Notice to County Central Committee.

The members of the Republican County Central Committee are requested to meet promptly at the parlors of the City Hotel, Westminster, Md., on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8TH, 1890, at 10 o'clock, A. M. Important business, which is not routine, will be transacted and a full attendance is therefore desired.

I. E. PEARSON, Chairman.
WM. H. BELL, JR., Secretary.

Practice vs. Profession.

The Democratic party just at this time is patting the farmer on the back, and expressing a lively interest in his welfare and sympathy for his forlorn condition. Every Democratic orator takes it upon himself to assure the farmers that ruin is staring them in the face, and that it is all owing to the "robber tariff" that now protects them in their own home market against the competition of foreign grown wheat. Intelligent farmers must be vastly amused by this solicitude for their welfare on the part of Democratic politicians and this display of dense ignorance of the palpably beneficial effect of protective duties. Some things are happening just now that indicate that this newborn Democratic zeal in behalf of agricultural interests is only begotten of a yearning for the farmers' votes, and not by any genuine desire to benefit this great industry. In the consideration of the tariff bill in the Senate, on Wednesday, the first item applying to an agricultural product was reached and met with the usual opposition that marks the course of the Democrats on the whole measure. Mr. Spooner aptly satirized the tears shed on the Democratic side of the Senate over the woes of the farmer and said "he had expected Democratic Senators to be pressing on each other, with wild and reckless haste, to join the procession of those who were endeavoring to do all they could in the interests of their friends the farmers. But just as baseless an attack had been made on that item as on any that preceded it. He thought that the farmers in those states where tobacco was cultivated would be warranted in coming to the conclusion that a great deal of the sympathy that had been so abundantly expressed for them on that side of the chamber had been oratorical chaff."

But then, in this matter, like many others, it is practice that attests sincerity and not cheap profession.

The Federal Election Law.

While the Senate has deferred action on the federal election bill, it has been agreed on the part of the Republican Senators that it shall be taken up and disposed of by a direct vote between the opening of the next session and the Christmas holidays. Perhaps, after all, this may be wiser than to force the measure to a vote at the present session. The constitutionality of the bill is beyond a shadow of doubt, and the only innovation involved is upon custom not law. Still, there are many persons who entertain such profound respect for time-honored customs, that they will only yield an assent to their abrogation upon the evidence of absolute necessity. It would seem patent that the necessity exists, in this case, to provide some means by which elections of Congressmen in a number of the States may be made something more than a farce or a crime. No other means have been suggested than this same federal election bill, and it is boldly asserted by the beneficiaries of the frauds against which it is aimed that it cannot be enforced. Timid souls hesitate to make the venture and go on hoping that the necessity for its adoption may cease. The postponement of its consideration gives another opportunity to test the prospect of that consummation by any other means than federal action in the premises.

Fair elections, with a full and free vote honestly canvassed, will undoubtedly give the Republicans a majority in the Fifty-Second Congress. That result can only be prevented by the employment of the usual methods in the Southern States, and by Democratic frauds in such places as Jersey City, New Jersey, Albany, N. Y., and other points in the North. We have no hope that the methods and frauds referred to will be abandoned at the approaching elections. In the South it is not pretended that the colored people will be permitted vote and to have their votes counted as cast. Elsewhere fraud will be rampant in the effort to gain control of the House of Representatives. These combined means may return a Democratic majority, but their employment will awaken the moral sense of the Nation to the necessity of reformation. With a renewal of the outrages that gave the country a fraudulently elected President in 1884 and a Congress similarly chosen two years later, there will be a universal demand on the part of the Republicans for the passage of the federal election law. On the other hand an approximation to fair and honest elections throughout the country will be gladly hailed as the evidence that the necessity for the adoption of this measure no longer exists. The Democrats have it in their power to kill the bill by means that would be welcomed as the dawning of a better day in national politics. We have no idea that they will embrace the opportunity. Victory must be achieved by any means and at any cost; but the Democrats may be assured that the price they will have to pay for a repetition of the wrongs heretofore practiced will be the passage and enforcement of the law. There will probably be few who, in some degree, will not regret the adoption of this measure, but their most profound regret will be that a continuance of gross and glaring wrongs upon the rights of the people shall have made its passage a stern and vital necessity.

The Strike in New York.

