NOW AND THEN

TOKEN
By Mrs. Clyde Robe Meredith

When the golden sun rises from the east,
Then, pauses on the horizon, the least
Of these tells the dawn draws near. Man and beast
Shake them from their sleep and a vigil keep
With the light of day. The prowess they reap
Sets a guard upon them, every one,
To walk beside. The gift of breath they've won.
Joy shall be their portion. With it they lie,
The light of delight in their eyes. They sigh
Not for soft seats, on which reclining,
To peaceful rest, their future designing.
The glory of men's living is from God,
Whose seal is musk and rose, cleansed by the sod,
Allayed by crystal streamlet's tinkling song
Whose rhythm changes night to day, right from wrong.

Dawn is indeed a welcome sight bringing in the beauty of the day while it chases away the darkness of night. The Ancients called the Dawn, Arora.

They thought she was a beautiful maiden who came just before Apollo, who drove the sun car while accompanying her, were the hours of the day. Giotta has painted a lovely picture of the coming of the Dawn, but, as it is painted on the ceiling of one of the palaces the spectators sit around a table, with a great mirror in the center, which reflects the rare beauty of the picture without straining one's neck by looking up. More beautiful is the description in the Bible, which says, "Let there be light, and there was light.

MacARTHUR STORY

A characteristic story is related by Col. Louis E. Hibbs, General MacArthur's adjutant when he was Superintendent of West Point.

"The Quartermaster came in one morning and asked me if I would tell the General that the fire engine had burned up in the fire house the night before, so he could make a report on it. I did so, and this was the General's reply: "Tell the Quartermaster to get a fire engine if he has to build it himself. I will not report a fire engine being burned in a fire house!' "

FIRST SLACKS

The famous Dr. Mary Walker was among the first professional women to adopt masculine attire. One day, dressed in frock coat and neat, well-pressed trousers, she was strolling along the road to Wareham, a Massachusetts town near Buzzard's Bay, when she met an old fisherman.

"Tell me," she said. "Is this the way to Wareham?"

"Well ,blessed if I know," the old man replied. "This is the first time I've ever seen any on a lady."

SURPRISE FOR COL. WATTERSON

Itinerant printers were continually drifting in and out of the Louisville Courier-Journal office during the heyday of its great editor, Col. Henry Watterson. Readers might applaud his broadsides on the state of the nation, but only the struggling typesetter knew what confusion they caused when they were presented to him in longhand. The fact is, "Marse Henry's" handwriting was hardly any more legible than Horace Greeley's.

On a certain day one of his longer editorials was given to a new arrival in the composing room. It was up to the Colonel's usual forensic style and somewhere in it ,the phrase "from Alpha to Omega" occurred. "Marse Henry' 'could hardly believe his eyes when the editorial came out in cold type. The familiar phrase had been recast: "from Alton to Omaha."

SLEEP

Sleep is a blessing to every one. Every one courts it and is thankful indeed for sweet refreshing sleep. To those whose conscience will not let them sleep like Macbeth in Shakespears play, who cries out in agony "Macbeth murders sleep" and King Henry IV burdened by the cares of royalty, cries out his envy of the sailor boy who can sleep on the mast, these crave as all others knew the blessing of sleep.

Sleep is the castle of all and the vagabond beneath the tree walks his kingdoms tall.
The weary sailor on his sea
is master for the night.
Sleep is our throne
and the prisoner's right.
The sleeping own
Many a glorious road.
The hunted lay down their fear;
the broken take off their load.
The blind see and the deaf hear for sleep is the castle of all.
The sleeping lie at God's door;
the prisoner beyond his wall;
the vagabond no longer poor.
J. Calder Joseph.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The mess kit is one of the most important items in the Soldier's equipment. It consists generally of a pan, a plastic canteen and cup, a fork, knife and spoon, all in a canvas pack cover. The total cost runs up to about $2.00.

Canteens and other items such as handles on knives and forks, formerly made of aluminum, are now plastic. Alloy has replaced stainless steel. You can buy many of these mess kits for our boys with your purchases of War Bonds and Stamps. Invest at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds or Stamps every pay day and top the quota in your county. U. S. Treasury Department

Growing Genius

In the first third of the Twentieth century there were 1,330,000 patents issued in the United States. In the second third of the century even more than this may be expected, according to economists, since the line showing the number of patents per decade is a rising one.
