Defeat of Senator Ingalls.

United States Senator Ingalls has been defeated for re-election by the Farmers' Alliance members of the Kansas Legislature, who selected as their caucus nominee, on Tuesday night, Judge W. A. Peffer, an ex-Republican. Judge Peffer entertains some singular and extreme views, especially on the subject of railroads. He is in favor of the unlimited coinage of silver and a conservative expansion of the currency; at least those views are attributed to him by the despatch announcing his nomination. It will probably be ascertained that the word "conservative" should be, in this case, construed to mean radical or extreme. He is also said to be in favor of "moderate protection of home industries, but does not believe in protection as a principle." If he does not believe in the principle it is difficult to understand how he can be in favor of its application in any degree. There is inconsistency here that needs explanation. He is credited with entertaining the following plan for dealing with the railroads: "First. Let the government, state and national, determine what is a reasonable compensation for the transportation of persons and properties, and this without reference to the cost of building, or capitalizations, or indebtedness, either bonds or stock, but with reference to what the work can be done for on the basis of modern conditions.

"Second. Let the national government establish a system of interstate commerce railways, beginning with, for example, a double track freight road from a convenient point in the northern part of North Dakota, extending in a direct line southward through South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Texas to a deep-water port on the Gulf of Mexico. Let the road be built in sections, all progressing at the same time, every day's labor and every item of property needed being paid for in cash out of the public treasury, so that when the road is completed it will be paid for; it will belong to the people the same as a common highway or a courthouse, and the people will have the money as well as the road. Then transportation 'at cost' would be reduced to practice, and there would be no further trouble about 'watered stock.' Creditors of railroad companies would finally get the roads at just what they would sell for in the open market. After that the government, acting as the agent of the people, having demonstrated what the actual cost of transportation is, all roads managed by corporations must come to that standard or they will go out of business and their lands revert to the original owners."

This is not, we believe, one of the Alliance schemes, but Judge Peffer has been selected as the representative of Alliance ideas, with the full knowledge that he holds the views set forth. Whether such of our Democratic friends as hold the opinion that most of the "principles of the Alliance are in harmony with the Democratic creed," will find this plan of dealing with railroads satisfactory, remains to be seen. It certainly, like the sub-treasury and warehouse schemes, is open to objection on the ground of its centralizing tendencies, but this may not be an insuperable obstacle to affiliation with those Democrats who are ready to adopt any means to beat the Republicans.

Whatever may be said about Judge Peffer and his views, however, it must be conceded that the State of Kansas has not improved on the ability of its senatorial representative by his selection. Senator Ingalls has been a credit to his State and an honor to his country. His uncompromising Republicanism has made him objectionable from a Democratic standpoint, but he has rendered distinguished service as a statesman, outside of any question of a merely partisan nature, and it is more than doubtful whether, even as a Republican partisan his principles are as much at variance with the real dogmas of Jeffersonian Democracy, as the wild plans of Judge Peffer and his Alliance supporters. At any rate they are much more in harmony with the genius of American institutions and the true theories of Republican government.

The Election Bill.

A great deal of the clamor against the federal election bill is due to ignorance of the true character of the measure. Many persons of ordinary intelligence are under the impression that its object is to place all elections—local, state and national—under control of the federal government, and that United States soldiers would be employed, under its provisions, to enforce obedience to its requirements. Both these propositions are utterly erroneous. The bill which, by the way, stands very little prospect of adoption, applies solely and only to the election of members of the House of Representatives. There isn't a particle of force in it, and the only feature, in our opinion, that is of the least value in preventing the consummation of fraudulent practices, is that which requires the certificate of the Congressional District Board of Supervisors, appointed by the Judge of a United States Court, to entitle the person seemingly elected to have his name placed upon the rolls of the House. This provision would make it possible to nullify the results of the fraudulent practices by which so many Representatives are being returned to Congress from the Southern States; and outside of this feature the proposed law differs but little from that at present in existence, except that the supervisors of election provided for would be appointed by the Judges of the Courts and not by the U. S. Marshals as at present. Great care has been taken to provide non-partisan election machinery and to insure an honest result, the very thing the Democrats do not want, however, as it would deprive them of the fruits of their persistent wrong doing.

Viewed from the most conservative standpoint the protest of the Democrats against the federal election bill is simply a protest against a fair ballot and an honest count.

Was It a Corrupt Bargain?

The closure rule in the United States Senate was laid aside on Monday last and other business given the preference. This action was accomplished by the solid vote of the Democratic Senators, who were reinforced by six Republicans—Messrs. Wolcott and Teller, of Colorado; Washburn, of Minnesota; Cameron, of Pennsylvania; Stewart and Jones, of Nevada—and was well understood to be against the federal election bill. The Republican Senators who united with the Democrats to defer action on the rule, all voted for the unlimited coinage of silver, and it is not too much to say that they are under the suspicion of a corrupt bargain with the Democrats. Mr. Gorman and some other Democratic senators, in voting for free coinage against the sentiment of the States represented by them, were probably moved to that course by an agreement with the Republican Silver Senators who have fulfilled their part of the agreement in their votes against the consideration of the closure rule. The whole proceeding on the part of the Senators looks like a case of "bargain and corruption." It would be charitable to entertain other views, but it has more than once been hinted that an agreement of this character existed. It is unfortunate for the honor of the Senators involved on both sides, that the outcome is strongly confirmatory of the alleged bargain. Any Senator who will vote against his honest convictions for partisan advantage or pecuniary gain is unworthy the respect of honest men. That appearances are against the six Republican Senators who voted with the Democrats on this question, and also against certain Democratic Senators who voted for the unlimited coinage of silver, cannot be denied. Henceforth they will walk under the shadow of a suspicion for which no pecuniary gain can compensate them. Of course the motive that actuated them cannot be seen by the eyes of men. They may have been sincere and honest in their action, but they will not find it an easy matter to demonstrate the fact, if it be true.

