Remedies for Trees.

Vegetable life is less understood by the public than that of animals and men. It is no wonder, therefore, that quacks abound who prescribe their nostrums as sagely as if they really knew something. One of the most common notions of these fellows is to bore holes into the trees, and, after inserting sulphur or some other compound, plug it up relying on the flowing sap to take it into the circulation. As well open a man's veins and inject medicines into them. Trees have roots which are their mouths, and anything that is good for them placed in the soil anywhere near, these roots will find. Repulsive and even dangerous medicines may be forced down the throat of animal or man, but we know no way in which a tree or plant can be forced to take anything that is not for its good. Its instinct as to that is never at fault.

There can be no doubt that coal ashes spread under fruit trees are often very helpful, and as they show little or no manurial value, there is often difficulty in explaining their good effects. One way they help is to make a mulch. Coal ashes are light, and the fact that they have not much manurial value makes them all the better for keeping down grass, which depletes the soil of the moisture that the trees need. Three or four inches depth of coal ashes spread under trees keep the soil beneath moist and cool. If they are spread on sod they kill the grass, and this with the decaying sod roots make a fine feeding-place for the roots of the trees. It is probable, also, that under this mulch the soil itself undergoes important chemical changes, fitting its manurial elements for absorption by roots.

Tools and Machines.

It is a common complaint among mechanics that their tools do not serve them as well some days as others.

A correspondent of the Iron Industry Gazette says: Tools, like men, grow tired. I have seen a first-class chisel get tired and act as though it was possessed of the king of sheol. It would not keep its edge, and the more I sharpened it the sooner it would lose its edge.

I called the attention of a shopmate, a grizzled old veteran, to the curious behavior of the chisel. He looked it over and handed it back to me saying: "The tool is all right, only a little tired. Lay it away and let it rest. It will come out all right again, just like the man who is tired." I did not believe the old fellow, and I really thought he was crazy to talk of a tool getting "tired," but as there was no help for it, the tool was laid away. I do not remember how long it was left to rest, but when it was again sharpened and used it appeared to hold its keenest edge as well as it did before it got tired. Barbers tell me their razors in constant use get tired in the same way, and woodchoppers say their axes sometimes seem to get soft all at once. Possibly constant and hard usage may cause changes in crystallization that would account satisfactorily for the peculiarity alluded to. Locomotive engineers often observe peculiar misbehavior in their machines, which may possibly be the result of continued heating, friction and pounding. When a tool gets "tired" or a machine "balky," give each a rest.

* * *

The existence of libraries and schools before the exodus was shown by a report at a recent meeting of the Victoria Institute in London. Professor Sayer, by personal investigation of ancient tablets and inscriptions, found that in the fifteenth century before our era active literary intercourse was going on throughout the civilized world of western Asia, between Babylon and Egypt and the smaller States of Palestine, of Syria, of Mesopotamia, and even of eastern Cappadocia. This intercourse was carried on by means of the Babylonian language and the complicated Babylonian script.

Benjamin Johnson, it is said, owns a farm in Rush Valley, U. T., upon which he has just discovered a mine of natural shoe blacking. An analysis of this peculiar material shows that it contains sixteen per cent. carbon, thirty-four per cent. aluminum and the remainder clay. When taken out the material is moist and soft, and when used as a shoe blacking produces a fine polish which is not easily destroyed.

* * *

A French manufacturing firm has patented an alloy of steel with two to four per cent. of copper. It is more elastic and malleable than simple steel, and capable of a far greater resistance. It is intended for cannon, armor-plates, rifle-barrels and projectiles.

A Bombay newspaper announces two marriages, in one case the bride being aged two years, and in the other fifteen months, while the bridegroom was thirty. This is the system which Pundita Ramabai is struggling against.

It's a wise child that goes out of the room to laugh when the old man mashes his thumb.

WHY IS IT

The Farmers' Fertilizer Company

OF WESTMINSTER, MD.,

IS ALWAYS ON TOP?

Because only absolutely pure material is used, and the Company, besides, guarantees the same class of goods to stockholders and the trade alike.

The Company carries the largest and best assorted stock of

BONE AND CHEMICALS

In the State, outside the city of Baltimore.

Its goods are all in good drillable condition and are guaranteed to give satisfaction. The street recently opened past the Hotel Albion will relieve any objection to the railroad heretofore existing. As the company proposes to stand by its friends and customers in the future as in the past, it asks a call from the agricultural trade before purchasing elsewhere, as it means business and will not be undersold.

Special Attention will be paid to the Compounding of Private Formulas.
