THE HAVRE DE GRACE BRIDGE FREE

SPECIAL CEREMONIES MARK OPENING OF FREE STRUCTURE

The burning of the toll house of the Susquehanna bridge on Monday of this week ended elaborate ceremonies marking the discontinuance of toll over that bridge.

The Susquehanna bridge, after being abandoned as a railroad bridge, was sold by the railroad company to a private company at a reported price of $1, after the two counties of Cecil and Harford had refused to buy it. It was practically given away by the railroad company to save them the expense of destroying it as required by law of all abandoned structure over navagable waters.

After this bridge was put into condition and made a toll bridge, the profits became so great that it soon deserved the name of the gold mine bridge and was about three years ago bought by the state for $480,000.

Three years toll has payed for the bridge and an upper deck which was built last year at a great expense.

TO THE CITIZENS OF CHESTERTOWN

Next week, October 7 to 13 is National Fire Protection Week. The Commissioners desire that all rubbish and other matter about the premises that would be likely to cause a fire be removed at once. The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Co. have appointed a committee to inspect all the chimneys in the town and this has our hearty approval, as the records show that most of the fires in our town in the past few years have been chimney fires. We trust that you will lend your cooperation in this work. The higher the effort of our firemen, the cleaner the town, all help in obtaining lower insurance rates which is the thing that benefits us all.

Commissioners of Chestertown.

DEATHS

Miss Henrietta Osburn Crane daughter of the late Bowers Crane and Henrietta Osburn of this county died suddenly at her home on Lanvale St., Baltimore, last Tuesday week. Miss Crane spent her early life in Chestertown and during her residence here studied at the Peabody Institute. After graduation she commenced her musical career in Baltimore and for many years was organist and choir leader of Memorial Church in that city. She also was leader of the St. Cecilia Guild and was prominent in many musical activities. She is survived by one brother and several nieces and nephews.

"RAMONA" TO SHOW AT THE LYCEUM SOON

The much heralded "Ramona," from Helen Hunt Jackson's novel of the same name, will arrive in our midst next week.

"Ramona" will be shown at the Lyceum Theatre on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 11th and 12th.

"Ramona" was written by Helen Hunt Jackson with a purpose. She did not know at the time of writing the story, that it would go down in history as one of the great American classics.

And Edwin Carewe, the director of "Ramona" has given the story to the screen in such a manner as might be well termed "screen-classic." This producer has abided by the story—so vital a matter in a case of this sort. It was Carewe, too, who directed "Resurrection."

"Ramona" is a tale of early California—the days of the Mission Indians—their trials and their tribulations. And "Ramona" cvame into being during that period. The story is filled with love interest. Mrs. Jackson, while probably not fully realizing it at the time, drew one of the most beautiful love stories in American literature when she penned this tale of the half-Indian maiden who is in love with two men, one of them the Indian, "Alessandro" played on the screen by Warner Baxter; the other, "Felipe," the Spanish Don, Roland Drew.

To Edwin Carewe should go another triumph and notch in his belt of directorial conquests and to Miss Del Rio should go the unstinted praise that is due only a great artiste. Her portrayal of the Indian maiden was divine and in some instances even surpassed her remarkable characterization in "Resurrection" which proved once and for all that this Mexican beauty was in the film world to stay as long as she might choose.

SLAG ROAD FOR QUAKER NECK

A delegation from Quaker Neck appeared before the Commissioners of Kent county on Tuesday of this week and petitioned a slag road to Quaker Neck Wharf.

To back up their petition they placed before the commissioners a certified check for $1500 to pay for approximately half of the road. This money was raised by people living along the proposed road.

This road to be slagged is from Bond Chapel, turn left thence to Hadaway's store and Quaker Neck wharf. The commissioners accepted the proposition and work is expected to start in the fall.

COMMISSIONERS FAVOR 9-FOOT ROAD

At the regular meeting of the Commissioners of Kent county on Tuesday of this week a resolution was adopted favoring the construction of nine foot concrete roads as a future road building progam for Kent county.

The resolution recommends to the State Roads Commission the nine foot road building program for future contracts which means that the annual mileage of concrete road to be built each year in Kent county will be increased approximately one third. TOMATO HEARING CONCLUDED

The tomato hearing before the United State Tariff Commission in reference to the importation of Italian tomatoes has been concluded before a six day session.

This hearing was sponsored by Senators William Cabel Bruce, Millard E. Tydings, Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough, The Farm Bureau and other organizations who are interested in the tomato crop.

The above sponsors of the hearing claimed that due to the much lower cost of producing a tomato pack in Italy, the tariff on these tomatoes should be raised.

The Italian Government was called on to show the cost of producing tomatoes in Italy which they refused to do, their only claim being that Italian tomatoes are so inferior to American tomatoes that they did not compare or compete with our product.

