WESTMINSTER MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook, - Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1889.

A New Volume.

With the present issue the SENTINEL enters upon its 57th volume, the first number having made its appearance in January, 1833, as the CARROLLTONIAN, just 56 years ago. As is well known, the now venerable Col. John K. Longwell, then in the prime and vigor of youthful manhood, was the founder of the paper, and for many years its editor and publisher. Although somewhat foreign to the usual purpose of an article of this character, we cannot permit the opportunity to pass without extending him our congratulations upon his lengthened years and distinguished and honorable old age. We are glad that he still tarries among us and that the prosperity and success of the SENTINEL are a constant assurance to him that his enterprising venture of considerably more than half a century ago was well advised and prudent. In all the intervening years, under his wise and judicious management, and under the conduct of his successors, the paper has generally wielded a healthful and beneficial influence upon the history of the county, gradually widening and extending its circulation and business until, to-day, it takes rank with the leading county journals of this and other States. The many flattering expressions which have been made concerning its course and conduct during the recent Presidential canvass have given assurance that the people of all political parties appreciate and approve a clean, honest, courteous, and at the same time emphatic presentation of political opinions and faith. The aim of the SENTINEL has been to treat political opponents with fairness and justice; to avoid personalities; to accord to others the same privileges of opinion demanded for itself. That it has not failed in this aim, is sufficiently attested by the respect and support it enjoys at the present time. Without multiplying words it is only necessary to say that the purposes of the past will be pursued in the future, and untiring efforts will be made to produce a journal that may be received in the homes of the people as the bearer of reliable information, local and general, presented in an attractive form and free from anything that would offend the sense of delicacy of any; that in the discussion of all questions, political and general, will express honest convictions and present sound and sensible arguments; that in all questions concerning the advancement and prosperity of the community and the promotion of public morality, will utter no uncertain sound. Entering upon the new volume with these purposes determined and fixed the SENTINEL, gratefully acknowledging the generous support extended it in the past, would respectfully request its continuance, believing that it will render full measure of return for all patronage accorded it, and while receiving, confer, at least equal benefits.

Gubernatorial.

Some of our cotemporaries are suggesting names for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1891. It is taking a long look ahead, and yet it may not be unwise or impolitic to let the people know, even years in advance, who may be proper and available candidates when the time arrives. This course may mark a new departure in political management and seem, at first thought, a novel and perhaps injudicious movement. Believing otherwise the SENTINEL would add another to the list of excellent names suggested in this connection. It is that of a gentleman who is little known in politics; who is, in fact, a leading and successful business man, of Baltimore, yet on the sunny side of forty, who has never taken a prominent part in politics, but is a sound and reliable Republican, and has exhibited, on several occasions, executive ability of a marked and extraordinary character. He is known to many of the readers of the SENTINEL, who, it is believed, will fully endorse what is said here concerning him. Gen. Thomas J. Shryock, for that is the name of the gentleman referred to, would make a candidate of which any party might well be proud. He is in the maturity of a strong and vigorous manhood, and, in addition to the qualities already named, is a man of incorruptible character and uncompromising integrity. Let his name be remembered and considered with those already suggested in connection with the nomination for this honorable and important station.

The Senate Tariff Bill.

According to the terms of the agreement between the Republican and Democratic Senators, the vote on the pending tariff bill will be taken on Monday, 21st inst., when it will, without doubt, receive a majority of the votes of that body. It will then go to the House of Representatives for acceptance or rejection. The House will have thirty-five working days in which to consider it, but it is not probable that it will be passed. It is asserted that many Democratic Congressmen, who were whipped into supporting the Mills bill, are strongly inclined to vote for the Senate measure; but the influence of the administration and of the free-traders generally is being actively exerted to prevent such action. Mr. Cleveland's reiteration of his campaign tariff views, in his recent letter to the tariff-reform club of Boston, has apparently stiffened the vertebræ of some whose new found faith in the beneficence of free-trade was rudely shaken by the result of the Presidential election. It is therefore very likely that the 50th Congress will end without the adoption of any measure to revise the tariff and reduce the surplus. Such action, however, will only be deferred, not defeated. The Republican party, when in power, has always met the needs of the nation with such legislation as occasion demanded, and the people may safely trust it to redeem the pledges made in the national platform and reiterated by its recognized leaders during the campaign.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

New Windsor Items.

