The Democratic Convention.

The Democratic county nominating convention which met in this city, on Monday last, was evidently in sympathy with the wishes of those who are generally considered the party leaders. In fact some Democrats spoke of it as a "ratification meeting," meaning, of course, that it came together simply to ratify the selection of candidates whose nomination had been predetermined. If these suggestions were true, the opposition to the leadership exhibited great weakness, as, outwardly at least, there was a degree of unanimity that must have been gratifying to the managers. In the primary contest in this city, on Saturday, their favorite for the sheriffalty won, after an exciting struggle, by a majority of 25 in a total vote of 413, and this result was a presage of the nomination of Mr. S. Carr Wickert, which was made on Monday without difficulty.

The nomination of Dr. Shaw for the House of Delegates, by acclamation, was also anticipated a day or two before the actual fact. The Dr. was not, of course, an aspirant for this nomination and was, undoubtedly, averse to its being made; but he could not well have refused a call of this emphatic character at the hands of his party. His nomination, however, may be considered a concession of the weakness of the remainder of the legislative ticket. The other nominees were chosen by ballot and the action of the convention is at least open to the inference that of all the others placed in nomination there are none who possess the requisite qualities of leadership. But, it might pertinently be asked, what do the people want with representatives who require leadership?

A great compliment was paid Mr. David Stoner in his nomination for the fourth term for the office of County Commissioner. We know of no similar case in the history of the county, and Mr. Stoner has just reason to be proud of the distinction. Mr. Wm. C. Polk, another of the nominees for Commissioner, served two terms in the office, some years ago, and is well known to the citizens of the county. Mr. Hezekiah Hahn, the other nominee, comes before the people for the first time and his qualifications for the office remain to be tested. He is, we are informed, a worthy and reputable citizen.

For the office of County Treasurer, Mr. Charles Brilhart, the nominee, is the present incumbent and is nominated for the third term. He has been, it must be conceded, an acceptable and efficient officer.

For County Surveyor, Mr. John D. Powder, who has again received the nomination, has filled the office for a number of terms.

It remains to be seen whether the people will ratify these nominations at the polls. Some of them are certainly very unsatisfactory to many Democrats, for various reasons, and while the ticket undoubtedly contains some excellent material, it can hardly, on the whole, be considered a very strong one. There may be some surprises for the Democrats in the ultimate result, as it is said there were some accidents in the balloting of the convention.

John L. Sullivan, bruiser and pugilist, who is under sentence of imprisonment for one year in Mississippi, and who is at large to-day by the grace of the court, on bail, pending the result of an appeal from that sentence, announces himself in training for congressional honors as a Representative of the culture of the Athens of America. Such an announcement may be regarded by some persons as the extreme of absurdity; but when it is remembered that John Morrissy, pugilist and gambler, was elected a member of the National Congress by the Democrats of New York, the later John's ambition may not be so very insubstantial after all. He says he is a good Democrat and seems to imagine that that is ample qualification for the high station.

A Query and a Contrast.

Republicans attach no importance to principle. Success, with spoils, is their object, and they would make a platform in accord with the general sentiment, in order to obtain success. Not so with the Democratic party. It is founded upon well defined principles, and it is principle for which they contend.—Advocate.

Can the above be the Advocate's deliberate conviction, or is it only a specimen of loose writing? It is not the product of hot blood, provoked by angry discussion, but written in the quiet of the editorial sanctum, with abundant opportunity to restrict its scope and modify its harshness. Considered in this light it is a remarkable exhibition of political rancor and displays a judgment distorted and perverted by partisan bias. The Advocate will hardly find in its own party many who will concur with it in thus, in substance, stigmatizing the whole body of Republicans as unprincipled rascals. Now, if the Advocate will make a calm and unprejudiced review of the history of its own party for the last twenty-one years, it will find that it has been guilty, through its representatives, of many inconsistencies in the formulation of its party platforms and in the selection of its candidates in national contests. During that time it once advocated the payment of the gold-bearing debt of the government in non-interest bearing greenbacks, an attitude which it subsequently abandoned; touching the question of protecting home industries by tariff imports it has been on both sides of the fence and also astraddle of it; it has nominated the most ultra Democrats and anti-protectionists for the Presidency and also the abolitionist, hard-money, protectionist Greeley.

