Must Rule.

Mr. Hemphill, of South Carolina, in his argument in the House of Representatives on the federal election bill, frankly said: "We know we," that is the Democrats, "must either rule the South or leave it." The means by which they are to rule do not seem to be considered. Rule they must. If by peaceable, fair and honest means, well; but if not, they must rule at any rate. This is the practical substance of Mr. Hemphill's declaration. No consideration is given to the fact that by maintaining this rule by unfair means; by suppressing legal votes, miscounting and other devices, it isn't alone the humble and, it may be ignorant, blacks who are wronged and defrauded, in the national sense. This kind of rule reaches much farther than the South and affects the rights and inrerests of the people of every State and every Congressional district in the country.

The federal election bill does not aim to correct the wrongs of this sort of rule outside of this limit. There is no power in Congress to force the people of any State to conduct their State and local elections fairly and honestly. This is not a concession, but an admitted, well defined fact, and it is morally certain that if Democratic interference with the negro's right to the exercise of the elective franchise had been limited to State and local affairs alone, such a thing as a federal election law would never had been thought of.

When the system of robbing the negro of the due effect of his ballot was first inaugurated, there were men in the South in sympathy with the plan locally, who were conscientiously opposed to extending it to federal elections, and deprecated that action. Whether long familiarity with the practice has deadened their sense of its impropriety we know not. It would naturally have that effect. But one fact is clear. No man who desires to see a full, free, fair and honest vote and count of the ballots of all who are legally entitled to the elective franchise, can properly oppose the federal election law.

The one purpose of that law is to secure honest and fair Congressional elections. It goes no further—it can go no further. But the declaration of Mr. Hemphill, sustained by the acts of the Democratic Representatives from all parts of the country, read between the lines, means nothing less than that they "must rule," not the South alone, but the whole country. The federal election bill does not aim to prevent that rule, if legitimately accorded by the whole people, but to make it impossible that it shall be exercised against the will of a majority of the legally qualified voters of the country.

Those who decry this legislation and talk about force bills, are simply objecting to a measure which aims at and promises fair federal elections. The opponents of the measure seem to be able to offer no better argument against it than that of Mr. Hemphill. If they could only offer a corrective of the wrong the bill would not long plague their dreams.

Sam Jones.

Sam Jones, the alleged Evangelist, seems to have a large streak of vulgarity in his nature. Last Sunday he delivered an address to an immense audience at the prohibition camp grounds near Moundsville, West Va., in which he said, speaking of Senator Quay: "Talk about wickedness. Look at Matt. Quay. There you find it personified. Unless he repents he'll go where the fire dieth not." Then he turned his attention to President Harrison, of whom he said: "He's small. I saw a picture of him under his grandfather's hat a few days ago. They might have put the whole Harrison family under the hat and still have had lots of room." But the soul of this preacher of righteousness expanded with ecstacy when he came to contemplate the moral purity of——Grover Cleveland, whom, it is said, he eulogized in picturesque language.

Doubtless Mr. Jones' political sentiments have much to do with his opinion of the people whom he critised. His style of talk, however, is generally discreditable to his calling. While he, as a preacher of the gospel, becomes a vulgar critic of better men than himself, it is worthy of remark that politicians, who are generally looked upon as a scurrillous set, rarely indulge in language towards their political opponents as low as that employed by him on the occasion above referred to.

But then Mr. Jones finds that sort of thing pays, and the almighty dollar seems to be a very attractive object to him in view of the fortune he has accumulated. It is about time that Christian people set their faces against these mountebank performances.

Great Britain, confessedly a free-trade country, recognizes the propriety of protection by paying liberal subsidies to its merchant marine for carrying the mails. The United States, a protective tariff country, leaves its merchant marine to struggle unsuccessfully with the subsidized vessels of Great Britain. This is an anomaly. The condition resulting from it is the practical exclusion of American shipping from the foreign carrying trade, and the multiplication of English ships to which our commerce pays an immense annual tribute. The time has come when the United States should use the means employed by other nations to foster their shipping interests, and thus put into practical application the principle of protection to home industries that has wrought unexampled prosperity in other departments of American enterprise.

