Drift of the Farmers.

The movement of farmers over the entire country toward a common purpose has been more pronounced within the past year than ever before. The following resolutions passed by the National Farmers' Congress, at its recent session, will afford a comprehensive view of the strides they are making, and the point to which they are tending.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Congress that the various organizations of farmers known as the Grange, the Alliance, the Patrons of Industry, and kindred organizations should combine their efforts to secure such legislation both State and National, as shall from time to time further common benefits.

Resolved, That the secretary of the Farmers' Congress be and is hereby instructed to prepare copies of all resolutions passed by this body wherever the Congress of the United States is instructed to take action and forward the same to the Secretary of Agriculture, President of the United States Senate and Speaker of the House, to present to their respective bodies.

Resolved, That we recommend the appointment of a committee of one from each State to report upon the method of properly selecting a National Flower, to report at the next meeting of the National Farmers' Congress.

Resolved, That the examination of the arid regions of the Northwest now going on under the authority of Congress with a view to the selection of sites for the reservoirs for the distribution of water for irrigating purposes, is of the deepest importance to the farmers of such sections; and the National Farmers' Congress is in favor of liberal appropriations in this effort to extend the agricultural area of the country.

Resolved, That Congress is requested to provide by-laws for a reduction of the postage to newspaper rates on all publications by States on agricultural subjects.

Resolved, That the Department of Agriculture be and is requested to investigate the cause of the swine plague and to recommend such measures as may be practicable to prevent and remedy it.

Resolved, That the greatly increasing number of accidents to train men on our railroads from using the old hand brakes on freight cars, demand a thorough investigation by proper governmental authority to the end to ascertain if there is not some more safe and practical method by which these faithful public servants could do their work without the terrible sacrifice of life and limb as the casualities to the number of over 6,000 annually from these sources now caused, and also what legislation is needed to require the use of the best known practicable safe appliances by railroad companies, and the secretary is respectfully requested to send a copy of this resolution to the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Resolved, That this National Farmers' Congress believes in the effectiveness of organization among farmers, and it recommends that every reasonable means be used to bring the producer and consumer into closer relationship that the exactions of organized capital may be escaped as far as possible and that better prices may be obtained by the producers.

WHEREAS, An effort is being made for the organization of a national board of agriculture, sixteen States having already signified their approval, and,

WHEREAS, An act of Congress will be necessary to constitute such board, therefore be it

Resolved, That we favor the organization of such a board and recommend that two delegates from each of the States represented in the National Farmers' Congress be selected to cooperate with such a National Board of Agriculture.

WHEREAS, Farmers' Institutes have been organized in many States, and have proved eminently successful in diffusing useful information, in promoting better and more profitable methods of farming, therefore be it

Resolved, That we recommend their introduction into all the States, and that we further recommend the organization of a bureau in connection with the agricultural department of the nation, which shall aid in making the benefits of these institutes national as well as local.

Resolved, By the Farmers' Congress, that it favors a comprehensive scheme for the improvement of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, and of a ship canal across the State of Illinois connecting the Mississippi river and Lake Michigan, and it is recommended that the United States Congress make liberal appropriation therefor.

Resolved, That this Congress indorse the action of the Department of Agriculture of the United States in aiding the sugar industry of the United States by scientific investigation of methods of its manufacture.

Bright boy (to visiting pastor)—"Now try it on me. Mother says you can put any one to sleep in five minutes."

A girl will naturally express a candid opinion of the young man who is constantly bringing her confectionery.

The Beginning of a Bottle.

The process begins with the gatherer. His blow pipe is a tube of wrought iron, five or six feet long, and of lighter weight than the pipe used in blowing window glass. He dips the end of his pipe into the molten contents of the boot, and brings out a mass of red hot plastic glass. If the bottles to be blown are small, one gathering suffices, but, for larger wares, two or even three gatherings may be necessary to get the requisite supply of material on the end of the blowpipe. When the gathering is done properly, this lump of red hot glass is a perfectly homogeneous mass. Its subsequent fortunes rest with the blower. He takes the blowpipe from the gatherer, and, resting the plastic glass against a marvering table of stone or cast iron, he gives the pipe a few adroit rotations, thus fashioning the glass into an even cylindrical shape. By further rolling it along the edge of the table he forms the smaller prolongation of glass which is afterward to become the neck of the bottle. Lifting the still red hot glass from the table, he blows through the pipe, forming a small bubble of air in the interior of the mass of glass. This is afterward extended until it becomes the inwardness of the bottle.