A general strike of the employes on the railroads of the Vanderbilt system has been averted by the refusal of the Federation of Railway Employes to give the order requiring it. The strike on the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad has, thus far, been comparatively unsuccessful. The officers of the Company appear to have had knowledge of the proceedings of the Knights of Labor antecedent to the strike and to have been fairly well prepared to meet it. Many new men have taken the places of the strikers, so that, while the road has been hampered in handling its train, the obstruction has not been anything like total. Master Workman Powderly is backing up the strike for all he is worth, but it is probable the end of it will be the triumph of the railroad company and the loss of employment by a good many men who cannot afford to be idle. Even if that were not so the loss of wages must necessarily be great and th t loss will be on the side of the employes. The strike was ordered on an apparent misapprehension. Several men were discharged by the officials of the road, as they allege, for intoxication and other proper causes. The discharged men claimed that it was because of their connection with the Knights of Labor and stirred up their former associates to resent it and demand their restoration. This was refused and the strike followed. Strikes on the New York Central are of rare occurrence. The company seems to have taken a decided interest in the comfort and welfare of its employes. Mr. Depew, now in Europe, is President of the Company, and has given personal attention to matters of this character. No other road entering New York has provided such conveniences for employes coming on trains into that city. A splendid building with lavatories, dressing rooms, dining room, reading room and sleeping apartments, has been erected for their use and everything possible done to lighten their burden of labor. It is unfortunate, to say the least of it, that a misunderstanding on a mere question of sentiment should provoke a strike that will undoubtedly be the cause of depriving many of the men of those advantages and of employment as well.

The Baltimore County Safe Robbery.

The thief who stole the funds from the safe of Treasurer Yellott, at Towsontown, has not yet been discovered. It appears that Detective Hogan, of Baltimore, who was employed to ascertain the perpetrator of the thefts, did not succeed in his effort but did get a bullet in his arm from the pistol of John Carroll, the night watchman. Hogan hid in a closet in the Treasurer's room, and while there Carroll and two boys came in and sat down at a table. One of the boys commenced toying with the lock on the cash drawer and Carroll explained the combination and opened it. The boys then went out and Carroll went into an adjoining room. The heat in the closet became so oppressive that the detective finally left it and called to Carroll, who then entered the room and commenced firing, although Hogan displayed his badge and explained that he was an officer. As Carroll continued firing Hogan also drew his pistol and fired two shots, but, probably intentionally, without effect. There must be a lively set around the Baltimore county court house, but thus far the thief appears to have effectually obliterated his tracks. It may be, however, that the investigation is only a blind to conceal the identity of the perpetrator of the crime.

A Black Eye to Free-Trade.

Anent the advance in the price of wheat a little incident has occurred that gives the free-traders' theory that the tariff is of no advantage to the farmer, a very black eye. A cargo of wheat shipped to England from Baltimore was returned to that port and sold for six cents more per bushel than could be realized in the foreign country. In other words Russian and Indian wheat were being discharged at English ports at six cents a bushel less than the rate in our home markets. The price has advanced still further here and the discrepancy is now greater. Without a tariff on wheat the foreign product could be put down in the United States at figures at least ten cents lower than the ruling price. Are farmers in favor of abolishing the tariff on grain? It is safe to say that few will be found to advocate that action, or oppose the advance provided by the McKinley tariff bill. As a rule also farmers are just men and will not be found in opposition to the protection to other industries enjoyed by their own. The practical advantages of protection are coming home to them in a way to confound and comfute the sophistries so sedulously advanced by the free-trade tariff reformers.

Without much flourish of trumpets the Nicaragua Canal Construction Company has been making preparations to begin the stupendous work of excavating that wonderful artificial water-way between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. De Lesseps' Panama scheme is practically moribund and a failure. The enterprise of the American company, of which Ex-Senator Warner Miller is President, seems assured a successful termination. The whole length of the work will be a fraction less than 170 miles, but only a little more than 26 miles will require excavation. The remainder will be through natural channels, a good deal of which will be rendered navigable by dredging. The total capacity of the canal will be from twenty to forty millions of tons annually. Greytown harbor is being dredged and the necessary wharfage constructed, and a railroad is being built along the line of the proposed water-way for the purpose of facilitating the work.

