Alarmed Democracy Cries Out.

Hon. Isador Rayner, who represented the Fourth District of Maryland in the Fiftieth Congress and was defeated for re-election by Hon. Henry Stockbridge Jr., delivered an address at the Concordia Opera House, Baltimore, on Tuesday evening, before a large audience of his fellow Democrats, chiefly of the better, element of that organization, in which he plainly expressed the alarm now prevailing as to the future prospects of the party in this State. On this point he said:

The Democratic party in Maryland is in a critical condition; we may say otherwise and deceive ourselves in thinking to the contrary, but the fact still remains that it is. If we deduct the majority in the Third Congressional district, 900 votes will cover the majority in the balance of the State at the last election. Our whole majority was about 6,000; so that if 3,000 Democrats, which is less than 20 in a precinct, vote for our opponents, the party is in peril. I wish that I were mistaken about this, but I thought I would give you figures so that you could draw your own inferences. It is all very well to say that we lost a number of votes upon the tariff issue; even if this were so, there are local issues which in all probability may lose us the same number of votes over again. I believe in looking this condition squarely in the face, not to temporarily bridge it over, because this perhaps may be done, but in order to adopt some permanent plan that will bring us back to our moorings and keep this State in accordance with the true sentiments of a large majority of our people, safely within the Democratic ranks. It is not the controversies among political factions that should occasion the whole alarm, because sometimes they drift apart very widely and come together very closely afterward. What ought to concern us is the spirit of discontent and dissatisfaction among the people who are Democrats from principle, who want no political office, and who have no party favors to ask except an honest administration of the party's affairs. We might convene all the warring factions in this city and apportion among them the public perquisites and patronage according to their influence and requirements, but there is a power behind the factions that cannot be purchased and silenced in this way.

Mr. Rayner's address took a rather wide range and covered a number of subjects, including the tariff issue. He alleged that the "Republican party insists that it has the constitutional right to strain and pervert the taxing power in order to protect what it calls the home market against foreign competition, and to enrich the producers and manufacturers, who control the supply, at the expense of the people who consume the product." That is Mr. Rayner's interpretation of protection, not the theory of the Republican party, which holds that the consumer, in common with the producer, is benefitted by the development of home industries under the operation of protective duties. The honorable gentleman has, perhaps, not forgotten that he exerted his influence in the House of Representatives to increase the rate of duty in the glass schedule of the Mills bill, for the sake of protecting the glass-blowers of Baltimore against foreign competition. If he did this against his conviction of the unconstitutionality of protective duties there is just reason to question the sincerity of his motives concerning other questions; and Republicans have this claim to superiority, over men of his stamp at least, that they believe in the integrity of the principle of protection for which they are contending and do not vote against their convictions for the sake of temporary expediency.

Mr. Rayner, like many other gentlemen of his class, is fond of assuming especial honesty of purpose while denying similar integrity to political opponents. He says of the Republican party that, "with the greatest esteem for a large number of its members, I have no faith whatever in its honesty as a party." This is doubtless said for a purpose. The corruption that has pervaded the ranks of the rulers of Democracy in Maryland is a leading factor in the alarming condition of the party to-day. "Plugging corporations," prostituting and polluting the ballot, bribing electors, crimes that have been marked conditions of Democratic ring rule in Maryland for fifteen or twenty years, have alienated many from the Democratic fold and the signs of the times indicate that others are ready to follow. If they can be induced to feel that such a proceeding will but be avoiding one evil for another they may be induced to linger a while longer in the Democratic ranks, cherishing the vain hope that somehow and in some way the party will be reformed within itself. Mr. Rayner has been a poor student of political history if he cannot perceive that the Republican party has maintained throughout its entire existence the integrity of its principles. It has not been led into "new departures," greenback crazes, rag baby theories and the like, nor trimmed its sails to every seeming breeze of changing public sentiment for the sake of catching popular favor.

But its achievements in the line of fidelity to principle and duty need not be recounted here. They are a part of the history of the country. Democrats like Mr. Rayner, in their alarm at the waning power of their own organization, may seek to arrest the threatened hegira from their ranks by interposing the bugaboo of Republican insincerity, but the eyes of the people are being opened to the truth, and appeals to unfounded prejudices are fast losing their influence. If the Democrats expect to have a future they must throw their own Jonahs into the sea and not content themselves with making faces at the Republicans. The only trouble about it is that the Jonahs are so numerous in Maryland that without them the Democratic ship would have a small crew.

A special election was held in the First Congressional district of Kansas, on Tuesday, to elect a successor to the Hon. Thomas Ryan, Republican, who was recently appointed minister to Mexico. General Harrison Kelly, the Republican nominee, who is a farmer, was elected without opposition, there being no other candidates.

