COMMISSIONERS PAY ROAD BONDS

$100,125 PAID YESTERDAY

The Commissioners, on Friday of this week, paid out $100,125 for the retirement of road bonds and interest for same.

$80,000, which represented payment on the principal of the $900,000 bond issue for concrete roads, was forwarded to the Commissioner's by the State Roads Commission as Kent's share of the state gasoline tax.

This payment reduces the original $900,000 indebtedness to $660,000, $240,000 having been paid.

In addition to the principal, the Commissioners paid $20,125 in interest on bonds of which $18,900 was for interest on the $900,000 bond issue and $1,225 was interest on the lateral road and school bonds.

FISH SCARCE

Fishing in Chester River this far this season is the poorest ever known. Seinhaulers and hook and line fishermen report no success. One sein crew stated that they made seven hauls and did not catch a fish.

BETTERTON CASINO TO ENTERTAIN

Mr. Howard Turner, proprietor of the Betterton Casino, announced this week that a complimentary dance will be given the patrons of the Casino on Wednesday, July 6th. A souvenir will also be given each guest on this occasion.

The Casino has been very popular this month and indications point to a popular season at the Bayside resort.

"SHOPWORN"

Barbara Stanwyck's new Columbia starring drama, "Shopworn," the attraction at the New Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, July 6 and 7, presents the star in one of her most dramatic and glamorous roles. She is seen as "Kitty Lane," a courageous girl who has been warned by her father that it's a tough world and the best way to take the wallops ti will hand her is to be tough herself.

Regis Toomey plays the role of the young doctor who learns that his own mother was responsible for the girl he loved being driven to an immoral life. ZaSu Pitts and Lucien Littlefield are paired as husband and wife and provide their own peculiar brand of comedy. Clara Blandick plays the mother and her plots are aided and abetted by Oscar Apfel as a judge. Albert Conti, Robert Alden and Maude Turner Gordon complete the cast.

Nicholas Grinde directed "Shopworn" from an original story by Sarah Y. Mason and Jo Swerling and Robert Riskin wrote the dialogue. The story is told against a background of shifting scenes, with Miss Stanwyck wearing many beautiful clothes.

JULY FOURTH AT BETTERTON

CELEBRATION PLANNED BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

According to a statement made this week by the Betterton Chamber of Commerce, Pennsyvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey guests are registered at local hotels and Inns in anticipation of the Fourth of July celebration.

The celebration is being planned by the Betterton Chamber of Commerce, of which Mr. Charles Brice is president, Mr. Howard Turner, secretary and Miss Elizabeth Brice, Treasurer.

The local harbor, a part of the upper Chesapeake Bay, is dotted with yachts of all sizes and with sailboats from the Delaware river and bay as well as from Maryland and Pennsylvania waters. The resort season this month has been encouarging, commerce officials assert, and a number of well attended steamboat excursions are being run from nearby cities and towns to this Chesapeake bayside playground.

SUGGESTS WATER FOWL SOLUTION

"MORE GAME BIRDS IN AMERICA" SUGGESTS DUCKING LAW

Under the migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to determine and fix the open season for migratory bird shooting, "having due regard to the zones of temperature, and to the distribution, abundance, economic value, breeding habits and times and lines of migratory flight of such birds."

In the past three years, the open season for migratory waterfoul have been changed five times, culminating in the highly unsatisfactory thirty day season for 1931. A steady decrease in the supply has necessitated several successive reductions in the length of the open seasons. With each reduction in shooting time the difficulty of fixing open seasons by guesswork becomes more aparent. Last year, in the neighboring States of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky, there were four different seasons for waterfowl shooting fixed by Federal regulation.

It is highly important that the open seasons for migratory waterfowl should, if possible, be at the same time each year and should occur during the time when waterfowl are present in each locality. Such open seasons should of course be uniform in States having similar climatic conditions.

OPEN SEASONS AND OPEN WATERS

Is there a sound and reasonable method by which the open seasons for wild fowl can be determined to the satisfaction of sportsmen and, at the same time, afford adequate protection to our ducks and geese?

We think there is.

The answer, we believe, is to be found in the natural conditions which govern —far more effectively than any man-made law— the periodic migrations of our waterfowl.

Ducks and geese literally live on water; they subsist on water-borne or water-supplied food. When water freezes over, the birds temporarily lose their homes and larders, and they move.

