WEATHER BUREAU ON EASTERN SHORE

Washington, October 8—Rep. T. Alan Goldsborough will introduce in the next session of Congress a bill providing for the establishment of a U. S. Weather Bureau station on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, he announced today. An annual appropriation of $8,000, he said, will be necessary to maintain the station.

Weather forecosts, stormwarnings, frost warnings, and other information regarding climatic conditions will be disseminated from the proposed station to farming and business interest Mr. Goldsborough explained.

Similarly, this station will be useful to the U. S. Weather Bureau by furnishing daily information about atmospheric conditions on the Del-Mar-Va peninsula, it was pointed out.

Reference to a map," Mr. Goldsborough said, "will show that the longest stretch on the Atlantic seaboard without a Weather Bureau station is that lying between Atlantic City, N. J., and Norfolk, Va. The Eastern Shore of Maryland, situate halfway between these cities,is logically the most advantageous position for the new station."

Equipment of the prospective station, according to Mr. Goldsborough, will be located on the roof of some office building, whereina Meteorologist in charge and his one or two assistants will have their office. Information will be sent out by telegraph, radio, telephone, mail, and through the newspaper columns.

Interest in the proposed station is being shown by the Salisbury, Wicomico Chamber of Commerce, the South Ocean City Development Company. The Del-Mar-Va Association, the Kent County Chamber of Commerce and from and other groups and individuals on the Eastern Shore, who have asked the cooperation of Representative Goldsborough.