The partly fashioned bit of glassware is now introduced into the mold which one of the "shop" boys has already opened to receive it. For convenience in working the mold is placed on a somewhat lower level than that on which the blower stands. It is made of cast iron and is commonly formed in two pieces. One of these is stationary, while the other opens outward, its motion being controlled by a foot lever. When the blower places his incomplete bottle, still attached to the blowpipe, into the mold he closes the mold with his foot and blows through the pipe until the plastic glass is everywhere forced against the sides of the mold and has impressed upon it the form of its prison.

Bay Horses.

Did any one ever see a man or a woman with "bay" hair? asked the Horse World. No more than he saw an auburn horse. The word bay does not of itself signify a color, and its use for the purpose of designating the color of a horse is purely traditional. It originated in England in a district where the breed of horses was mostly several shades away from the brown, and yet too brown to be called red. There grew in this district a great many bay trees, to the leaves of which the horses exhibited a decided affinity. The bay tree had long been cherished among the natives for the medicinal qualities of its leaves and berries, and in a way was sacred to them, having had a place in many of their legends and superstitions. Every breeder of horses was sure to have a number of the trees, and relied upon them almost exclusively for the medicines wherewith to cure his horses. The leaves were used in fomentations and the berries in clysters. The horses coming from this district, reared among the bay trees, became known as bay horses, and the uniformity of their color led to the common use of the term.

How Madstones are Formed.

Since the people have been convinced that there is virtue in madstones they are springing up all over the country. While at Union Point a few days ago we saw a magnificent madstone, as large as a Banks county biscuit. The gentleman who owns this stone says it came from Alabama, where there was a large deer lick. They are said to be found in deer who visit these licks, and the mineral taken into the animal's stomach there forms the madstone. The gentleman also informed us that he had seen two madstones broken open, and in one of them was found a bullet and in the other an acorn. Madstones are getting in demand, and a fine market will be open if the dogs continue to have the distemper.

Mrs. Youngbride—How does your breakfast suit you this morning, darling? Mr. Youngbride—Just right! I tell you, Annie, it may be plebeian, but I am awfully fond of calf's liver. George, it would be real nice and economical to keep a calf, then we can have calf's liver for breakfast every morning.

Get the Best.—Temperance woman—"My friend, if you don't want whiskey to get the best of you, you must get the best of whiskey." Promising subject—"I do, mum, when I can; but when a feller's only got a nickel—."

A Chicago husband and wife both filed petitions for divorce on the same day, each without the knowledge of the other. This was a case where two minds thought as one after two hearts had ceased beating as one.

Said a man as he hitched his horse—"There is a tied in the affairs of man which taken in time may prevent a runaway."

Speaking of George III., Erskine remarked that what we called firmness in a king we call obstinacy in an ass.

ST. NICHOLAS.

The Century Co's. Magazine For Young Folks. Enlarged and Printed in New Type.

SINCE 1873, when, under the editorial management of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the publication of "St. Nicholas for Young Folks" was begun, it has led all magazines for girls and boys. Nothing like it was known before, and to-day, as the Chicago Inter-Ocean recently said, "it is the model and ideal juvenile magazine of the world." Through its pages the greatest writers of our time are speaking to the youth of America and England, and the best artists and engravers are training the eyes of the boys and girls to appreciate the highest in art. Nobody knows how many readers "St. Nicholas" has. In the third largest public library in America—that in Indianapolis—more than 3500 people read each month's number.

Since the first issue Mrs. Dodge has remained as editor. Early in its history other young people's magazines, "Our Young Folks," "The Little Corporal," "Riverside," etc., were consolidated with it, and its history has been one of growth from the first. Tennyson, Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Miss Alcott, Mrs. Burnett, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and almost every well-known writer of our time have contributed to its pages. There is only one way in which its conductors can make it better, and that is by making more of it, and so they announce that with the beginning of the seventeenth volume (November, 1889) St. Nicholas will be enlarged by the addition of eight, and sometimes sixteen, extra pages in each number. This enlargement is absolutely required to make room for the rich store of new material which has been secured for the benefit of "St. Nicholas" readers. The use of new and clearer type will be begun with the November number.

During the coming year there are to be four important serial stories by four well-known American authors. Athletics and outdoor sports will be a special feature (contributed by Walter Camp, of Yale, and others), and there will be stories of character and adventure, sketches of information and travel, outdoor papers, articles of special literary interest, suggestive talks on natural history, other scientific subjects, and the march of events. Both the December and January numbers are to be holiday issues.

The price will be the same as heretofore, $3.00 a year, 25 cents a number, and all dealers and the publishers (The Century Co., New York) take subscriptions. New subscribers should begin with November. no-9