On last Monday evening, while Mr. Elhanan Englar, our worthy dairyman, was returning to his home from New Windsor, after the delivery of milk to his many customers, his horse became frightened at a passing freight train and ran towards the train. Mr. Englar succeeded in turning him into an alley, but in making the turn the wagon was overturned and somewhat broken. Mr. Englar was in the wagon but escaped without serious injury, receiving only a few bruises.

Hog killing is about over in this section for the present, and some of our citizens are putting in young stock for the next year's pork. Mr. A. Thompson killed two weighing 176, 204.

Brummel Items.

Henry Zepp, of the vicinity of Roseville, has lost the valuable young horse he drove on his mail route, by some unknown cause.

The gang of hogs that devoured Geo. W. Robinson's winter apples, also discovered those of Charles Clefler, which he had buried, rooted them out and consumed them.

Edgar Abbott, Geo. W. Hosfeldt, Misses Emma Hosfeldt, Cora Brown, and Emma Brown, of this vicinity, spent the Christmas holidays in Baltimore.

Christmas passed here very quietly. It was a beautiful day, as was also New Year's day. Things were more lively on the latter occasion and some old and young men celebrated it by shooting and drinking tangle-foot.

The public school reopened on Wednesday with a good attendance.

Euchre Party.

Miss Kitty Roberts gave a very pleasant progressive euchre party, at the residence of her father, Hon. Charles B. Roberts, on Wednesday night, in honor of her guest and friend, Miss Belle Brady, of Harrisburg. The party sat until 10.30 when refreshments were served, after which the evening was spent in dancing. Those present were Misses Belle Brady, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Misses Kitty and Nannie Roberts, Mary Thayer, Joe Mathias, Mamie and Lizzie Irwin, Eva Blanchard, Julia McKellip, of Westminster; Bettie and Gussie Shriver, of Avondale; Messrs. W. R. C. Neale, C. V. Dugan, Arthur Smith, J. E. Lynch, F. Neal Parke, J. H. Dugan, Wm. H. Thomas, Smith Reifsnider, Brook Irwin, J. H. Cunningham, J. Brundige. C. T. Reifsnider, Jr., Geo. J. Parke. The first prizes were won by Miss Belle Brady and W. R. C. Neale; the booby prizes by Miss Nannie Roberts and Charles T. Reifsnider, Jr.

Union Mills Items.

Christmas day was a quiet one at Union Mills.

The band of musical masqueraders that visited our village from Stonersville, on Christmas eve, was A No. 1.

Mr. C. D. Rusher, with his bride, ate his Christmas dinner with his father-in-law, Mr. Leander Lookingbill, and in the evening was given a first-class Handillion serenade.

Dr. R. J. Russell, Mr. Harry Shriver and Misses Emma Barnitz, Mabel Trone and Katharine Winebrenner, of Hanover, Pa., spent New Year's day at Mr. H. Wirt Shriver's.

At a preliminary meeting held by the Reformed congregation, at Silver Run, on New Year's day, looking forward to the building of a new church, the sentiment of the members was decidedly in favor of a non-union church, and the next step will be to ascertain how much money can be raised for that purpose.

The Eclipse.