While no decision has been reached by the Tariff Commission, the general opinion of those who attended the hearing is that a favorable report is expected. Mr. William G. Smyth, Secy., Kent County Farm Bureau, was a witness at the hearing.

MUSICAL REVIEW NEXT WEEK

PROCEEDS FOR BENEFIT OF KENT COUNTY HOSPITAL

One of the most pretentious and best coached casts of local talent ever seen on the Lyceum Theatre stage will appear for three nights, beginning next Monday, in the big vaudeville and musical extravaganza, "Main Street Follies" in which will be featured some 100 pretty girls, talented male performers and attractive children of Kent county. They will perform under auspices of the Kent County Public Health Association for the benefit of he new county hospital here.

Eddie Parlett, famous minsrel and producer, is managing the company, assisted by Bob Parrott, well-known Baltimore actor. Mrs. David B. Ford is in charge of the cast. Parlett, former associate of Lew Dockstadter and nationally known on the minstrel stage, will appear in person in the show. The first part will be a big vaudeville act with imported costumes and scenery seldom seen in a small theatre. The show will open with an attractive fantasy, "Out of the Hive," in which a score of children will appear as little bees. Tintype and old fashioned dances will follow and one of the headliners will be a funny marriage skit in which Parlett himself will take the part of the groom. A burlesque toe-dance will be featured by Washington College men students and the "March of he Toys" will be presented by children appropriately costumed. Parlett will then present a study in black and white with impromptu sketches on the stage. An elaborate fashion show will be one of the notable features of the big first part and the Jewell Sisters will act in a special dance skit, followed by Coleman and Harris in a song and dance act. The tiller chorus, one of the hardest dances on the professional stage, will be executed by eight pretty girls, especially coached for the occasion. The vaudeville part will close with a big, spectacular carnival scene in which the entire company will be seen in variagated costumes and brilliant lighting effects and surrounded by specially prepared scenery.

In the big minstrel show John Alderson will act as interlocutor. End men will be Reds Moffett, Phil Sewell, Bill Dodds, Herbert Ward, Eddie Parlett and Stanley Giraitis. Some of the soloists will be John Barnes, John Alderson, Miss Dorothy Woodall and Stanley Giraitis. The minstrel will be one of the most carefully drilled performances ever seen here and will compare favorably with most professional companies. Parlett himself is worth the price of admission. The show will close with a unique umbrella song and dance, one of the most interesting scenic effects on the stage today.

Though the entire cast has not yet been completed the following are those already selected and several others will be given places in the chorus before the show opens Monday night. It is believed the people of Kent will respond to the invitation to see this show not only because it will be worth twice the price of admission but because the proceeds will go to the new hospital which is serving the people of the entire community of Kent and which is badly in need of funds.

The cast: Misses. Emily Jewell, Kathryn Ford, Margaret Rasin, Nancy Jean Usilton, Margaret Cooper, Louise Simpers, Dorothy Pennington, Miriam Smith, Kathryn Baker, Susie Smith, Louise Porter, Mabel Porter, Miriam Kirby, Margaret Jefferson, Geraldine Harwood, Helen Tyler, Dorothy Woodall, Mary Simpers, Ann Welch, Anna Cooke Coleman, Ermyn Jewell, Kathryn Smith, Marie Bryan, Dorothy Knotts, Doris Bell, Eleanor Jones, Frances Kreeger, Elizabeth Wheatley, Eleanor Russell, Betty Beck, Helen Culver, Helen Strong, Mary Emma Chaires, Eleanor Beachley, Jean Cooper, Margaret Ann Dukes, Frederica Metcalfe, Harriett Gill, Alice Derringer, Katheryn Strong, Mary Jean Strong, Eleanor Bordley, Kathryn Bringman, Mary Russell, Miriam Newcomb, Henrietta Duyer, Fern Blackway, Shirley Fox, Pauline Reed, Betty Strong, Elizabeth Westcott, Elizabeth Baldwin, Martha Speicher, Marion Aldridge, Elizabeth Fontaine, Betty Lewis, Kathryn Anthony, Virginia Barnes, Elizabeth Johns, Phoebe Pyle and Miriam Thompson; Mesdames Barber Bartley, Horace Needles and Rolph Townshend and Messrs. Allan Robinson, Billy Usilton, John Alderson, Frank Cooper, James Marvel, Charles Harris, Joe Glackin, Stanley Giraitis, John Barnes, Philip Sewell, Clarence Newcomb, Billy Dodds, Harry Fallowfield, Raymond Moffett, George Duvall, Edward Lucky and Alfred Herman.

—According to reports current in Baltimore this week, Sinclair Lewis, famous author, is coming to Queen Anne's or Talbot counties soon to live while writing a new novel. The book is to have as its background Eastern Shore life.