It therefore is reasonable to state that the annual swep of Old Boreas from the north to the south is the real cause of the migrations of ducks and geese. And it is equally reasonable to assume tat open seasons, based on the average freezing or "freeze up" dates in various sections of the country, provide a far sounder basis for fixing open seasons than arbitrary dates set by human decisions and subject to political or other pressure.

In the preparation of the first step was to determine on what dates water in any particular locality freezes up, which gives a remarkably accurate idea of the time during fall or early winter each year when the main flight of ducks leaves a locality and moves south.

To secure reliable data, we obtained from the United State Weather Bureau the average dates, over a period of about forty-six years, for every section of the United States in which the mercury drops to the freezing point. These were marked on a contour map of the United States. Lines connecting points freezing up for the winter on about the same day were plotted. The map entitled "Average Date When Mean Daily Temperature Falls Below 32 degrees", resulted. This furnishes a clear picture of when freezing temperatures grip various sections of the country during average years and the pace at which they move southward over the country. For example, reference to this map will show that certain sections of South Dakota have been "frozen up" by the middle of Nov. during any normal or nearly normal year, while the southern section of the State may be "open" for another week. This map also shows the various sections of the country which are permanently above 32 degrees, that is, sections in which freezing temperatures are infrequent or unknown.

Freezing temperatures settling on any section for the winter generally drive out the tardiest of migrants. Nature thus marks the end of shooting opportunities at about the "freeze up" dates shown on this map.

The next step was to show the progress of the weather leading up to freezing temperatures. Cold snaps and killing frosts, preceding the arrival of "freeze-in" temepratures, have their effect on wild gowl migration. A heavy frost kills much of the vegetation on which the ducks and geese feed; it also drives into hiding snails, insects, and crustaceans on which ducks depend for subsistence.

Again we consulted reports of the United States Weather Bureau over a period of more than forty years for many localities well distributed over the entire country. At monthly intervals from October 1 to January 1 the average daily temperatures on these dates and significant remarks about the weather are presented on four separate maps. Titles and legends on each and the consistent use of color shades illustrate the progress of fall and winter during normal years.

When the thermometer goes down, the birds start south. Not all will leave at once, but every frost, every drop of ten degrees in the mercury, means fewer birds in the north and more in the south. The charts show clearly when and where cold weather begins to start its southward sweep. They also show the time limits during which the sportsman may be reasonably sure of obtaining a bag, if his skill and luck favor him.

Waterfowl which breed in Canada and in the northern part of the United States start their southward flights in September. Ducks begin to pair off during the latter part of January. It appears therefore that waterfowl shooting in this country should start about the middle of September in the northern States and stop by the end of January in the southern States.

Taking September 15 as the earliest opening date and January 31 as the final closing date, it is possible to have an open season of ninety days in each of the three zones shown on the "Waterfowl Season Zones" map as follows:

Zone I—September 15 December 15.
Zone II—October 1, December 31.
Zone III—November 1, January 31.

Waterfowl will be present in each zone during the ninety day period, Weather of course, cannot be guaranteed, but the foregoing seasons—based as they are on an average of reports covering a long period of time— make adequate allowance for early or late arrival of fall and winter.

SOLVING THE SEASON PROBLEM

If the waterfowl supply were large enough to permit of nenty days of continuous shooting, the problem of a satisfactory open season would thus be solved. But it is recognized that the present supply of ducks and geese does not warrant an open season of ninety shooting days, nor is there

ROTARY CONVENTION ADJOURNS

WORK TO END ECONOMIC WARFARE

Delegates to Rotary International's annual convention were homeward bound today, pledged to work for international understanding and good will to end the the "economic warfare between peopes."

The next gathering will be held in Boston next year under a new president, Clinton P. Anderson of Albuquerque, N. M.

A resolution approved by the convention in the closing hours of its five day session urged members of Rotary' "to study the problems of international barriers * * * so that the economic warfare between peoples may be replaced by cordial cooperative reapproachement of peoples, leading to the welfare of all mankind."

In other business carried out after the convention had adjourned, three new vice presidents of the international organization were named by the directors. They were: First Vice President, Biagio Borriello, Naples, Italy; second, G. Fred Birks, Sydney, Australia, and third, Allen Bagg, Pittsfield, Mass.

The registration committee reported 5,129 delegates attended. Of approximately 3,500 clubs, 1,893 were represented.

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth and Mr. C. E. Noland, of Chestertown, attended the convention, the former as Governor of the 34th District and the latter as a delegate from the Chestertown Rotary Club.

