Breaking In Paint Brushes

To insure their longer life, new paint brushes should be broken in carefully before they are used. One of the best ways is to soak the brush in raw linseed oil for several days. Then dip it into the painting material you intend to use and draw it across a rough, unplaned board several times. This will remove any loose bristles that were not securely fastened during the manufacturing process. If the brush is put in paint before being soaked in oil, the porous bristles will absorb pigment, causing them to stiffen and lose their flexibility.