In State affairs it has followed for years the leadership of men who have polluted the ballot-box and falsified the suffrages of the people to maintain their own supremacy; but it would be a cruel slander, for these causes, to assert that all Democrats "attach no importance to principle." While many of them have been ready to adopt any scheme that promised success, and care nothing for principle, the great majority of them have maintained their party fealty in spite of these things, believing that what they conceive to be Democratic principles must prevail with the supremacy of the Democratic party.

If the Advocate had made this review and then contrasted it with the course of the Republican party, it would have discovered that when Democrats and Greenbackers were making their assaults on the integrity of the national debt the Republican party never wavered for an instant in its steady maintenance of the pledged faith of the government for the payment of its obligations in the promised medium—good, solid coin. It would have found no tergiversation on the subject of tariff protection, nor on any other question in which the two parties are at issue. It would have seen that as far as the enunciation and support of principles is concerned the Republican party is free from the inconsistencies which have marked the history of the Democratic party since the failure of the attempt to destroy the Union, led by the Breckinridge wing of the Democracy. This contrast of the history of the two parties might lead the Advocate to modify its judgment and conclude that after all there are at least some Republicans who "attach importance principle."

Death of Sunset Cox.

Congressman Samuel Sullivan Cox, better known as "Sunset" Cox, died at his home in New York at 8.33, Tuesday evening last. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure, resulting from peritonitis. Mr. Cox has filled a large place in public affairs for a third of a century. He was an ardent and it may be said a bitter Democrat, but he had a kindly, genial nature, and was a great wit. Mr. Cox was elected to the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Congresses from the Columbus, Ohio, District. In 1865 he removed to New York. In 1868 he was elected from that city to the Forty-first Congress and was thenceforward re-elected to every subsequent Congress until 1886 except the Forty-third, for which he was a candidate at large and was defeated, but was subsequently elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Brooks. He was appointed Minister to Constantinople in 1885 but returned home in the fall of 1886 and was again sent to Congress, and yet again in 1888, so that he was really elected to eleven successive Congresses from New York, beside the four terms from Ohio, and making altogether a service of upwards of a quarter of a century.

The Next Legislature.

Indications are not lacking that the master of the Democratic party in Maryland is skillfully manipulating the legislative nominations with the intention of controlling the actions of that branch of the State government at the next session. So at least says the Maryland Republican, (Dem.) and therefore reasonably good authority. "So far," says that paper, "as we can at present forecast the political composition of the next legislature from the samples already in the field we apprehend that it will lack that stamina and independence which is so much to be desired in any body of men on which such great responsibilities will rest. While certain delegates will be sent, whose high character and capability as well as patriotism cannot be questioned—there are others and we believe these include Baltimore city, as it now promises, that will wear the badge of the ring and be merely subservient abettors of any political measure originating with "the bosses." The element will be strong enough to carry the caucus and to control the legislature. While such men as Hon. E. K. Wilson and Hon. J. B. Brown, are aspirants, so it is announced, for the United States Senatorship, the ring favorite and the caucus nominee will be Gov. E. E. Jackson. And so it is, that even United States Senators, Governors and Legislatures are controlled by the overshadowing power of one cool and dexterous politician. Let the counties wake up and stem this stealthy current and protect the State from this disgraceful outrage."

General Wm. Warner, of Missouri, formerly commander-in-chief of the Grand army of the Republic, and General Browne, of Indiana, are spoken of as possible successors of Commissioner Tanner.

The President and his cabinet have decided against calling an extra session of Congress.

Commissioner of Pensions Tanner has resigned. It has been apparent, for some time, that he was not in accord with the views of Secretary Noble, and his retirement has been anticipated. The President, it is said, is much attached to him and desires to appoint him to some other position. In his letter conveying the resignation it is said the commissioner writes that he recognizes that differences exist between himself and the Secretary of the Interior respecting the administration of the pension bureau, and that those differences being radical, in the interest of a thoroughly satisfactory administration of the office he should resign.

Want to Save the Canal.

A convention of citizens of Montgomery, Frederick, Washington and Allegany counties was held at Hagerstown on Tuesday last. A delegation from West Virginia also participated in the proceedings. While the convention displayed the greatest earnestness in urging some action by which the canal may be restored, it is hardly probable that anything will be done toward that end, at least before the meeting of the legislature. The subject is fraught with many difficulties and there are many legal complications that must inevitably delay action. If it be possible to untangle these complications and confer a good title to the property, the best thing that can be done with it will be to transfer it to the Western Maryland Railroad.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the convention:

Whereas, Deeply feeling and deploring the great loss and depreciation of labor, property and business by the inoperation of our great artery of trade and transportation—the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal—caused by the damage of the great flood of June 1st; and

Whereas, The loss and depreciation must and will continue with disastrous effect upon our property and the taxable basis of Maryland until this great work, the people's highway, is repaired and made operative.