Stevenson Archer is in the penitentiary, but no law can reach the Executive of the State and the Comptroller of its Treasury, through whose lack of official fiedelity he was emboldened to commit the crime for which he suffers. They cannot be driven from the offices they have neglected, but they might at least have the grace to resign.

In the Penitentiary.

Stevenson Archer, the defaulting State Treasurer, is in the Maryland penitentiary as a self-confessed criminal. He appeared before the Criminal Court of Baltimore on Monday last and entered a plea of guilty to the indictment charging him with the embezzlement of securities belonging to the State. He went to Baltimore by the Maryland Central Railroad, accompanied by his life-long friend, Col. Edwin H. Webster; his son-in-law, State Senator Benjamin Silver, and Stevenson Archer Williams, of the Bel Air bar. Reaching the city they went to the office of Mr. Bernard Carter, one of Mr. Archer's counsel, and from thence, accompanied by Mr. Carter and Mr. Gans, the latter also one of his counsel, to the criminal court-room. There Mr. Archer confessed a plea of guilty through his attorney, Mr. Carter, who read the following paper:

Hon. William A. Stewart, Judge of the Criminal Court of Baltimore City:

I hereby plead guilty to the indictment which has just been read. In doing so, I respectfully ask leave to say that when the indictment was found I was advised by my counsel that they had examined the statute upon which the indictment was based, and that they were clearly of the opinion that the statute was never intended to embrace within its provisions the Treasurer of the State, and that, therefore, my offense, grievous as it is, was not punishable under the statute; but, now that the highest court in the state has decided that, if I am guilty of the offenses charged, I am punishable under that statute, I desire here in the presence of this court fully to acknowledge that I am guilty of the offenses charged against me in the indictment, and also to confess that I have been guilty of a great sin against Almighty God; that I have proved false to the great trust committed to me by my native state; that I have deeply and cruelly wronged, not only those friends who, because of their great and undoubting confidence in my integrity, became the sureties on my official bonds, but others also who have suffered pecuniary loss because of that same confidence.

For this my conduct I can offer no excuse or palliation. Now that I have, so to speak, come to myself, I realize its enormity, and am deeply sorry for, and I sincerely trust truly penitent of all I have done.

The sorrow and misery which have been caused by my conduct are shared by many, but no blame for any part of it attaches to anyone but myself; it is all mine, and mine alone.

No part of the state's money, or securities, was ever used by me in gambling, stock speculation or for political purposes, nor have I at this time one dollar of it left. I, therefore, submit myself to the judgment and mercy of the court.

STEVENSON ARCHER.

When Mr. Carter concluded the reading there was a moment's silence, and then the voice of Judge Stewart was heard, saying: "Mr. Clerk, I impose the penalty of five years in the penitentiary upon Stevenson Archer." From the court room the condemned man was taken to the State's prison and arrayed in the garb of that institution. These are the cold, hard facts of the story. The sorrow and agony they involve to the convict, and to his family and friends, human language cannot portray. Humiliated, crushed and doomed to the shadow of perpetual disgrace, who can fathom the feelings of Stevenson Archer, the political idol of Harford county, once the people's Representative of his District in Congress, and subsequently the trusted custodian of the State's money, himself an honored man and the son of an honored father, as the iron gates of the penitentiary shut him in for five dreary, wretched years? Or who can imagine the shame and and agony of the wife and children of this disgraced husband and father whom they loved and still love with unchanging devotion? Callous, indeed, must be the heart that has no pulsation of sympathy for these stricken ones and for the man who is the cause of all their misery.

But the end is just and it was essential to the public welfare that the perpetrator of this great crime should suffer its penalty. Hearts may bleed and eyes may weep tears of bitter sorrow, but sin and crime cannot go unpunished.

The Appointment of Gen. King.