FIRST WHEAT SHIPPED

Metcalfe Bros. received on Friday the first wheat reported sold in Kent county. The crop was that of Mr. Herman Berg, of Piney Neck, who reports that he expects to get 30 bushels to the acre. This will be an usual yield considering the condition of Kent's wheat crop.

—Mrs. Charles Shaughnessy and Mrs. Richard Carville will open their camp in Quaker Neck today with a larger enrollment than they have ever had.

Three young men were killed in two auto accidents last week on the Coastal Highway, between Cape Charles and Eastville, and a fourth probably was fatally injured.

Be particularly courteous to those less fortunate than yourself.

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

FARMERS ARE THE BIG FACTOR

When it comes to the dairy industry, we hear more about the distributors of milk products than of the farmers who do the actual producing. But, from the economic standpoint, the distributors are pretty small fry when compared to the farmers.

The dairy industry represents an investment of $10,250,000,000. Of this amount about $9,000,000,000 represents the farmers' investment in land, buildings and equipment. The distributors' investment is the balance $1,250,000,000.

In other words, the 3,000,000 farmers who own the cows and the farms and produce the milk, are a good deal more important than the 30,000 distributors even though the latter are necessary to the business. Yet, the farmer gets the short end of the stick. When prices are reduced, the cut is usually taken out of his share. As a result, at a time when millions of farmers are losing money and few are making profits, other factors in the dairy industry are making as large a unit profit as they ever did.

The cooperative movement is the farmers' hope for remedying this condition.

ALAN B. HARRIS KILLED

VICTIM OF AIRPLANE CRASH AT HAGERSTOWN

WAS WORLD WAR FLYER

Alan B. Harris, only son of Mr. Alan A. Harris, Cashier of the Chestertown Bank of Maryland and Mrs. Hallie Beck Harris, was instantly killed at the Hagerstown airport Saturday afternoon last at 2 p. m. when the wing of the airplane, which he was flying, collapsed and the plane fell 2000 feet to the ground. Oscar Lyday, a mechanic who was in the plane with Mr. Harris, was also killed instantly.

Mr. Harris was born in Chestertown, and attended the public school here and Washington College. After leaving college he was engaged in business in Baltimore, later entering the employ of the duPont Powder Company, which position he held until the world war. He enlisted in the aviation section of the Army and received the commission of Lieutenant after attending the officers training school. He served as an aviator during the war and after his discharge entered in business in Rockford Illinois, later joining the sales force and became sales manager for the Fairchild Airplane Company. In this capacity he again took up aviation and due to his war experience soon received his pilot's license. His home was in Garden City, Long Island and his work carried him to all sections of the eastern part of the country. He has flown to Chestertown on numerous occasions.

Possesed of a rare personality he made many friends where ever he went who deply mourn his untimely death. He was 36 years of age and in the full pride and vigor of his manhood.

His remains were brought to Chestertown Sunday afternoon and the funeral was held at one p. m. on Tuesday at Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, Rev. Charles L. Atwater officiating. The church was filled with sympathizing friends who followed to St. Pauls church yard where he was laid to rest in the family lot amidst a bower of flowers.

Besides his parents he is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Margaret L. Petritz, of Rockford, Ill., and two sons, Alan Jr., 8, and Louis 5.

The honorary pallbearers were: Messrs. Robinson and Swebble, of New York; Holliday, of Wilmington; Reisner, Mathias and Roulette, of Hagerstown.

The active bearers were: Messrs. Frank Beck, Spencer Harris, James L. Banning, J. Arthur Bradley, John Petritz and Stephen R. Collins. C. L. Dodd, undertaker.

MARYLAND NATIONAL GUARDS

Maryland National Guard units will start their summer training on July 9 when the Fifth Regiment goes to Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Md., for fiften days of camping and drill.

At the same time the State staff and State detachment will take their summer training at the same place, while from July 16 to 30 the Headquarters and the Fifty-eighth Brigade will also be at Camp Ritchie.

The First Infantry, Maryland National Guard, of which the local medical unit, with head-quarters in Chestertown is a member, will take over the camp from July 23 to August 6, to be followed the next day by the First Separate Company, the Negro unit of the State National Guard.

The Maryland unit of the Twenty-ninth Division, Aviation Service, will train at Detrick Field, Frederick from July 16 to 30.

The units to train outside of Maryland are the One-Hundred and Fourth Medical Regiment, which goes to Carlisle Barracks, Pa., from July 23 to August 6, and the One Hundred and Tenth Field Artillery, which will train at Camp Tobyhanna, Pa., from July 24 to August 7.

