PENINSULA NEWS

The Havre de Grace Ledger says that farmers in the Robin Hood vicinity, near Swan Creek, Harford county, have complained of a wolf running at large in that section and that many rabbits, partridges and a number of chickens hve been killed by the beast.

Representative Houston, of Delaware, Tuesday appeared before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, which is considering appropriations for the Department of Agriculture, and urged that $5,000 be provided in the present bill for the maintenance of a market news service at Pocomoke City, Md., for the benefit of all farmers on the Del-Mar-Va peninsula.

Seven hundred and sixty-one members of the association, representing 23,469 acres planted in potatoes the past season, have withdrawn from the Eastern Shore of Virginia Farmers' Association, which was formed a year ago with a price-fixing committee for potato shipments from Northampton and Accomac cvounties.

As a result, the board of managers have announced that, in their opinion, the organization cannot function successfully with the remaining membership of about 1,700.

Oxford, Talbot county, is anticipating a new hotel and club house to cost about $150,000. A group of prominent men of New Jersey were in Oxford the past week with plans and specifications for this project. They were closeted with the Town Commissioners, and the plans were make known at this conference.

Albert Disharoon will start a goat farm at Sharptown ,having just purchased 60 acres of land from Bennett and others, lying along the State highway and extending to the Nanticoke river. He now has 26 Angora goats housed for the winter and will soon add more.

John Wessels, of Accomac Courthouse, Virginia, again claims to be the Delmarva Peninsula's champion hog raiser,having butchered five porkers whose aggregate weight was 3,107 pounds dressed. The respective weights were 583,614, 623,627 and 660 pounds.

Two permits were passed by the Public Service Commission to transportation companies last week as follows:

Permit to the White Transportation Company, of Baltimore, to extend its line from Baltimore, through Tolchester, Chestertown and Church Hill to Centreville, making this the terminus of the line.

Permit to the Baltimore & Eastern Railway Company to establish a new motor truck freight line from Stevensville through Stevensville, Grasonville, Queenstown and Centreville to Easton.

Substantial evidence that several members of a gang of clever forgers are at work on the Eastern Shore peninsula, was uncovered this week by Dover police, after the group of crooks had passed several worthless bits of paper.

LOCAL AIRPORT WAS DEDICATED LAST SATURDAY

First Municipal Airport In State Of Maryland

Air Races Staged

The formal opening of the Chestertown Airport was held on Saturday afternoon, December 15, with a short program in the presence of several thousand spectators who came from all parts of the Peninsula.

This event was the culmination of the work of the Airport Committee of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, chairman, Harry F. Jefferson and M. deK. Smith, Jr., and puts Kent on the air map of the world.

Dr. Titsworth made a welcoming address and introduced the speakers, Mr. A. G. Ober, vice-president of the Chesapeake Aircraft Company, through whose cooperation the port has been established as the Eastern Shore headquarters for the Chesapeake Aircraft Company, and Congressman T. Allan Goldsborough, who, together with Senator Tydings, cooperated in every possible way with the movement. Both speakers congratulated Kent County on the establishment of this port which is the first municipal airport in the State and marks a long step forward in the progress of this community.

Senator Tydings, by telegram, advised the Committee that much of the air force was tied up with the International Aeronautics Conference in Washington but that the War Department had given its consent to the Los Angeles to fly over Chestertown during the time of the dedication of the airport. Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, U. S. S. Los Angeles subsequently notified the Chamber that such orders had been given if the ship was to be in training on that date but expressed doubt that they would arrive. Further message came the morning of the opening that the War Department expected the ship to be present if weather conditions were favorable. During the afternoon the aviators spoke of the "pea-soup" atmosphere prevailing and it has not yet been learned by the Committee as to whether that condition was responsible for the non-appearance of the dirigible.

This Monday a telegram was received by the Chamber from Lady Mary Heath who had telegraphed the week before accepting the invitation to be present. The telegram of Monday expressed her sincere apologies and said she had tried to come up to the very last moment.

The Air Corps of the Maryland National Guard were represented by a number of army planes under the command of Major W. D. Tipton. The Falcons moved in intricate formation and later took part in races, making terrific speed during the three lap course from the Airport to Chestertown. An announcer kept the crowds informed as to manoeuvers in terms easily understood by the laymen.

Many persons took advantage of the opportunity to make short flights in the planes of the Chesapeake Aircraft Company. The air was unusually quiet so that the passengers experienced all of the pleasures and none of the usual anxieties of an initial flight.

The postponement of two weeks ago, due to heavy rains, and the fact that the final date coincided with the conference at Washington reduced the number of planes which were expected to appear according to the original set-up of the show.

The aviators praised the new Airport with great enthusiasm stating that it was clearly visible from great heights even in the thick atmospheric conditions then existing.

SANTA WILL BRING KENT AN AMBULANCE

Order Placed With Local Firm For Early Delivery

An order for a Buick ambulance, to be known as the Kent County, Maryland Ambulance, has been placed with the N-B-R Motor Company, and delivery is expected by the first of the year.

A little over a year ago the Chestertown Rotary Club conceived the idea of raising funds for a county ambulance. After all town and county organizations had been consulted it was decided that the Kent County Public Health Association should act as campaign manager and collector of funds. A call for contributions was sent out through the local papers and in a circular letter. The public responded remarkably well considering that the community was then undergoing a series of drives. St. James M. P. Church and the Rotary contributed the proceeds of basketball games and individual contributions varied from twenty-five cents to one hundred dollars. When something over sixteen hundred dollars were collected in this manner the amount remained stationary. The Health Association Committee, with Mrs. John Clendaniel, Sr., as chairman, felt that they had exhausted their resources as in the meantime the Association had organized and set in operation the Kent County Hospital which was demanding every possible effort of each member of the Association. The Committee laid the matter before the Rotary which organization in turn, met with the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company. With the Firemen, the Rotary decided at a meeting held last Tuesday, to underwrite the remaining amount needed for a first class ambulance, each of the two organizations to go half and half. The machine will be housed and operated by the Fire Company and represents not only a much needed and valuable equipment for the County but also the embodiment of a wholesome spirit of cooperation existing among the organizations and individuals of Kent.
