TRANSCRIPT'S MUISINGS

The Good Old Days

"Oh, for a taste of the good old days,"
The poet sighed in vain;
"For the time when knights rode forth on steeds,
Avenging their honor's stain."

He forgot that the knights who rode of old
Came home to a castle room,
Where the candle lights made a sullen gleam

In the mist of the damp and gloom.
He forgot the beds of hay and straw,
The pains that the cold stones gave,
The irate parent that laid him low
For singing forbidden stave.

He forgot the absence of car and train,
Hot water and heat and light,
When he sighed in vain for the good old days,
And the life of an errant knight!

FRANCES RODMAN.

When talking of the good old times, it is interesting to note that when Thompson invented the bath tub in the middle of the 19th century it raised quite a furore, and it was even the law that a man could take only one bath a week for fear of his catching cold and endangering his health.

And in the days of old when Knights were bold and in trapping gorgeous appeared. Neither with robber nor foe, did their courage run low, but a dip in cold water, they feared.

It is cheering to know that Byrd in the Antarctic still keeps his heart warm. He has named one of the newly discovered lands for his wife, to whom, he says, he owes all that is good and brave in his life. We imagine that homesickness is present with him and his campany in this icy desolate land, and there is a sigh for the home fires which they will not see for three years..

"Do they miss me at home, do they miss me.
It would be an assurance most dear.
To know that some one were saying;
Oh how I wish he were here."

Coolidge when he said "I do not choose to run," must have lost sight of the fact that he was putting the many occupants of the White House to the inconvenience of changing their abode. Frank Sterns, of Boston, and his wife, confidential friends of the president, and living at the Executive Mansion are getting ready to move and the Grid Iron Club recently addressed this song to him:

"Where will I hang my hat when Calvin goes away;
Where is another boarding house for me to stay;
With a limousine to roll you
And a lawn with a pink magnolia
Though Boston is fine
It is Washington for mine,
I like the White House so
It's mighty hard to go.
For one last time I'll climb that stately marble stair
And then I'll take my trunk and go away from there, somewhere,
I've got to move, there's no appeal.
Some one else will be ejected.
And I will be ejected,
White House, good day,
On my way,
Colonel House, I know just how you feel."

What a pity that the striking object to be seen in Washington now is one vast array of seats, even the statue of Shepherd which always overlooks the Washington that he helped to make beautiful long ago is hidden from sight Hoover has allowed the parade to be only two hours long. When Ben Harrison became president he had to stand six hours with bared head while the procession passed. Taft, the Chief Justice, will adminster the oath just twenty years after his own inauguration. Some remember now the blinding snow and the fierce winds that attended that occasion. We are hoping that fine weather and cloudless skies may attend the new president on the fourth of March, next Monday.

GOLF LEAGUE ORGANIZED

At a meeting of representatives of all golf clubs on the Peninsula held in Easton on Thursday of this week, a golf league was organized and officers elected.

Among the clubs represented were Salisbury, Easton, Chestertown and Dover, and a series of matches will be played by teams from each of these clubs during the spring and summer for the championship of the Peninsula.

This league will create a friendly rivalry between the various Count Clubs and increase the interest in Golf.

The officers elected were Charles Smith, of Salisbury, president; Claude E. Truslow, Chestertown ,vice-president,

Further details as to dates of matches etc., will be worked out at a later meeting.

POST OFFICE BUILDING FOR CHESTERTOWN

The prospects of a new post office building for Chestertown, to be built by government was made known this week by telegrams received by The Transcript and Mayor Charles N. Satterfield from Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough. The telegram is as follows:

"Chestertown has been selected by the Joint Committee for the location of a Post Office building subject to a Congressional Appropriation for that purpose which will probably be made at the next session of Congress."

T. Alan Goldsborough.

The kind of a building the government intends to construct is not known but it looks as if there is another location to look for in Chestertown.

MY EXPERIENCE IN CLUB WORK

In August 1925 our Demonstration Agent, Miss Hill, came out to my home to organize a 4-H Girls' Club. We had seven girls present and prospects of several more who joined afterward. We elected our Officers and decided on Mrs. Sutton as our Local Leader. The first work we had to do was to make a sewing bag. Our Local Leader taught us the back stitch because we were to make it by hand. I had quite a time getting my stitches small enough as I had never sewed before, but after ripping it up several times I finally finished it and felt proud of it. My next was an apron. We were told to stitch it on the machine. I cut my pattern by measurement with the help of our demonstration agent and Local Leader, but now I thought I could never make it if I had to sew on the machine, I could not use my feet and hands at the same time. My younger brother worked the machine for me while I sewed and I soon learned to run the machine and it did not seem very hard after all. I felt then after getting that far, I would be able some day to make my own clothes. During my second year, I made several pieces of underwear. At the beginning of my third year I wanted to start some canning and cooking. I canned about thirty-five quarts of vegetables and fruits and I won fourth prize at Timonium Fair. I had been learning to cook a little so Mother went to the Rural Women's Short Course at College Park in June, I thought it was my chance and I did the family cooking for five days for a family of eight, cared for two hundred turkeys. Being my third year in Club Work I felt that I wanted to attend Club Week. Mother had told me I could go when I was twelve years old. I enjoyed those five days more than I can express. Most especially the wonderful trip to Washington. I was in a class of bread judging and came in second. It gave me inspiration to know more about good bread and do better Club Work. I am now starting on a four-piece outfit of clothing also fixing my own room as a project for a year.