The Republicans of the Eighteenth Congressional District of Ohio have renominated Major William McKinley, the author of the McKinley tariff bill. Major McKinley's majority in 1888 was upwards of 4,000, but the Democrats, having obtained a majority in the Legislature, have gerrymandered the District so as to show an apparent Democratic majority of 2,500. The Republicans, under the leadership of Major McKinley, are hopeful that even these great odds can be overcome. The nominee made a powerful speech in consenting to become the party standard-bearer, which was an ample and convincing vindication of the course of Republican Representatives in Congress.

The House of Representatives passed the lard bill on Thursday. The rigid inspection provided for may give this American commodity better standing in foreign markets.

The bills which passed the Senate for the revival of the American carrying trade have not yet received action in the House. These measures are important and should not be suffered to lie over.

It has been alleged that the Louisiana Lottery interests have indulged the hope of defeating the postal legislation, aimed at that iniquity, which has already passed the House, by killing it in the Senate, but the last advices indicate that the bill will pass that body almost unanimously.

Mr. Blaine sent a telegram to the Republican Congressional Convention of the Eighteenth District of Ohio, in session at Masllon, on Tuesday last, strongly endorsing Major McKinley. This does not indicate the existence of a feud between Mr. Blaine and his party on the tariff question.

The House of Representatives has had an unseemly wrangle over the lard bill this week. On Wednesday the matter culminated in a disgraceful row, the lie was bandied between Representatives and blows were struck. The House owes it to its own dignity to place on record a severe vote of censure on this reprehensible conduct.

Citizens of Baltimore are alarmed, and with reason, over a statement of Dr. Chas. W. Chancellor, secretary and executive officer of the State Board of Health, that Lake Roland is receiving the washings from stables and outhouses at Lutherville. A pure water supply is absolutely essential to public health, and the condition of things reported in connection with the drainings into Lake Roland, make that simply impossible for Baltimore until a corrective shall have been applied. The matter is to be laid before the Attorney General.

Final action on the tariff bill cannot be much longer delayed. The memorandum of an agreement to vote upon the measure at an early date was entered, by unanimous consent, on the records of the Senate on Tuesday. No absolute date is fixed for the vote, but it is generally supposed the end will be reached about the 9th of September. There seems to be no doubt about the passage of the bill, but as amendments have been made in the Senate a conference committee will probably be necessary and an agreement will be reached and the bill be submitted to the President about the middle of September. His prompt approval will follow and the bill will become a law.

The advance in the price of wheat is calculated to embarrass the Democratic politicians who are getting up a series of tariff reform picnics for the purpose of enlightning the farmer as to his oppressed condition under the system of protective duties. Wheat is now worth eight or ten per cent. more in American markets than it is in Europe and but for the protection afforded by this same tariff, against which the so called reformers are inveighing, American farmers would be brought into competition with the foreign product at their very doors. Protective duties, wisely imposed, benefit all classes, not excepting the farmers, and they are not likely to be slow in understanding the fact with this eminently practical evidence of it brought so forcibly to their attention.

Further changes in the rules of the House of Representatives seem to be necessary to promote the proper transaction of business. A quorum has been prevented on an important measure this week by members retiring from the floor when the roll was about to be called, only to repeat the proceeding upon a call of the House. In the Maryland Legislature a call of the House involves the closing of the doors and an embargo on the egress of members until further proceedings, under the call, are dispensed with. This common sense rule might be beneficially applied in the National Legislature, but a better would be to deduct a good large sum, in the shape of a fine, from the salary of a member willfully absenting himself to prevent a quorum, for each offence. It would not be often necessary to impose the penalty.

The Methodist Protestant camp at Chilton's woods, Caroline county, closed Monday. The pastor in charge, Rev. R. L. Lewis, was assisted in the services by Revs. J. M. Holmes, Dr. Valliant, A. D. Melvin, Dr. T. H. Lewis, G. Q. Bacchus, McCready and others. An effort has been made to purchase the woods and make it a permanent camp-meeting ground.

The Baltimore Base-ball Club has severed its connection with the Atlantic Association and become a member of the American Association. The change occurred on the 26th inst., at which time the Baltimores were leading in the Atlantic, having won 77 out of 101 games, while the next highest club had won 68 out of 93 games. By severing its connection with the Atlantic Association the Baltimore Club gives up the pennant already practically won.
