FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2nd, 1942

At the time of going to press, the Supervisors of Elections of Kent County were in Baltimore discussing the question as to the legality of the filing of candidates by the Republican Pary. According to information received, the Republican slat ewas filed on the wrong type of papers said to have been issued to them by the Supervisors of Elections. It was not until a meeting on Wednesday of this week that the proper papers were presented to the Supervisors. Election Laws of Maryland, as they are today, are the result of years of improvements until they represent as near as possible a flawless system of voting that makes as far as possible the Democratic form of government that we enjoy and that for which we are fighting to preserve. These election laws are not a secret. They not only appear in the Maryland Code but are also in pamphlet form for those ,who so desire, to read, study and demand their enforcement. If the candidates on the Republican party failed to properly file their candidacy according to the law, as exhibied, ther eshould be little sympathy for ignorance of the law as among the candidates one finds men who for many, many moons, have been actively interested in Republican politics in this county, in fact many of them have been candidates and others whose fathers and grandfathers before them have watched over the interests of the minority party. Some of the advisors, in fact, have been Supervisors of Elections and Clerks to Supervisors of Elections which eliminates the oft expressed plea of a group of defenseless people struggling for their rights against a superior misinforming group. The truth of the matter is that the people as a whole take too little interest in politics. Those who know the election laws are almost a curiosity but whatever might be the result of the present controversy, it might be an eye-opener as to these election laws and the proper procedure. It has oft been said that ignorance of the law is no excuse and this particularly holds true when the law is so easy to find and interpret. Law has maintained its dignity in this Democracy due to the insistance of the rigid adherence to it. When it becomes lax there is no hope for its continued existance.

SMALL FARMS HELP TO STAVE OFF INFLATION

Small farmers in Kent and Queen Anne's counties are continuing to break all records in repaying loans from the Farm Security Administration, FSA County Supervisor Walbert announced today.

FSA borrowers, who were without reasonable credit elsewhere, have repaid almost fifty percent more than was repaid during the same period last year.

"This is a healthy thing", commented Walbert. "It indicates that the small farmer is doing his best to get out of debt; and by so doing he is helping stave off inflation. He is also proving that Farm Security was thoroughly justified in advancing him fair credit, even though no regular bank or credit institution would."

Records from this office are gratifying to FSA. We have helped 139 small farmers here increase production of foods needed by the nation, and we are helping small farmers help themselves.

During July and August, first two months of the new fiscal year, collections for the State of Maryland reached a total of $77,849 while collections for these two counties reached a total of $8,593,34.

Supervisor Walbert says these "Family Type Farms" are the ones from which the nation can expect the greatest proportionate increases. The greatest portion of the work is done by the farmer and his family. This eliminates the high-cost of labor which the larger farmers have been handicapped by.

Elephants In Elk River

Havre de Grace—Two elephants weighing tons while grazing along the banks of Elk river here slipped into the stream taking trees and tons of earth with them.

The elephants were here with Hunt's circus and is the custom of the management, they were turned out for a bit of fresh grass. They slipped into the stream and refused to come out at the command of their trainer. A block and fall was fastened to them as the last resort and about 100 men pulled the animals to shore as the show was about to go on.