Two of the ten summer training camps for reserve officers in the Third Corps Area opened last week, when ninety-eight reserve officers reported at Aberdeen Proving Ground for a course in ordnance, and Two Hundred and Fifth Engineer Reserve officers began their summer work at Fort Humphreys, Virginia.

The eight other camps will open June 17, at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland; Fort Myer, Virginia; Fort Hoyle, Maryland; Fort Monroe, Virginia; Langley Field, Virginia; Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland; Carlisle Barracks and Fort Hunt, Virginia.

On July 6 six citizens' military training camps will open in the corps area, where 4,600 young men will receive training.

Of this number 2,100 will go to Fort Meade for basic, infantry and signal corps courses; 600 will train at Fort Howard in basic and infantry work, while the same courses will be given to 800 more at Fort Washington, Md.

Field artillery courses for 450 citizen soldiers will be conducted at Fort Hoyle, while the same number of coast artillery students will be stationed at Fort Monroe, and 250 cavalrymen will be trained at Fort Myer, Va. These camps will close August 4.

DOMOCRATS IN CONVENTION

RITCHIE GETS LARGE OVATION

The Democratic convention in Chicago, after four days session, had not nominated a candidate for President of the United States at the time of going to press Friday.

Following the third ballot the convention recessed at 9 a. m. Friday morning until 8.30 p. m. after an all night session Thursday night.

Senator Millard E. Tydings nominated Governor Albert C. Ritchie to the convention and when he finished what is considered the outstanding speech of the convention at 12 o'clock midnight on Thursday, the chairman of the convention was forced to postpone business for forty minutes due to the tremendous ovation among the delegates which was headed by Maryland and followed by many other states. The ovation was considered the most colorful of the convention.

One of the most popular planks adopted at the convention was the repeal of the 18th amendment and place the control of liquor in the hands of the various States, the Federal Government assisting in preventing the interstate traffic of liquor from wet to dry states. This has been Governor Ritchie's idea for the past twelve years according to an announcement made by Senator Tydings in the nomination peech. Should a dark horse be nominated Governor Ritchie has an excellent chance to be the next president of the United States.

14c MILK CUT

TO TAKE AFFECT JULY 1ST

The milk producers of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association, which includes most of the producers in Kent County, will receive a reduction of 14 cents per 100 pounds of milk starting July 1st.

This reduction will bring the price of milk to $1.84 a hundred pounds. The price of milk for cream to $1.06 and the surplus price for butter to 66 cents. The prices in effect before the recent reduction were $1.98, $1.13 and 73 cents.

The top price paid for basic milk here was $4.00 and this price was dropped to $3.50 which held for a number of years. During the past two years the price has been dropping steadily until the present low price of $1.84 cuts Kent's agriculture mainstay to little above cost of production.

CHARLES LAMBERT DROWNED

LOCAL FISHERMAN SEASON'S FIRST VICTIM

Charles R. Lambert, aged 39 years was drowned Sunday afternoon while swimming in Chester River near the Electric Light wharf in Chestertown.

Mr. Lambert has spent his entire life on the waters of Chester River and tributaries from which he made his living by fishing in the summer season and trapping in the winter. He is not married and recently moved back to Chestertown after living for several years in Church Hill.

Sunday afternoon he went out in a row boat for a swim, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Everett. He was swimming near the boat when he suddenly disappeared and his body was recovered three hours later.

He is survived by three brothers: Messrs. Albert Lambert, of Baltimore; Edward Lambert, of Wilmington; and Frank Lambert, Jr., of Wilmington, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Hayes, of Los Angeles, California.

Funeral services were held from the home of his aunt, Mrs. C. G. Hadaway, of Worton on Tuesday at 2 p. m. with interment in Chester cemetery. B. R. Fellows, undertaker.

The bearers were: Messrs. Bryan Newton, James Everett, Louis Rust, Thomas Holdson, George Burk and Charles Elburn.

DUNN FARM SOLD

The Dunn farm in Quaker Neck was sold Tuesday at Mortgagees sale to Charles Hughlett for $9,200.00. There are 420 acres in the tract which is beautifully located on Chester River and Lankford Bay. This farm was formally known as the Nichols farm and later as the W. T. Brown farm.

INJURED WHEN LIGHTNING STRIKES

Miss Anna Shahan, of Millington narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday evening when lightning struck house at Betterton in which she a party of friends from Millington were camping. The lightning struck the meter box and Miss Shahan was cut about the face by flying glass.

—The price of wheat is reported to be in the vicinity of 45 cents a bushel.