The steamer Rockton arrived at San Francisco, on Tuesday, with 8 officers and 150 men of the Vandalia, 12 officers and 300 men of the Trenton, wrecked at Apia, Samoa. Admiral Kimberly, with 10 officers and 75 men, remained at Apia.

Memorial Day.

When, soon after the close of the war, Memorial Day was instituted and the custom of strewing the graves of dead soldiers of the Republic with flowers was adopted, there were many conservative and well-meaning citizens who apprehended that the practice might operate to keep alive sentiments hostile to that fraternity of feeling which all recoguized as desirable among the members of a restored Union. The patriotic impulses of the nation, however, were too overwhelming to admit the propriety of permitting the last resting places of the men who died to perpetuate human freedom to remain unnoticed if not unmarked by some public token of love and gratitude from year to year. And so Memorial Day has become a fixed and permanent fact, and its influence is recognized today as good and not evil. Its observance has not begotten nor fostered a spirit of opposition or animosity between the sections, while it has stimulated a deeper love of country in the hearts of the people and impressed upon the minds of the youth of the land the value of the inheritance preserved to them at so great a price.

Then let the people heartily unite in this memorial service, that the lessons of patriotism and loyalty exemplified by the sacrifices of the gallant dead may be instilled into the minds and renewed in the hearts of the living, to the end that Union and Peace may blend in National Brotherhood the inhabitants of this great, free and happy country.

Journalistic.

The Olive Branch is the name of a new paper just established in Baltimore by that veteran of politics and the press, George Colton, Esq. As its name implies the Olive Branch has a distinctive purpose. It proposes the re-establishment of harmony in the Democratic party. It is ably conducted, of course, and neatly printed, and is altogether a bright, attractive publication. But it has undertaken a task that may be considered as among the impossibilities. There are pure men in the Democratic party who can never harmonize with political rascality, nor submit to ring domination, while the bosses must rule or they will probably ruin.

The Baltimorean, published, as its name implies, in the city of Baltimore, by Messrs. Crutchfield and Haas, began its eighteenth year with its issue of Saturday last. It has achieved decided and gratifying success, a result due to the fact that it has been so conducted as to identify it with the city from which it derives its name. The Baltimorean is an excellent family newspaper, never low, vulgar or abusive, yet frank, fearless and independent. It fully deserves the success already attained and if it continues to maintain its present character will undoubtedly enjoy larger prosperity in time to come.

The Carroll News, of Union Bridge, with its issue of Saturday last, entered upon the fourth year of its existence. We congratulate brother Reisler on the success achieved in the short period of the News' publication and heartily wish his enterprise continued prosperity. The News, is a wide awake local paper, and barring an inclination towards Democracy is sound on public questions generally.

The Samoan Conference.

A dispatch to the New York Associated Press, dated Berlin, Germany, May 21st, says:

From certain indications at the rooms of the American delegates as well as at the quarters of the English commissioners and at the German foreign office, it is evident that there is some serious hitch in the negotiations of the Samoan commission.

Mr. Phelps, who is known as the "peacemaker," both in the conference and in the working committee, is in evident trouble. First he is interviewing an English commissioner in his own rooms, then he is hurrying off to the foreign office, where he remains for some time closeted with the German representatives, and then repeating the process.

When asked as to the situation, Commissioners Phelps, Kasson and Bates say that there is no great change, and that everything is progressing satisfactorily. Both the German and English Commissioners refuse to talk on the subject, but it is learned from other sources that the United States Government has instructed its commissioners to insist upon the return of Malietoa as king.

A message is said to have been received from Secretary Blaine within the past 36 hours directing the commissioners to insist upon the restoration of the status quo, and saying that Germany deposed Malietoa as king and must return him as king. They may biggle about indemnity or a unit or qual or triplartite government, if they please, but Malietoa must be king. While the Germans have come to agree with all the other views of the American commissioners, they are reluctant to accept this condition, and point to the fact that Malietoa was pardoned by the German Emperor at the beginning of the conference. This, they claim, should satisfy America.

The American commissioners last night were quiet and conciliatory in their utterances concerning the situation, but expressed a determination to remain firm.

The dead body of Dr. P. H. Cronin, who strangely disappeared from his home recently, was found on Wednesday evening some distance north of the city of Chicago in a sewer on Evanston avenue. A bloody towel was wrapped about the head. The rest of his body was stark naked. A Catholic emblem which the doctor always wore next his skin suspended about his neck was untouched. On the dead man's head were a dozen deep cuts, which had severed the scalp and indented the skull. It is the opinion or the police that Cronin was foully murdered, and by some man who could not bring himself to disturb a Catholic trinket.

The steamship Johns Hopkins, of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company, of Baltimore, was totally destroyed by fire at Pier 6, Locust Point, on Monday night. The ship contained a valuable cargo which was in process of unloading when the fire broke out and a large part of it was burned. The cargo was of a very imflammable nature and the flames made such rapid headway that the occupants of the vessel had to flee for their lives. One man saved himself by jumping into the water. The ship was valued at $200,000, upon which there was an insurance of $145,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

For the SENTINEL.

