. Cunningham, Joshua Gist, Jos. I. Gist, James Hook, Chas. Wampler and Wm. S. Gladhill. First came the Westminster Band, and then a group of the veterans of 1840 who voted for General William Henry Harrison. These were in two carriages in the first of which rode Messrs. John Smith, of Wakefield, Jesse Yingling, Joshua Scrivener and Chas. W. Webster, and in the second Messrs. Judge Issac C. Baile, Henry Baile and Wm. Lawyer. They were accompanied by Mayor Milton Schaeffer Wm. L. W. Seabrook, editor of the Sentinel, and Samuel Roop, of Westminster; Hon. Henry Stockbridge, Jr., and Henry Lingenfelter, of Baltimore city. These were followed by a brigade of boys, carrying Chinese lanterns, under command of Jno. H. Mitten, with these aids: J. Edwin Weaver, George Batson, Ezra J. Yingling and D. H. Frizzell. The Westminster Republican Club, with a beautiful banner bearing the portraits of Harrison and Morton, and carrying many other devices, formed a portion of the footmen in this division. A delegation from the Tannery followed under the command of James S. Baer, carrying a large stuffed owl, with a Cleveland and Thurman bandanna hung to its feet; and a banner with the words on it "Glue will Stick." This delegation was composed of workingmen and was much admired for its grand display. Next came the visitors from Baltimore, whose appearance awakened much enthusiasm, and they in turn were followed by citizens of Westminster and every portion of the county on foot. A battalion of colored men followed, under the command of David Ireland, with Alfred Bruce, Richard N. Brown, John Snowden, Wm. Lowrey and Reuben Walker as aids, and then came delegations from Westminster, Manchester and Hampstead districts, all either mounted or in carriages and wagons.

The second division, under N. G. Harden, marshal, with E. J. Lawyer, Percy Shriver, Frank Reese, D. L. Farrar, Wm. R. Anders, Austin H. Geiselman, Charles Stitely, James Stoner and Ezra Shue as aids, comprised the clubs and delegations from Woolery's, Freedom, Franklin and Mt. Airy districts. All were mounted or in vehicles, quaintly and appropriately decorated.

The third division was commanded by Jno. G. Shunk, marshal, with Harry C. Keefer, Wm. F. Tyler, Jno. T. Anders, Edward S. Baile and Geo. E. Lippy, aids. It embraced delegations from Taneytown, Uniontown, Myers', Middleburg, Union Bridge and New Windsor districts, all mounted or in carriages and wagons. These delegations were from a portion of the county that gives a net Republican majority of about 400.

Some confusion occurred in moving the procession in consequence of the wretched condition of the streets, but it was finally put in motion and stretched its fiery length along Main street, which it followed to the Washington road, where the footman countermarched and the horsemen continued to Green street, down to Centre and back to Main to fall into line again with the footmen. The scene then became very animated. On every hand flags were waving, lights were blazing from innumerable windows, and Japanese and Chinese lanterns swinging in the murky atmosphere. Roman candles, rockets, calcium lights and other fireworks threw a many-colored glare upon the marching divisions, while from thousands of throats went up continuous shouts. The fireworks on the line of march were under the supervision of James A. Mitchell, who had their immediate direction in the first division, assisted by Luther Long, Harry Warner, Bernard Vanfossen, John A. Yingling, Wm. Weimert, Charles Turfle, Emory Frizzell, John Breighner, Charles Hill, Wm. Jones and Elias Squirrell. In the second division they were under charge of George A. Bell, assisted by George Erb, Jr., L. A. Reindollar, George Long, Edward Bowersox, Harry Cassell, Thomas Webster, and Frank Six.

The Baltimore contingent, numbering several hundred men led by Wilson Post Drum Corps and under the command of Col. M. N. Rittenhouse, with A. C. Evans, John A. Thompson, chiefs of staff, and George W. Fisher, Alexander Schaeffer, George B. Jean, George Roache and Clarence Seabrook aids, formed an interesting feature of the parade, and was everywhere greeted with cheers and plaudits—in fact, the Baltimore boys received something of an ovation.

Many banners, devices and mottoes were borne in the procession. Grant Dayhoff rode a bull covered with banners, one of which bore the information that he represented "Grover on his way to Buffalo."

These are some of the mottoes displayed on the banners and transparencies borne in the procession: "Four months more, Grover walks out the White House Door," "Grover can now go fishing on Decorstion Day," "Protect our Labor," "Public Office a Sugar Trust," "Now is the Winter of my Discontent—G. C." On banners borne by the boys were the mottoes, "We can't vote yet, but our fathers can," and "Protection wins now; it will win when we are men;" and this expressive one was carried, among others, by the colored men, "We vote for the party that recognizes our Manhood."