Therefore, this convention assembled has resolved, that the authorities of our state be invoked and urged to allow the repair and restoration of the canal by the people, who are willing to repair, manage and operate the same, and to reimburse themselves out of the revenue which may accrue, and that such repairs, operations and reimbursements may be accomplished before any legal or legislative disposition can be made of said canal, thereby giving relief to thousands of our people.

Resolved, That we recommend either such a plan as aforesaid, or a lease of ten or more years to persons who will speedily restore and operate said canal, the accomplishment of which would save the state from further expense, and that by such disposition of the canal the state, which is the largest creditor, would stand as good a chance of collecting its claims against the canal as if the canal was disposed of by legislative or judicial proceedings.

Resolved, That we favor a trial of good, economical business management, which would restore credit, business, labor and greatly appreciate the revenue and prosperity of the canal; that, whilst political management of the canal has been generally extravagant and a failure in the past, and would likely continue to be so in the future, we ask that the canal be relieved of such management, feeling sure that good business management of that work would bring success, and would show a surplus over expenses instead of large deficiencies.

Resolved, That the restoration and operation of the canal are essential to the relief of thousands who are now suffering in business, labor and property.

Resolved, That a committee of three from each of the counties of Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery, and the state of West Virginia, be appointed to meet his excellency the Governor and the Board of Public Works to present these resolutions and urge them to speedily adopt some plan for the restoration of the canal: that they appeal to the Governor and Board of Public Works to allow the people of these counties to repair the canal, and that as the present management has so clearly shown their inefficiency, said committee demand that a change be made by the Board of Public Works, so that a management may be appointed which may restore the efficiency of this great work.

Exposition Week.

The storm that has prevailed since Tuesday has interfered seriously with the Exposition ceremonies at Baltimore. Monday, the day of the great parade, was delightful and the affair was a grand success. It was reviewed by President Harrison and other distinguished officers of the National and State governments, and was four hours in passing a given point. We have no room for description. The tournament by electric light on Tuesday evening was abandoned. The sham battle was fought on Thursday at Pimlico, and the new postoffice building in Baltimore dedicated on Thursday night. There was also a labor parade on Thursday, but all these exhibitions and ceremonies were affected by the inclement weather. Of the bombardment of Fort McHenry yesterday we have no account, but it was probably more successful than any of the events since Monday. The exhibits at Pimlico are said to be fine, but the attendance has not been great.

The Encampment at Gettysburg.

This has been a great week in Gettysburg, Pa., the number of visitors exceeding anything in the history of the place. The National Guard of Pennsylvania has been encamped on the battlefield, and during the encampment the monuments of the Pennsylvania regiments were dedicated. Few living Pennsylvania soldiers who participated in the battle of Gettysburg were absent from these ceremonies. The State furnished transportation for them all. Speaking of the proceedings the Baltimore American of Thursday says:

"Yesterday was one of the greatest days Gettysburg has known since the war. It was the occasion of the dedication of the Pennsylvania monuments. The Keystone State took a great part in that memorable battle. It had more regiments in action than any other State, and it furnished General Meade, General Hancock and General Reynolds, the three heroes who fought so well and so gallantly. After twenty-six years their memory is perpetuated in bronze and stone, and every loyal heart will take pride in the tributes that were paid to the memory of those brave soldiers, whose work saved the Union."

Another Whitechapel Murder.

Jack the Ripper has been at work in Whitechapel, London, again. This time he slew a dissolute woman, cut off her head and arms and carried them away. The body was otherwise mutilated. It is supposed the woman was dead two days when found and that the murder was committed elsewhere, as there was no blood on the ground. This is the twelfth victim of these mysterious murders. "Fifteen before I surrender," was the legend chalked up over the body of the fourth victim of the fiend.

The police then declared that he could never evade them long enough to finish his bloody work. Extra detectives were put on duty. Whitechapel swarmed with officers in plain clothes, but the murderer kept on his work, and no track nor clue was found to lead to his apprehension.

From November, 1888, to May of the present year he let proceedings rest, and the officers began to find relief in the thought that their vigilance had driven him out of London. From this dream of security they have been rudely awakened. The unknown destroyer now has twelve of his fifteen victims. Three more are needed to balance the books in his system of ghastly accounting. He apparently has no cause to fear interference with his plans, and he may easily complete his schedule.