The appointment of Gen. Adam E. King, of Baltimore, as Consul General at Paris, meets the hearty approbation of the Republicans of Maryland. Gen. King is one of the ablest orators in this country, and his eloquent arguments in the Northern States, during the campaign of 1888, aided materially in the achievement of the victory which elevated Gen. Harrison to the Presidency and gave the country a House of Representatives in harmony with the great doctrines of the Republican party. The office to which he has been appointed is one of great importance and among the most lucrative in the gift of the President. His preferment is a just recognition of his ability and his eminent political services, not only in the campaign of 1888, but for the last quarter of a century, and also of his military services in the cause of the Union. The SENTINEL tenders its sincere congratulations on the auspicious event.

Is Stevenson Archer the scapegoat for other men's sins? He says no part of the money embezzled by him was used for political purposes, but he makes no explanation of the uses to which it was devoted. An impression prevails in some quarters that he was induced to plead guilty to the indictment against him for fear of revelations on his trial that might have involved others and proved damaging to the Democratic party. Whether true or false, one thing is clear: Mr. Archer, as a defaulter, is the product of the ring oligarchy that has been ruling the Democratic party for the fifth of a century. Sending him to the penitentiary will not restore the people's confidence in the bosses, or their respect for a Governor and Comptroller who plead guilty to ignorance of the plainest requirements of their offices.

Our editorial brethren of the Maryland Democratic Editors' Association are the champion jokers of the country. They say the federal election bill, passed by the House of Representatives, "is designed to take away from the people the right to elect, untrammeled, their own Representatives." The joke in this lies in the fact that the design of the measure is to prevent a portion of the people from taking away from another portion of the people their right even to vote for their own Representatives. But then, it may be, that the Democratic editors do not recognize colored persons as a portion of the people.

The United States Senate has confirmed the nomination of Mr. G. L. Wellington, of Cumberland, to be Assistant U. S. Treasurer at Baltimore.

It is related as a curious fact that about the only two articles in the grocery line that have not become cheaper since 1880, are coffee and tea. All articles upon which there is an import duty sell for less to-day than they did ten years ago. Coffee and tea are on the free list. Whether the statement, as to change in the price of groceries, is entirely accurate we are not able to say; but it is certainly true that "protected" articles are, in the main, considerably lower in price than they were in 1880. The prices of free coffee and tea are maintained at exorbitant figures. The free-trader will attempt to account for this apparent anomaly in every way but the right one.

The efforts of the Baltimore Sun and other Democratic papers to manufacture sentiment against Hon. Louis E. McComas among the Republicans of his District, because of his speech and vote in favor of the federal election bill, are more than likely to defeat their purpose, which is to prevent his renomination. Whatever of Republican opposition there may be to Mr. McComas' candidacy, for a fifth term, is not due to his course in regard to this law and these Democratic assaults will only serve to rally Republicans, who might otherwise have been luke warm, to his support.

The manufacturers of Clark's "O. N. T." Spool Cotton, having been charged with selling their product cheaper for export than it can be bought in the largest quantities for home consumption, have utterly denied the allegation and declare that they have never sold a spool for export for less than it is sold to American customers. The free-traders must be hard pressed for arguments when they resort to this species of misrepresentation.

According to the American Economist, the balance of trade against the United States, between the years 1846 and 1875, aggregated the immense sum of $1,563,281,394. Since 1875, under a protective tariff, these balances have been entirely recovered. Yet in the face of this the free-trader, under the guise of tariff reform, wants to return to the system that impoverishes our own country to enrich foreign lands.

The members of the Maryland Editors' Association need a little posting in their knowledge of the federal constitution. Among other things they say, in an address they have agreed to issue to the Democratic voters of the State, that "the Republican party in Congress has framed and the House has passed a federal election law contrary to the constitution." They are respectfully referred to Art. 1, Sec. 4, of the constitution, for better information.

Maryland Democratic editors are kicking like steers against the introduction of local issues into the approaching Congressional campaign. No wonder. Local issues in Maryland about this time have a very unsavory odor, and the more they are stirred the greater the stench.

Spread of Protection.

