A Winged Lizard.

One of the strangest of the many strange creatures that inhabit the the wilds of southern Asia and India is the "flying flowers," a small, brilliant hued lizard of the order bracovolans. On the wing bracovolans resembles a richly tinted insect; when at rest it compares favorably with others of the lizard tribe, with the exception that it has an extraordinary protuberance on both sides of the body. These are the wings, which are formed by a cutaneous flap, winglike in shape, supported by a series of false ribs. In color these flying lizards are blue and gray, with intermediate tints of various kinds and shades.

The tail is long, slender and very snaky in appearance. A large double pouch extending below the head adds to the ferocious aspect of the little rainbow colored brute. The wings are not true wings, strictly so called, but are used merely as parachutes. When the lizard leaps from the limb of a tree into the air the upper current brings them out, and enables the possessor to soar away at an angle to a greater or lesser distance, according to the height of the starting point.

The lizard can change its direction while in the air, a power not possessed by our "flying squirrels." Hence the casual observer might readily believe that they had the power of moving the winglike appendages, which would, in that case, be true flight. Soaring is, however, the limit of their power, the height of the starting point regulating the distance traveled in the soaring flight, which is quite frequently several hundred yards, an aerial exhibition which strikes terror to the heart of a stranger wandering for the first time in the jungles of the antipodean wilds.

His Way of Putting It.

"I paid a bill the other day," said a large manufacturer to me, "without a murmur, simply because of the way it was worded. My engineer found his hot water pump would not work, and, after puttering at it for an hour, sent for a machinist. He bothered with it half a day and concluded it must come apart. I was much annoyed, for that meant a stoppage of my factory for a long time. Before I gave the order to take it to pieces some one suggested that a neighboring engineer be sent for, as he was a sort of genius in the matter of machinery. He came, and after studying the pump awhile, he took a hammer and gave three sharp raps over the valve. 'I reckon she'll go now,' he quietly said, and, putting on steam, 'she did go.' The next day I received a bill from him for $25.50. The price amazed me, but when I had examined the items I drew a check at once. The bill read this way: 'Messrs. Blank & Co., Dr. to John Smith. For fixing pump, 50 cents. For knowing how, $25.' Had he charged me $25.50 for fixing the pump I should have considered it exorbitant. But 50 cents was reasonable, and I recognize the value of knowledge, so I paid and said nothing."

Queen Bees.

In a paper read by a successful woman bee keeper at the Ohio convention of apiarists she told what the queen should be in the following words:

The queen mother should be a well developed queen of whatever race or combination of races one may choose. I prefer a pure Italian strain and a queen in her second year. For the trade I would use only imported Italian queens. By getting new queens every year there would be no danger of interbreeding. I do not want a queen so unsatisfactory to the bees that they are trying to supersede her, either because she is too old or unprolific or for some unknown reason, for I believe in the law of heredity in bees as well as in man or the lower animals, and I do not think [redacted] acid. This will make a hole."

W. R. Jennings, of Marshall, Texas, has discovered a very effective and simple means of getting rid of roaches. It is simply to put a toad in any room that is infected with them. Last summer a large toad got into the postoffice, and remained there over night. Afterward the office was clear of roaches.

A watch for blind people has been invented in Switzerland. In the middle of every figure is a small peg, which drops when the hour hand reaches the figure. The owner feels that the peg is down, and counts back to twelve to determine the hour.

Anger makes dull men witty, but keeps them poor.

FERTILIZERS

We appear again before the farming public in this our second year, greatly encouraged both in the amount of sales and from the flattering reports that we are receiving daily from all sections of the county as to the good results on last year's crops. We could produce hundreds of testimonials verifying this fact without going back over a series of years to get them; but as we have sold goods over nearly all this county, we prefer to refer you to your neighbors who have used them.

We challenge competition in analysis, drilling condition and bulkiness of our goods, as our sacks will show, and we also challenge competition in and we invite the farmer to go to the full extent of finding out the truth of this assertion. We believe that we are selling more goods than all of the factories of the county combined, and it is because of the large amount of our sales that we are able to do business on small profits.

We Make Our Own Goods

from material with a guaranteed analysis, and

We know what we Sell, and do not have them manufactured by the cheapest BIDDER IN SOME OBSCURE PLACE, but do it right under the eyes of our customers. We will give a large reward if any such insoluble matter as hoofs, horns, leather or marl, or such cheap materials as plaster, ashes or dirt of any kind can be found in them. We invite the farmer to our factory and ask that you encourage home manufacture by buying from
