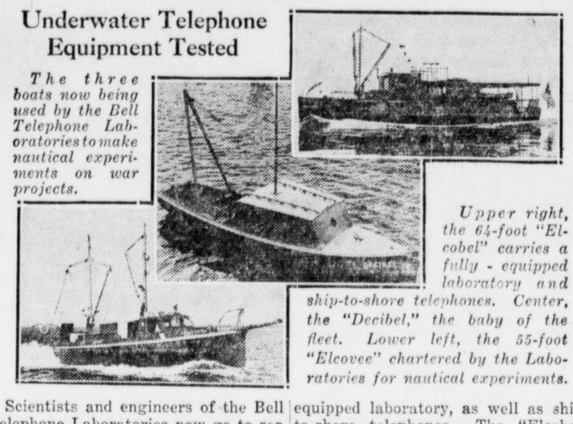
Steam Bath Canning

Steam-bath canners, when properly used, may serve the same purpose as the water-bath canner. The jars may or may not be partly immersed in water, but flowing steam must surround the uncovered portions. The food is handled as for the water-bath process, but since the temperature is usually slightly below that reached in the water bath, the processing time in the steamer is increased by one-fourth over the water-bath time.

BELL LABS "FLEET" SAILS ON WAR PROJECTS

Underwater Telephone Equipment Tested



The three boats now being used by the Bell Telephone Laboratories to make nautical experiments on war projects.

Upper right, the 64-foot "Elcobel" carries a fully - equipped laboratory and ship-to-shore telephones. Center, the "Decibel," the baby of the fleet. Lower left, the 55-foot "Elcovee" chartered by the Laboratories for nautical experiments.

Scientists and engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories now go to sea in well-equipped floating laboratories to conduct experiments on war projects involving equipment for underwater use.

Two boats—the 64-foot "Elcobel" and the 55-foot "Elcovee"—are the main units of the "fleet" used in these nautical experiments. Most of the work is done in Long Island Sound. One of the craft has been in Chesapeake Bay recently.

The two larger boats are manned by crews furnished by the people from whom the craft were chartered by the Laboratories. Each carries a fully-equipped laboratory, as well as ship-to-shore telephones. The "Elcobel" has sleeping accommodations which are used on occasion by the technical personnel, although the boats usually return to shore at night.

Since the sea-going scientists are essentially land lubbers, some of them don't fare so well in rough waters, but they've a job to do and they're doing it in spite of personal discomforts.

In addition to the larger craft, the Laboratories uses a smaller auxiliary boat of its own, the "Decibel," to assist in conducting various kinds of experiments.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbances sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!
