Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1890.

His Responsibility.

Shortly after Comptroller Baughman communicated his suspicion of crookedness in the official conduct of the State Treasurer, he is reported to have said that he was criticised for acting hastily in the matter. "But," said he, "there was nothing in the world for me to do except what I did do. The moment I discovered that the misappropriation was beyond a doubt it was my duty, the most painful I ever had to perform, to be sure, to notify the Governor. When I had done that my responsibility ended. In a matter like that I would allow no man, or set of men to control my conscience."

That sounds vastly pretty; but there was an official responsibility resting on the Comptroller, which did not end then, to which he was utterly faithless. The counting of the Treasury Relief Loan bonds, as required by law, would have given Col. Baughman the information of the Treasurer's defalcation more than two years ago, and it would have come to him in the proper manner and not through outside channels. Perhaps, at that time, Mr. Archer's friends might have been able to have made restitution for him, and saved his bondsmen from the ruin that threatens them, and his family from the shame and anguish that have fallen so heavily upon them. Oh, no, Col. Baughman's responsibility for a great crime has not ended, and never will end.

Amendments to the Constitution.

Six amendments to the Constitution of the State were passed at the recent session of the General Assembly and will be submitted to the voters of the State, at the next general election, for their approval or rejection. These amendments are:

1. That the Governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of appropriation bills embracing distinct items.

2. That the General Assembly shall not alter or amend the charter of any corporation, or pass any other general or special law for the benefit of such corporation, except upon the condition that such corporation shall surrender all claim to exemption from taxation.

3. That the prohibition in the Bill of Rights against taxes by the poll and the declaration that paupers ought not to be taxed for the support of government be stricken out. Also the declaration that every person in the State, or person holding property therein, ought to contribute his proportion of public taxes for the support of the government, according to his actual worth in real or personal property. For this provision the amendment proposes the following rule: All taxes ought to be uniform upon the same kinds of property or class of subjects, and should be levied and collected under general laws.

4. That County Commissioners shall be elected at such times, in such numbers and for such periods not exceeding six years as may be prescribed by law.

5. That the Board of Public Works may, subject to such legislation and conditions as the General Assembly may from time to time prescribe, sell the the State's interest in all works of internal improvement.

6. That the General Assembly may provide for the taxation of mortgages in the county or city where the mortgaged property is situated.

The Press on Archer's Defalcation.

Commenting on the tone of the State press concerning the Archer defalcation, the Baltimore Morning Herald says: "For the state, the people and the plundered treasury there is but one sentiment. That is, that the investigation should be prompt, exhaustive and energetic. The facts are what the Maryland editors have called for, whatever they may be and cut whom they may. It is demanded that the amount of the stolen securities shall be made known, that the manner of spending them shall be disclosed, and that Mr. Archer shall be given full opportunity to speak for himself in the matter."

Our observation is that the demand comes chiefly from the Republican press of the State. Our Democratic exchanges have very little to say about it. They probably imagine their silence or apparent indifference will lead their readers to suppose the defalcation is not a very great matter after all, and it will, doubtless, to some extent have that effect. How much, for instance, was learned by the Democrats of Carroll county concerning it from the following paragraph, the only reference made to it at all, in last week's Advocate: "In the case of the defalcation of State Treasurer Archer, the Committee of Investigation made a partial report before the adjournment of the Legislature, and were empowered to continue their investigation after the adjournment. Mr. Archer sent a letter of resignation to the Governor, on Tuesday, but the Governor will take no action in the case until Thursday next, when he will take it up in Baltimore, and have Mr. Archer before him. The Committee will resume its labors today, in Baltimore, in order to make the fullest investigation possible. It is said Mr. Archer will make a full statement of the case."

There are probably a good many Democrats in Carroll county who have not yet heard of the defalcation, and hundreds more who do not know that it exceeds a few thousand dollars. Only those Democrats who read the Republican papers of the county, or the city dailies or weeklies, have any knowledge of the neglect of the Governor and Comptroller to perform their constitutional and statute duties, respectively, by which the Treasury would have been protected and the theft of its bonds prevented. Certainly the Democratic press of this locality has not made a very urgent demand for a "prompt exhaustive an energetic" investigation of the case.

The secret ballot system was tried in Connecticut municipal elections on Tuesday last with satisfactory results.

Grand juries occasionally endorse indictments "ignoramus," meaning that they have no knowledge of the matters set forth. Governor Jackson should so endorse the Constitution of the State.

The Baltimorean (Dem.) says "there is no use attempting to disguise the fact that the Legislature which has just given up the ghost was one of the worst we have ever had in Maryland."

Of the $127,000 known to have been embezzled by Treasurer Archer the investigating committee has only been able, thus far, to trace about $43,000. The "Grandmother's Fund" might throw some light on the subject.

In contemplation of Treasurer Archer's stupendous theft of State securities there is danger that the relation of Governor Jackson and Comptroller Baughman to it may be lost sight of or only lightly considered. The public press owes a duty to the people to keep this matter before them. Ignorance of a plain mandate of the constitution or the law, or willful neglect to obey it, was, in this case, little short of criminal. The people should make it so hot for these incompetent officials that they will be glad to retire from public life.