Am looking forward to Club Week at College Park for I don't think any girl of boy realizes the importance of 4-H Club Work until they have attended Club Week under the leadership of Miss Emerson and Mr. Jenkins.

EMILY SUTTON,
Chestertown, Maryland.

Master James Greenwood has been sick again this week but is improving at this writing.

For a time last Thursday morning it looked as though at least one section of Federalsburg had been struck by a miniature flood. One of the large pumps connected with a new city water system had been started to keep it in condition and being forgotten was pumping 800 gallons of water per minute into an already filled tank with an overflow of only 100 gallons each 60 seconds making a total of 700 gallons per minute deluging the streets.

ENTHUSIASTIC ROAD MEETING

Approximately 150 residents of Kent County, representing practically every district and precinct in the county, attended a road meeting held in the Court House, Chestertown, on Saturday of last week.

The meeting opened with a report County Chamber of Commerce, with its president, Dr. Paul E. Titsworth in the chair.

The meeting opene dwit ha report from the committee, composed of Messrs. Harry Willis, Marion Smith, Ellsworth Leary, Harry Hill and Leonard Wilson, which went before the State Roads Commission, to determine whether or not they would allow Kent's annual proportion for concrete roads to be applied on the retirement of the proposed bond issue.

The committee reported favorable on this item, although the commission advocated 16 ft. roads for certain roads and shoulderring certain other roads which would run the building program up approximately $1,800,000.

A general discussion from the floor followed this report and a motion was made that Kent county issue bonds for a nine-foot road building program. This motion was seconded and carried with 118 votes for and no votes against.

A motion was then made that the bond issue be made $1,000,000. This was seconded and carried with 97 votes for and 10 against.

The issuing of these road bonds for Kent county would necessitate a bill to be passed by the Maryland Legislature. The question then arose as to whether this bill should be introduced with or without a referendum. This question brought forth considerable discussion and a motion was made that the bill be introduced without a referendum, that is without refering it to the vote of the people of this county. This motion was seconded and carried by 82 votes for and 23 against. One of the reasons for this action was the delay and cost of a special election, the cost being estimated at approximately $1800.

A resolution was then presented calling for a special section in the bill to give seven men in the county the power to act with the State Roads Commission in determining the location of the roads to be built. This resolution was passed but later rescinded by popular vote. A motion was then made and carried that a committee, composed of the five members appointed on the above named committee and two others to be appointed by the chair, act in an advisory capacity to the county commissioners and the State Roads Commission in determining the location of the roads to be built.

Petitions are now being circulated throughout the county to determine whether or not the above named bill be presented with a referendum. The Legislators, present at the meeting, did not feel justified in presenting the bill until more of the taxpayers are consulted in this matter.

Those present at the meeting were a fair representative group from all sections of the county and it was practically the unanimous opinion that they want roads built and are willing to stand a substantial tax increase to secure these roads.

"FAZIL" COMING TO NEW LYCEUM

East is East, but the twain does meet in "Fazil," Fox Films feature production which comes to the New Lyceum Theatre on Thursday and Friday, March 7th and 8th. But Kipling must have been right in the first place, for they don't mix at all.

Fazil is the name of an Arabian prince, impersonated by Charles Farrell. Greta Nissen plays the French girl who represents the West. Farrell excels his characterizations in "7th Heaven" and "Street Angel" as the handsome, arrogant Fazill. Miss Nissen is ravishing and wears any number of dazzling gowns.

The story is about a young sheik who rules his tribe with an iron hand and on a diplomatic trip to Paris falls in love with and marries a Parisienne They clash, however, for she will not be ruled by the customs and traditions of his people. This leads to many intensely dramatic scenes, the climax coming when her friends come to the Prince's palace to help her escape. During this exciting, Fazil is shot. The ending is as unexpected as it is thrilling and will not be divulged here, for fear of robbing the picture of one of its biggest punches.

The settings are luxurious—in fact, few pictures are so richly mounted as this one. The ballroom scene is one of sheer splendor and the harem scene, in which dozens of beautiful girls fill the eye, has seldom been excelled. Besides the featured players the cast includes Mae Busch, Tyler Brooke and Hank Mann. The picture was directed by Howard Hawks.

—Miss Handy, violin soloist from the Peabody Institute, Baltimore, will play at the Sunday afternoon tea at the Country Club promptly at 4 p. m. She will be accompanied by Miss Louise Russell.
