Horizons

Somewhere far out in the misty blue,
Where the earth and the sky line meet,
I shall find a work for my hands to do.
And a path for restless feet.

Why should I cling to these homely things,
When the wide world calls from afar?
My dreams know the lift of a sea gull's wings,
And the tip of some shining spar.

I have known the sting of a love denied,
The clutch of a nameless fear;
The winds are free and the road is wide,
So why should I linger here?

Pinning my heart to this narrow hearth,
And my hopes to these humdrum walls.
When out where the blue sky meets the earth
Something calls me—and calls—?

CLARE MacDERMOTT

It seems always to be this way; if a man is poor and old and a feeble failure on the job he is called a visionary by his practical friends but let him succeed and become rich and great, then they say "he had a vision." Langley was a visionary, Wright had a vision, but could one have won out if the other had not conceived the idea of flying? No.

He Had Vision

From the Kansas City Star

When Mr. A is poor and old,
A feeble failure on the job,
Accounting for his lack of gold,
"A visionary!" scoffs the mob.
When Mr. B. grows rich and great
And people seek the reason why
The wise ones do not hesitate:
"He had vision," they reply.

Have you had the flu? The doctors are certainly on the job. And how glad the sick are to see them though they thought them very useless a short time ago.

Doctors, doctors when we're born,
Doctors till we die,
Doctors noon and night and morn—
Down with them! say I.

Every time we take a pill,
Every time an M.
D. comes near the house, we're ill.
Then away with them!

Faddists pure and simple they.
I, for one, rebel.
Fire them all, and save their pay.
We shall be as well.

Ouch, good heavens, what a pain!
Clear from here to here!
Save, oh, save me once again,
Doctor, doctor dear "

Last week we said something unkind about our friend. We did not mean it to be retold, but it was, and today when we see his pained face and know that our whispered words had brought him trouble, we can truly say with Elbert Hubbard, "We are not so much punished for our sins, as by our sins."

Ducks Got It

Sam Johnson, a colored cotton planter of Mississippi, came into the country bank and asked for credit.

"Why, Sam," said the banker, "haven't you just sold your cotton?"

"Yes, suh," was the answer, "but de ducks all got it."

"The ducks all got it?"

"Yes, suh. I shipped it up to Memphis, and dey deducks foh freight, deducks foh hauling, deducks foh storage, deducks foh insurance, and deducks foh commisshun. De ducks jus' achully et up all dat cotton. Dat's why I'm heah."

Three Gates

(From the Arabian)

If you are tempted to reveal
A tale some one to you has told
About another, before you speak
Try to enter in, three gates of gold.
Three narrow gates—first, "Is it true?"
Then, "It is needful?" In your mind
Give truthful answer, and the next
Is last and narrowest, "Is it kind?"
And if to reach your lips at last
It passes though these gateways three,
Then you may tell the tale, nor fear
What the result of speech may be.

JAIL BREAKER CAUGHT

Sheriff J. Thomas Hadaway and deputy Randolph Waddell went to Hollywood, N. J., on Sunday last and brought Robert James, colored to the Kent county jail.

James broke jail here about a year ago and all efforts to locate him had failed until authorities from New Jersey arrested him last week.

According to the records James has broken jail on two different occasions for which offenses he will be tried.

COMMISSIONERS DECIDE ON BOND ISSUE

At the regular meeting of the Commissioners of Chestertown on Monday evening of this week it was decided to prepare a bill to be presented before the Maryland Legislature premitting the Commissioners of Chestertown to issue $50,000 bonds for the improvements of streets and sidewalks. It is understood that the bill will carry a referendum and will be voted on by the tax payers of Chestertown at the annual April election.

Efforts were made in 1922 to secure a $50,000 bond issue for Chestertown but was defeated by the tax payers by three votes.

In 1927 a $100,000 bond issue was voted on by the tax payers and received the majority of votes cast, but was later thrown out by the Court of Appeals of Maryland due to certain irregularities in drawing up the bill.

Aside from the $50,000 bond issue for streets and sidewalks, there will be a bond issue before the tax payers to build a $25,000 sewerage disposal plant. At the present time all of the sewerage of Chestertown goes into Chester River within a few feet of the Kent shore and the disposal plant will purify the sewerage and greatly benefit the health conditions of Chestertown water front.

At the present time Chestertown has the lowest tax rate of any county seat on the Eastern Shore, the following being a list as compiled two years ago and the rates have been increased in some of these towns since:

Easton	$1.00
Salisbury	.95
Centreville	.95
Snow Hill	.90
Elkton	.85
Denton	.80
Cambridge	.80
Princess Anne	.80
Chestertown	.75

Some tax payers have suggested a raise in the tax rate to $1.00 instead of a bond issue which would allow for approximately $9,000 improvements each year. This would in ten years give $50,000 street improvementts, pay for disposal plant and pay off the present $12,000 town debt in a course of ten years.

It is however contended that with a new Chesapeake Bay bridge practically started that these improvements are needed immediately which would be taken care with a bond issue. The bill has not been drawn to date and it is not known just what improvements will be included in the bond issue

CHEER UP! YOU CAN'T DIGEST

A LUMP IN YOUR THROAT

A noted scientist was watching through an x-ray, the movements of a cat's digestive system as it digested a certain kind of food. A dog barked near the laboratory window and frightened the cat. To the astonishment of the scientist, the digestive juices stopped flowing instantly. There was an undigested mass of the food, which happened to be meat, remained in the stomach for several hours before the digestive juices started to flow and digestion again started.

Just as fear affected the digestion of that cat, so will emotions such as fear, grief, anger, worry, excitement, affect our own digestion. Nagging and quarreling should certainly not be a part of our meal. We should discuss agreeable subjects and forget business cares and objectionable topics.

When we eat at a highly nervous tension, there is a disturbance of the digestive tract, with probably a checking of the digestive juices in the stomach. This is often very distressing. It would seem that it is wiser not to eat very much until the nervous excitement has passed. This is especially important in our care of children. They should not be allowed to play right up to meal time and come to the table stimulated by excitement. A short period of relaxation before meals will not only aid digestion but help create an appetite.

Remember what Ruskin said. "Cheerfulness is as natural to the heart of a man in strong health as color to the cheek. Whenever there is habitual gloom, there must be either bad air, unwholesome food, improperly severe labor, or wrong habits of life."

P. T. A. GIVES FINE PLAY

The musical comedy entitled "Here Comes Arabella," given under the auspices of the Elementary P. T. A. in the Old Lyceum and personally conducted by Miss Yvonne Page, was a most enjoyable affair. The musical numbers were bright and pleasing while the dancers showed native grace and good training. Mrs. Ford was the accompanist and was certainly inspiring "to the light fantastic toe."

The Moffett orchestra furnished music entr'acts.

The children's numbers were very pleasing. The Robin Redbreast chorus delighted the audience and the little robin who paused to sing to Arabella was loudly applanded.

The characters in the play, "Here Comes Arabella" did their parts well. Miss Bryan made a charming Arabella, and she was well supported by the caste.
