Mousses Too, Can Be Served Prepared Very Economically

There was a time when a mousse was quite a treat to the family—made with several cups of thick whipping cream—so, as you know, mousses just havn't been served around these parts lately, but hot weather brings fond recollections and yearnings.

Housewives who have been on strict budgets in the past know that mousses can be served however—economical mousses that simply melt in your mouth and give all the goodness desired. Instead of whipping cream, use evaporated milk and you can plan to make one soon. Won't everyone be surprised?

ECONOMICAL MOUSSE

2½ cups apricots, cranberries or peaches, strained
1 teaspoon water
¾ to 1 cup sugar (to taste)
1 cup evaporated milk
1 1-6 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon gelatin

Scald the evaporated milk, add gelatin which has been soaked in water and chill to 45 degrees F. Whip until very stiff in a chilled bowl and add fruit or 1 cup of Chocolate thrift sauce.

If dried apricots are used for this mousse they should be soaked, stewed and strained, using enough water to prevent the pulp from being very thick.

Cranberries should be stewed and strained before the sugar is added.

Flavorings should be varied according to the fruit used; Almond with peach, or cranberries. Freeze without stirring in automatci refrigerator on coldest control.

CHOCOLATE THRIFT SAUCE

½ cup cocoa
1 cup water
1 cup condensed milk, sweetened
2 tablespoons butter or substitute
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Blend cocoa and condensed milk, mixing until smooth. Add water and butter; then boil until thick (about five minutes), stirring constantly. Cool, add vanilla. If a thinner sauce is desired more water may be added.

If repairs and improvements can be made that will make the house easier to heat next winter, it's important to see that they are done. Caulking of cracks and installation of insulating materials, storm sash, weather stripping, and heat controls are suggested as means of getting ready for a lean fuel year.