A log cabin, prepared for the occasion by Samuel Roop, attracted much attention. On its roof were two veritable live coons and one of its accompaniments was the historic barrel of hard cider. Myers' district also sent a log cabin that deserves special mention.

There were seven Bands besides Wilson Post Drum Corps, in the line, viz: Mt. Pleasant, Reisterstown; (colored,) Sams Creek; (colored,) Union Bridge, Citizen's Æolian, of Union Bridge, Westminster, and Westminster, (colored,) in the line of the procession.

Among the buildings making especial display were the City Hotel, Marsh's Hotel (both the proprietors of which are Democrats), the Eastern Hotel and the Anchor Hotel, Carroll Hall, the property of the Sons of Temperance, and a number of business houses. The procession, after marching through Main street to Pennsylvania avenue, to Union street to Main, to Bond, to Belle Grove square to Liberty street, to Main, proceeded to Odd Fellows' Hall, where it was dismissed.

A meeting was then organized, with the venerable John Smith, of Wakefield, as president: Vice-Presidents, John Thomson, Dr. Samuel Swope, H. M. Clabaugh, Thos. F. Shepherd, Chas. S. Devilbiss, Rogers Birnie, Edward Z. Mathias, David B. Earhart, Wm. F. Burgoon, Benjamin Bond, Thomas Demoss, Dr. Silas N. Gorsuch, David Prugh, Larkin Shipley, Wm. D. Selby, Wm. Bachman, James Kelley, Dr. Luther M. Trump, Jesse Yingling, Henry Baile, Joshua Scrivener, T. A. Sharrer, John H. Mitten, Henry Clay Nelson, Alfred Bruce, John Snowden, Wm. S. Wooden, Jerome Ebaugh, Charles M. Murray, Adam Bloom, W. W. Pickett, John T. Haines, John Weybright, Benjamin Poole, Geo. W. Wilson, Peter Baile, David Roop, of A., Samuel Hoffman, Moses Shaw, Granville S. Haines, Wm. Wood, John Hood, Dennis Douty and Samuel E. Grove; Secretaries, Thos. D. Thomson, George C. Harman, H. Wirt Shriver, Ezra M. Chew, Samuel S. Little, Chas. J. H. Ganter, Jas. S. Baer, D. L. Farrar, Thomas Tipton, James Easton, John E. Buffington, Jos. A. Stouffer, George W. Morningstar and R. A. Nelson. Mr. Smith, on assuming the chair, made a brief speech in which he alluded to his advanced age and expressed his great happiness in being called upon to preside on the occasion. His remarks were loudly applauded. He then introduced Hon. Henry Stockridge, Jr., who said it seemed to him that all of Carroll county must be in Westminster to-night. He thought from the overpowering multitude on every hand the prospect of a return of a Democratic majority to the State archives at Annapolis from Carroll county would scarcely be an event of the future. The Democrats had made the late campaign an intellectual one, and the people were educated so well that the Democratic majority was reduced to such an extent that the prospect of the election of a Republican Legislature was no longer a forlorn hope. Mr. Stockbridge was received with great enthusiasm, and his speech was frequently applauded.

He was followed by William M. Marine, Esq., who was introduced as the Maryland delegate to Chicago who had voted first, last and all the time for Benjamin Harrison. Mr. Marine congratulated the Republicans of Westminster and Carroll on the fact that on this occasion they had so effectually "painted the town red." It was a great victory and worthy the joy manifested in the shining faces of his audience and in the shouts that could not be restrained. The people were showing to-night their devotion to the sacred principles of Republicanism and their enthusiasm over the great victory achieved in the fight for their maintenance, and they had a right to manifest their joy. From small beginnings Republicanism has risen to be a great power in the State of Maryland, and the day of her redemption from Democratic rule was drawing nigh. The grand old commonwealth was now in the list of doubtful states, but she would not long remain there. The Republican party has had some grand achievements in its history, but it has never won a more important or more glorious victory than the election of General Benjamin Harrison.

Among the Baltimoreans on the stand were Henry Lingenfelter, Col. M. N. Rittenhouse, C. J. Karsner, George R. Jean and George M. Addison. While the meeting was in progress fire works were displayed in the vicinity of the Odd Fellows' building, and were witnessed by a multitude of people who were unable to obtain access to the crowded hall to hear the speaking. They were displayed under the direction of Dr. George E. Baughman, of this city. It was nearly 11 o'clock before the meeting adjourned, and then the people gradually dispersed; the visitors from Baltimore returned home by special train and the delegations from New Windsor, Union Bridge and Middleburg were whisked away by rail and those from other districts were soon plodding their weary but rejoicing way homeward. The lights grew dimmer and disappeared and at the noon of night