From CANADIAN MANUFACTURER.

Protective tariff sentiments are extending and chrystalizing by leaps and bounds in many parts of the world. The French people are felicitating themselves that in a couple of years more all their outstanding and objectionable trade treaties will expire by limitation, when they will make only such arrangements with other nations as will leave themselves free to enforce their ideas of Protection to their own industries to suit themselves. China is doing similarly by increasing her import duty upon cotton goods, opium, &c. Spain is moving in the same direction; Germany imposes high Protective duties; Servia is heading off the dishonesty of importers by declining to accept their valuations of imports except under the inspection of her own customs appraisers, and, as we have heretofore shown, even in England a strong party is being formed looking to a Protective financial system. We all know how it is in Canada and the United States. It is to be observed that whenever allusion is made to this fast and wide-spreading sentiment in favor of Tariff Protection, the information is promulgated that "British traders and manufacturers protest" against proposed changes. These protests do not retard the movement, and Britain will soon have to join the procession.

Virginia Republicans.

The Virginia Republican State committee at a meeting held on Wednesday passed resolutions declaring that they will not participate, and advising "all self-respecting Republicans to forbear participation, in any election in the state where, and so long as, the same shall be conducted under the foul election law of the democratic party, as now fraudulently administered—hopefully biding the time when unlawful disfranchisement of the electors and fraudulent returns shall become repugnant to popular sentiment."

In deference, and only in deference, to what may be wished in some districts, authority is delegated to every committee to call conventions if it desires to do so.

A man named Nicholas Hoffman attempted to pawn a gold watch, in Baltimore, on Monday last, which proved to be the one stolen from Mrs. Sarah Blaney, when she and her daughter, Caroline Blaney, were murdered at their home, on Greenmount avenue, on the night of the 2nd of May. Hoffman accounted for his possession of the watch by explaining that it was given him to be pawned by a man named David F. Drane. Drane was found, and stated that while undergoing a sentence in the city jail he made the acquaintance of Wm. Blaney, who is charged with the murder of his grandmother and her daughter, his aunt, and that Blaney had told him where the watch was secreted and requested him to get it when he got out of jail and pawn it. He found it at the place described by Blaney and gave it to Hoffman to pawn. Both Drane and Hoffman were in jail when the murder was committed. This is very strong testimony against William Blaney and may be the means of convicting him of two of the most atrocious murders ever perpetrated.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister at Washington, denies a rumor published in Washington that negotiations between Great Britain and the United States concerning the Behring sea seal fisheries had been broken off by Great Britain, and her vessels ordered to prevent the seizure of Canadian sealers by force.

THE BEST FERTILIZER!

FARMERS' GOLD DUST PHOSPHATE, which has now been on the market here for four years, has proven itself equal to the best grades of Fertilizers sold in the county. It has no superior for wheat and no equal for grass. This is not advertising buncombe, but solid fact. It has been thoroughly tested and the best references can be given as to its value. Try it and be convinced.

PROSPECTUS

—OF—

N. I. Gorsuch & Son,

MERCHANT MILLERS.

In coming before the public and offering the services of our new department, we would state that in building our

Roller Flour Mill

we have spared neither pains nor expense in making it a perfect mill, second to none in Western Maryland. We shall use in the manufacturing of Flour—shipping all other grades—so that consumers may be assured of uniform brands of Flour of first quality. We propose to exchange with the farmer, giving him a barrel of best flour for five bushels of wheat, giving him the privilege of bringing his wheat here and taking his flour as he wants. Our will be ready early in July, and we can supply consumers or dealers Fancy Corn Meal, fresh from the buhrs, at lowest prices. We will manufacture our own Chop and do custom work for the regular toll. We especially invite the farmers to deal with us in our Flour and Chopping business, guaranteeing them every satisfaction.

Only Strictly Choice Wheat

We propose holding the lead we have attained in the

so that farmers can feel assured when buying Fertilizers of us that they are buying at the closest margin that they can be sold at. We solicit inspection in all our departments.

Respectfully,