In Glorious September.

Flags will fly and Maryland be clothed in royal holiday garb—A passing glimpse of the feast now being prepared for all.

Sometimes when the surface of old ocean is as glass, undisturbed even by ripples, we know that fathoms deep run turbulent currents against which great monsters of the sea are as powerless to stand as is the dainty wren to breast a furious gale. Likewise, beneath the unruffled placidity of life and trade in Maryland, the stream of events to come flows on unnoticed by thousands to whom its final rush into maturity's sea means unbounded benefit.

Baltimore, as she is now, suggests a chrysalis. Ere many moons she will burst forth a radiant butterfly of variegated colors—those of Maryland's banner and the glorious three of our national flag, the green of Ireland and the black, red and yellow of the fatherland mingling in beautiful profusion from annex to river and from green-clad Loudon Park to the City's eastern boundary where stands the magnificent gift of her noblest philanthropist.

But a few weeks ago New York was gay in holiday dress; her plumage the feathers of universal patriotism, her ribbons the bands of union woven from silken threads of liberty. Her streets felt the tread of alien feet, but her coffers and the coffers of the Empire State overflowed with gold. Eggs, chickens, cabbage, potatoes—in fact, everything suggestive of the farm, were culled from the uttermost recesses of the State. Since God endowed man with an unappeasable appetite, man had to be fed, and New York City found herself compelled to seek far and wide the wherewithal to feed her host of guests. She penetrated Maryland and bought good things by the carload, a fact which in itself proves how inadequate were the resources of her own State to supply her needs. That New York farmers reaped a fruitful harvest nobody with reason can deny.

If this be so, how gloriously will Maryland profit by the fete which some of her honored citizens are preparing for September. From Alleghany to Cecil and Somerset, and from Baltimore to St. Mary's, the fruits of their noble work will cheer the sun-tanned tillers of the soil, and yield seeds of gold to all.

If one pauses to calculate resources he will stand appalled by the immensity of the probable result to be attained under the roof of our great Exposition Building, soon to be built at Pimlico. The minerals of Allegany will be exhibited side by side with cereals from Frederick, Washington, Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Harford and Kent. St. Mary's, Charles, Anne Arundel and the Eastern Shore counties will vie with one another for preeminence as great fishing localities, and Prince George's will challenge with her gold leaf, that has stood the test of so many French contracts. Every Maryland production will be shown, and behind the times indeed will be the farmer, the fisherman or the miner whose handiwork shall be missing from the host.

Then, pause again, if you love a good horse—and "lives there a man with soul so dead" that he doesn't? for every county in the State will compete for the coveted blue ribbons. Thoroughbreds, draft horses, trotters and ponies will be stabled by the hundred at Pimlico. Whoever is a proud possessor of a well-bred stallion will surely enter the lists and settle forever the claims of his brother of a neighboring county, whose horse disputes his own lien upon superiority. When we consider the excellence of the stock owned in Frederick, and on the other hand the numbers of high-class animals in Kent and Queen Anne's, the outlook for this department is promising indeed. To my knowledge there are more than one royally bred horses in this State. Take Orange Blossom and De Garmendia's best, take Belton and Avonmore, Happy Russell and Hannis. In Queen Anne's I have seen several splendid thoroughbreds, and Prince George's, if she will, can join in the contest with sires whose fame has been perpetuated on the American Turf. Right here is Carroll's chance, too. Do you know the really great turf heroes whose home is within her borders? Tom Ochiltree lives there, as does the English Hopeful. In Baltimore county there are Dutch Roller and Dunboyne, the first, like Hopeful, an imported horse. With such well-bred horses to encourage breeding in this state there can be little doubt that the display of live stock next September, at Pimlico, will be one worthy of Maryland.

For the women—gentle queens of the household!—there is plenty to do between this and Exposition time. Whether she contrive some web-like transparency in delicate lace or compose some splendid recipe for Sally Lunn "and bake in a slow oven" in time for competition, she will receive abundant recognition.

Were I to attempt the description of one-tenth the programme now being fostered by the Maryland State Agricultural and Mechanical Association I would find myself reduced to a condition of helplessness at variance with the natural attributes of a native of this grand old State, a mark in whose honor the Exposition of September will forever be.

The Dover (Del.) Sentinel prints advices as to the peach and berry crops from points all over Delaware and several localities in Maryland. Summarized, they indicate a fair crop of peaches, and an unusually good yield of strawberries, of better average quality than usual. Some damage to late peaches by frost and storm is reported, and the whole crop has yet to run the gauntlet of the June drop and rosebugs. The best reports come from Western Sussex. In Eastern Sussex and Kent growers report from a light to an average crop in prospect. From Wicomico and Caroline counties, Md., come very favorable reports, while Kent county, (Md.) growers do not look for over half a crop of peaches. Pears promise well in a few localities; in others poorly. Berries are likely to yield well everywhere.

