LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSOCIATION TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS JAN. 12

The League of Nations movement in the United States will be ten years old when Hon. George W. Wickersham, as President of the League of Nations Association, calls its Tenth Annual Convention to order in the Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, on January 12, 1933.

Representatives from each of the thirty-two state branches of the Association together with delegates from many of the fifty-odd peace and international goodwill organizations will attend. Speakers expected will include, in addition to Mr. Wickersham, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Newton D. Baker and Silas H. Strawn.

This year's convention, lasting three days, will be the most momentous in the history of the Association in view of the urgency of the problems to be considered. The economic dilemma of the world, the disarmament impasse, and the Lytton Report on Manchuria, three questions upon which world peace and contentment depend, will be discussed by leading authorities.

The St. Louis gathering will be the tenth since a committee composed of former U. S. Supreme Court Justice John H. Clarke, Hamilton Holt, now President of Rollins College, Everett Colby and Charles C. Bauer, organized the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association. This organization was formally merged with the American Association for International Cooperatin headed by George W. Wickersham at a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore in New York City, January 10, 1923. Mr. Clarke was elected President, and although later succeded by Mr. Wickersham, retains the title of Honorary President. Mr. Colby and Mr. Bauer still hold offices.

The activities of the Association were naturally concerned with the work of the League of Nations itself, always seeking to create an intelligent understanding of the League on the part of the American people. The Association has sponsored and supported American membership in the World Court, the ratification of the Briand-Kellogg Pact, and the ratification of the London Naval Treaties.

The first day of the co nvention will be devoted to consideration of reports of allied organizations. Among those scheduled to speak are Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, representing the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches and Raymond T. Rich, Director of the World Peace Foundation, Boston. Resolutions will be submitted and the day will conclude with a reception at the home of J. Lionberger Davis, St. Louis Banker and former managing director for the Alien Property Custodian.

The second day will be devoted to round table talks. The Far East group will be led by Mr. Rich and Dr. Walter Van Kirk of the Federal Council of Churches. The Economic Organization group will be presided over by Professor James W. Garner of the University of Illinois. The international labor group will be led by Spencer Miller, Jr., Editor of the Workers' Education Quarterly, and Leifur Magnusson, American representative of the International Labor Bureau.

Other round table groups will discuss education with Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, Director of the Institute of International Education, and Professor James T. Shotwell, American member of the Institute for Intellectual Cooperatin; disarmanent, with Professor Ben M. Cherrington of the University of Denver and Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan of the National Council for the Prevention of War; Irak, Danzig and Liberia, with Miss Sarah Wambaugh, of Boston, and Philip C. Nash, Director of the League of Nations Association.

Addresses will be delivered on the second day by Mr. Wickersham, Dr. Butler, Newton D. Baker, Professor Manley O. Hudson, of Harvard, former Governor William E. Sweet, of Colorado, and Professor D. F. Fleming.

The last day will be devoted to the adoption of resolutions and to speeches from Silas H. Strawn and J. Lionberger Davis.

In the course of its ten years activity the Association has entertained a host of foreign personages among whom have been General Jan Christian Smuts, Salvador de Madariaga, Bolton C. Waller, Herr Wolf von Dewall, Pierre de Lanux, Captain Lothian Small, Armando Mencia, and Miss Menni Forchhammer.

The good will of our Patrons and Friends is one of our most valuable assets. The spirit of the season brings to us renewed appreciation of old associates and of the value of new friends. May your Xmas be happy and success attend your New Year, is the cordial wish of

FARM BUREAU MEETING

E. THOMAS MASSEY, ACTING PRESIDENT, TO PRESIDE

MISS PEARL BLACKISTON TO BE MISS KENT COUNTY

One of the largest gatherings ever to attend an annual meeting of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation is expected to crowd the lobbies of the Lord Baltimore Hotel when the tenth anniversary convention of the State organization and the seventeenth annual State-wide farmers' meeting is staged in Baltimore, January 4, 5 and 6. Beginning January 3rd the annual meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society will be held at the University of Maryland as College Park and will cntinue the following day, to conclude at the Lord Baltimore Hotel the morning of January 5th.

Mr. E. Thomas Massey, of Kent County, who has been acting president since the death of Mr. James Davis, will preside at the meeting. Mr. Massey has been vice-president of the State Farm Bureau Federation for several yyears and it is understood that his election to the presidency is practically assured. He was appointed a director of the National organization at Chicago and it is generally understood that he will be unanimously chosen to head the State organization.

Seven other affiliated Farm Bureau groups will hold their annual parleys simultaneously with the State federation, all at the hotel, and ten minute reports will be made by representatives of the affiliated bodies at the session on January 4th. Among outstanding speakers before the general sessions will be Dr. F. A. Pearson, well-known economist of Cornell University, and Chester H. Gray, legislative representative at Washington of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

A feature of the social side of the convention will be the second annual beauty contest with sixteen counties represented. Governor Ritchie will crown the winner, "Miss Maryland, 1933" and present her with a handsome award, the gift of the Farm Bureau. Miss Pearl Blackiston, of Sassafras, will represent Kent County in the contest. The dance the night of January 4th will draw many Farm Bureau members and friends to the Lord Baltimore ballroom.

The annual banquet will be held the night of January 5th with Dr. Frank B. Bomberger as toastmaster. He is a marketing expert of the Federal Farm Board and was, until recently, Chief of the Maryland Bureau of Markets. Mrs Charles W. Sewell, director of the Home and Community Department of the national organization, and the Hon. J. N. Norton, member of Congress from Nebraska, will be the principal speakers in addition to Governor Ritchie.

Special speakers will be heard from each of the affiliated groups, including the Maryland Crop Improvement Association, Maryland Beekeepers' Association, Maryland, Vegetable Growers' Association, Agricultural Corporation of Maryland, Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association, Maryland Stockmen's Association and the Maryland State Poultry Asociation. These groups will hold their meetings the morning of each day while the general Farm Bureau sessions will be staged in the afternoon.

Miles H. Fairbank, secretary-treasurer of the Farm Bureau, will attend his first convention in his official capacity. He has arranged a timely program suited to the economic needs of the Maryland farmer at this time. Important topics relating to tax readjustment, legislation and agricultural economics generally will come in for considerable attention, both on the floor and from the platform.