It wasn't much of an eclipse in this longitude, but still it was viewed with interest by many persons. The first appearance of the shadow was noticed on the right lower edge of the sun about 20 minutes before 5 o'clock, P. M., on New Year's day. The luminary was rapidly approaching the horizon and passed behind a haze which enabled the beholder to see the extent of the eclipse with the naked eye. The shadow presented a dense bluish appearance and was fast coming on when old sol sank out of sight behind the Western hills. Accounts of the phenomena from the Pacific slope indicate that it was an event of great interest in that region. It was seen under very favorable circumstances. The sky was cloudless and the atmosphere clear. Numerous astronomical parties took observations at different points. The line of totality was very narrow. At Helena, Mont., it was not quite total, but it grew quite dark and chickens went to roost. At some points stars were visible at the moment of greatest obscuration.

Woodbine Items.

Rev. J. S. Burton has been conducting religious services for several weeks at Morgan Chapel. A large number of persons have embraced the faith and joined the church. The temperance question also has been mooted at that place, and it would seem a most auspicious time to move in that direction. There is but one drinking house in the community, and the prayers of a score of good women and hungry children are against that one, and will ultimately extinguish its liquid fires.

Miss Lizzie Penn, of Mount Airy district, is visiting friends in the vicinity of Day.

An election bet between two young people was settled a few evenings since. The wager was, that if Cleveland was elected the young man was to marry the lady, and if Harrison was elected she was to marry him.

We saw the eclipse on new-year, but there seemed some hitch in the time. It was a few moments late, according to the almanac, but it was a busy day with the man in the moon. He had the new year, the new moon and the eclipse all on his hands at the same time. Then, too, it may have been election day there, for more than once, while gazing at the sun, we saw something waiving in space, that reminded us of a bandana handkerchief. It will be a dark day for the man in the moon, if our Democratic friends should ever get into power up there.

Industrial Development.

Among the many flourishing industries of Baltimore city are its cotton mills, grouped mainly in the suburb of Woodberry, which has a large industrial population. In recent years Baltimore capital has largely turned in the direction of building up local manufactures. The "small industries" having multiplied very greatly, and in a few years they will be of the first importance. In this line of productive enterprise the Baltimore Sun has been long a recognized leader, and the stimulation it has given to industrial progress is one of the best things in its useful and honorable record.

Hampstead Items.

The Band of Hope held their 1st anniversary on New Year's Eve. There was a well-delivered recitation from Master Benjamin Stansbury, concert recitations and singing by other members of this important organization. Miss Nellie Horn, of Baltimore, also recited and sang two solos. The children were trained by Mrs. B. Frank Stansbury and Mrs. Rev. T. M. West. Mrs. West meets them every Sunday afternoon for temperance instruction.

The assistant pastor delivered a lecture in the M. E. Church on the 3rd. It was preceded and followed by solos from T. Marshal West, Jr., and Miss May Richards, respectively.

Mr. W. Winfield Ridgely, of Pennington seminary, is spending his holidays with his parents and many friends in Hampstead.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, of New York, is on a visit to his relatives in this place.

Wm. Woolsey, who left an estate of $100,000, devised its income, or as much of it as they might demand, to his two sisters during their lives. Any residue of the income, and the total proceeds of the estate, after the death of the sisters, is to be used in turnpiking certain roads in Harford county, upon the condition that whatever balance may be necessary to complete the work on the roads specified by the will, be supplied by the county.

Dear grandfather is gone,
His pain and toil are o'er;
His face on earth we'll see no more,
But hope to meet him on the other shore.

Our home is sad, oh, God, how dreary!
Lonesome, lonely every spot;
Listening for his voice till weary,
Weary for we hear it not.

Sad the home and lonely the hours
Since our dear grandfather has gone;
But, oh, a brighter home than ours
In Heaven is now his own.

Oh, grandfather, dear, can it be
No more thy look of love we'll see?
Those eyes that now are closed in death
We'll think of till our latest breath.

Rest, grandfather, thy work is done,
The cross is passed, the crown is won;
Rest, from sorrow free, on Canaan's shore,
Thy pain is passed and feared no more.

Weep not for me, my children, dear,
I am gone to rest, you need not fear;
My stay was long, as now you see,
Therefore prepare to follow me.

BY HIS GRANDSON, J. E. DEEDS.