Mrs. Emma C. Folsom, mother of Mrs. Cleveland, wife of the Ex-President, was married at Jackson, Michigan, on Monday, to Henry E. Perrine, a prominent and wealthy merchant of Buffalo, New York. Mr. Perrine is about fifteen years the senior of his bride, who is about forty-five. He was married once before. Mrs. Cleveland was present at the wedding, but the Ex-President was conspicuous by his absence, a fact that has revived the story of a coolness between the mother-in-law and the distinguished husband of her daughter.

Congress of American Nations.

The Congress of American Nations which is to be held in Washington in October next, it is expected, will be a complete success. The following Governments have taken steps towards representation and, it is said, most of them have already officially notified the State Department of the United States that they will send delegates: Mexico, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chili, Argentine Republic, Uruguay and Venezuela. Many important subjects will be considered, among which the following are named:

First—Measures that shall tend to preserve and promote the prosperity of the several American States.

Second—Measures toward the formation of an American Customs Union, under which the trade of the American nations with each other shall, so far as possible and profitable, be promoted.

Third—The establishment of regular and frequent communication between the ports of the several American States and the ports of each other.

Fourth—The establishment of a uniform system of customs regulations in each of the independent American States to govern the mode of importation and exportation of merchandise and port dues and charges; a uniform method of determining the classification and valuation of such merchandise in the ports of each country, and a uniform system of invoices, and the subject of the sanitation of ships and quarantine.

Fifth—The adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures, and laws to protect the patent rights, copy-rights and trade marks of citizens of either country in the other, and for the extradition of criminals.

Sixth—The adoption of a common silver coinage, to be issued by each Government, the same to be legal-tender in all commercial transactions between the citizens of all of the American States.

Seventh—An agreement upon and recommendation for adoption to their respective Governments of a definite plan of arbitration of all questions, disputes, and differences that may now or hereafter arise between them, to the end that all difficulties and disputes between such nations may be peacefully settled and wars prevented.

Eighth.—And such other subjects relating to the welfare of the several States represented as may be presented by any of said States which are hereby invited to participate in said conference.

Col. J. M. Hood, president of the Western Maryland Railroad, submitted to the board of public works, Thursday, the plan of the proposed bridge to be constructed by the Western Maryland Tidewater Railroad Company across the middle or Spring Gardens branch of the Patapsco river from the site of the Old Union Glass Works, near the south end of Harman's bridge, on the Baltimore and Annapolis Road, to the west end of Donaldson street, in South Baltimore, together with a harbor chart, showing depths of water and full written descriptions of the proposed bridge structure, all of which were formally approved by the board. This action was taken in accordance with section 21, acts of 1876, chapter 242, which requires the consent of the board of public works before a bridge can be constructed over navigable streams.

The residence of Rev. F. C. Clarke, a Baptist minister, two and a half miles from Tunis Station, on the Virginia Beach Railroad, was burned at midnight on Wednesday night, and five persons perished in the flames. The victims, whose bodies were charred almost beyond recognition, were the Rev. Mr. Clarke, one of his sons, Miss Pullen, a school teacher of Shiloh, Va., and a niece. Mr. Clarke's wife and their oldest son and daughter made their escape. The minister, after lowering his wife from a window, went into another part of the house for his children, and perished in trying to save the boy, who died with him. The building, being a frame one, burned very rapidly, accounting for the great loss of life.

The crops in Harford county are looking unusually well, although the recent rains have done some damage to the wheat crop. Owing to the rain the farmers have not yet finished planting their corn. The corn in some sections of the country is up and looks well, although the cut worms were on the spot to receive it. These worms appear to be increasing from year to year.

At the election in Manchester, Va., on Thursday the entire Republican ticket was elected with the exception of one police justice. C. M. Frederick county elects the whole Democratic ticket by a large majority.

A severe storm passed over Clark's Green a small village eight miles north of Scranton, Pa., on Tuesday, blowing down trees, wrecking outbuildings, &c. A dwelling in course of erection was destroyed. Two barns were lifted from their foundations and shattered to pieces. Numbers of orchards were laid waste.

Preston Algard, aged about 20 years, son of Jordan Algard, a farmer residing near Lombard, Cecil county, was struck by lightning on Tuesday afternoon and instantly killed. He was working in the toolhouse at the time and had a piece of steel in his hand. The lightning entered through the roof.

Snow was reported from several localities on Wednesday. At Harrisonburg, Va., a slight snow fell, but not sufficient to cover the ground. At Thomas, West Va., south of Cumberland, snow fell to the depth of several inches, and a slight flurry was also reported in various parts of Michigan.