Among the loans negotiated by State Treasurer Archer, from banks in Baltimore, were several dating back to 1887, which were secured by the deposit of Treasury Relief Loan bonds as collateral. Some of these notes are not yet paid and the banks still hold the bonds. This is conclusive evidence of the negligence of Comptroller Baughman. If he had performed his duty, as required by law, Archer's wrong doing would have been discovered within a few months after the first hypothecation of these bonds, and a hundred thousand dollars, or more, saved to the State Treasury. The Comptroller has not, thus far, imitated Governor Jackson by a plea of ignorance; nor has he offered any excuse for his culpable neglect of duty.

The Archer investigating committee was in session in Baltimore on Thursday, and examined several witnesses, among whom was Chief Clerk Wright, of the Comptroller's office. Apart from the facts already known the most important part of Mr. Wright's testimony related to the manner of conducting the business of the Treasurer's office during the ten years he has been connected with it. It disclosed a remarkable degree of looseness and negligence on the part, not only of immediate officers of the treasury department, but of legislative committees charged with the examination of certain accounts. The people should have a stern reckoning with all these parties as well as with the defaulting treasurer.

Under Arrest.

State Treasurer Stevenson Archer was arrested at his home, Hazel Dell, near Bel Air, on Thursday, under a bench warrant issued by Judge Harlan, of Baltimore, on the charge of embezzling State funds. The warrant was served and the arrest made by Detective Pumphrey, of Baltimore. It is expected that the accused will be indicted by the grand jury of Baltimore. He is still too unwell to be removed from his home, and the officer will remain there with him until he can be brought to the city. The horror of the proceeding to the family of the recusant Treasurer is simply unspeakable; but anything short of his public trial for the grave crime he has committed would be a mockery of justice; and sympathy for his suffering family cannot stand in its way.

A telegram from Louisville, Ky., dated 7th inst., says: It is just learned here that Harper's Ferry, Henry county, was almost completely destroyed by the tornado. The village, composed of less than two dozen houses, is a considerable distance from any railroad. The houses were not far apart and every one of them directly in the course the tornado. Men, women and children were buried beneath the ruins. Not a house remained standing and the whole surrounding country was covered with wreckage. Mrs. Laura Thomas, the wife of a farmer, was found dead by the side of a large tree about a hundred yards from her home. An infant child of a farmer named Fletcher was found beneath the ruins of its father's residence smothered to death. Seven or eight were injured badly, but none fatally. Those who escaped immediately took the others in charge and carried them to a schoolhouse in the hills not far distant, where they remained until morning. Then assistance came from the farmers whose houses escaped. The property loss will amount to $20,000.

William Galloway, the man who ran the first engine on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and probably the oldest engineer in the world, died rather suddenly last Sunday morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Rachel Hardy, 833 McHenry street Baltimore. He had been in very good health, and though 81 years of age his demise was hardly thought of. He was in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, as an engineer, between forty and fifty years, and was retired a few years ago on a pension. He ran chiefly between Baltimore and Washington and never met with a serious accident.

Douglas Hilger, who was a member of the Philadelphia branch of the New York banking firm of Sistare Brothers, died recently and an investigation of his affairs disclosed a system of peculation which has involved the firm and rendered its suspension necessary. Hilger conducted the business of the branch house and his irregularities are variously estimated as from $100,000 to $600,000. He falsified the books.

A number of towns and villages in Ohio and Michigan were struck by cyclones, or visited by electrical and hail storms on Tuesday last. Buildings, trees and fences were blown down and much damage done to property. At Norwalk, Ohio, an umbrella factory was blown down, one young woman killed and several seriously injured. Three men were killed near Sharon.

A tornado at Roanoke, Va., on Wednesday, blew down an iron furnace and killed three men. A hundred houses in course of erection were demolished. The furnace at Salem was also blown down and a number of buildings in that vicinity reduced to ruins.

Reports from 106 counties of Kansas show that the agricultural condition is satisfactory.

A Service Pension Bill.

A service pension bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives, by Mr. Boothman, of Ohio, which provides substantially as follows: "It grants a service pension of one cent per month for each day of service to every man who served in the Union Army during the late war, without regard to age; it provides that these soldiers who now receive a disability pension may, if they choose, relinquish their disability pension and accept the service pension. Widows of those drawing the service pension will be placed on the rolls at $8 per month during widowhood, but reserves the right to widows to prosecute and obtain a pension under the present law by showing that the husband died from disability contracted in service and line of duty. The bill also grants a pension of $3 a month to minor children under 16 years of age of soldiers who die while drawing a pension, and if any of the children are so helpless as to require the care of any other person the pension is to continue during this helplessness. If the widow dies or remarries before the children attain the age of 16 her pension is to be paid to them until they attain that age.

During the recent meeting of the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church a movement was inaugurated for the establishment of a Methodist Protestant University, at Kansas City, Mo.

Forty-two buildings, comprising the business portion of the village of Theresa, N. Y., twenty-five miles from Watertown, were burned Saturday, causing a loss of about $150,000.

The Forest block, on the corner of Main and Austin streets, Worcester, Mass., was wholly destroyed by fire Sunday. Loss $70,000.

The adjutant-general of Illinois reports that five persons were killed and sixty wounded by the late tornado in that State.

Fire in a livery stable in Chicago, on Monday, suffocated fifteen horses.