Death at the Feast.

Secretary Windom No More.

Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the United States Treasury Department, died suddenly in New York, about 10 o'clock Thursday night. He was attending the dinner of the Board of Trade and Transportation, at Delmonicos's, in that city. The dinner, which began at six o'clock, was completed shortly after nine, and Mr. Windom was the first speaker. He delivered an elaborote address and was loudly applauded. When he sat down Judge Arnoux, who presided, arose and was in the act of introducing Ex-Secretary of State Bayard, when it was noticed that Mr. Windom was falling from his chair. He was immediately carried to an adjoining room and attended by several physicians, who were present, but their efforts to resuscitate him were in vain. He was dead. His life was terminated by heart disease, doubtless aggravated by severe and incessant public service. The wearing nature of his duties as Secretary of the Treasury had been apparent to his friends, it is said, for some time.

Mr. Windom was an able and faithful public servant and his death is a great loss to the country. He was born in Belmont county, Ohio, May 10th, 1827, and would have been 64 years of age at his next birthday. He went to Minnesota in 1855 and four years later was elected to Congress as a Republican and was a member of the House ten years. He then became a United States Senator and continued in that body until he was made Secretary of the Treasury by President Garfield. After Mr. Garfield's death he was again elected to the Senate, and was appointed Secretary of the Treasury by President Harrison, in 1889. His death occurring so suddenly and in the midst of festive surroundings, is a forcible commentary on the uncertainty of human life, and will be a great shock to the country.

Mayor Chapin and other officials of Brooklyn, N. Y., are in trouble. They are charged with conspiring to purchase for the city the stock and franchises of a water company, at about five times their value, a nice little piece of jobbery, by which they and their fellow conspirators would have turned a pretty penny at the cost of about a million of dollars to the city treasury, in excess of the real value of the thing to be purchased. The bargain was nearly consummated, when a private citizen stepped in and obtained an injunction and the matter is now pending in the courts.

Terrible Mining Disaster.

An explosion in a Russian mine about a week ago, in which sixty or seventy miners were killed, more than had its counterpart in a disaster that occurred about 9 o'clock, on Tuesday morning last, near Scottdale, Pa. At the time mentioned an explosion of fire-damp took place in the mammoth shaft of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, causing the death of a hundred and ten of the workmen. The fatal result was caused principally by the after damp that suffocated the miners. A few of them were rescued alive, but so overcome by the gas that they were unconscious and death almost inevitable. After about sixty bodies had been recovered the mine took fire and at this writing it is apprehended the remaining fifty will be cremated. It is estimated that fully sixty widows and their families are left by this awful disaster wholly destitute and dependent on the charity of the world for sustenance. Owing to the limited demand for coke the plant has not been running a full force for some time and most of the miners had nothing ahead. From the scene of the lamentable occurrence comes the assurance that "every means possible will be resorted to to supply the widowed mothers and orphaned children with the necessaries of life."

Later accounts indicate that the number of the victims of the disaster is greater than was first supposed. Up to Wednesday a hundred and ten bodies had been recovered, and the total number who were in the mine was not positively known. One account stated that it might reach two hundred. It was an appalling catastrophe.

Isaac Myers, one of the most prominent leaders among the colored people of this State, died at his home in Baltimore on Monday night. He was a leading member of Bethel A. M. E. Church.

The Storm at the North.

The effects of the snow-storm of last Saturday night were seriously felt by the telegraph and telephone wires to the North and East, and especially in Pennsylvania and New York. The moist condition of the snow caused it to accumulate on the wires so heavily that many poles were thrown down and the wires hopelessly entangled. In New York City the damage was very great. Immense poles snapped like pipe stems, falling sometimes upon adjacent buildings and doing them more or less injury. The Western Union line between New York and Philadelphia was practically destroyed, at least a thousand breaks having occurred. It is said that the cost of repairing, in most cases would exceed the construction of new lines, so thorough is the entanglement of the wires. The damage was due entirely to the weight of the snow and not to the violence of the wind.

Mr. Bosley Royston, a respected farmer, of the vicinity of Phœenix, Baltimore county, on the Northern Central Railway, committed suicide on Tuesday morning last, by hanging himself from a beam in the hay-loft of his barn. He was about sixty-two years old and had been in bad health for a year past, with occasional symptoms of a diseased mind. His lifeless body was discovered by one of his sons. He leaves a widow and several children.

Children's Literature.

WHAT "ST. NICHOLAS" HAS DONE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Victor Hugo calls this "the woman's century," and he might have added that it is the children's century as well, for never before in the world's history has so much thought been paid to children—their schools, their books, their pictures, and their toys. Childhood, as we understand it, is a recent discovery.

Up to the time of the issue of the St. Nicholas Magazine seventeen years ago literature and children's magazines were almost contradictory terms, but the new periodical started out with the idea that nothing was too good for children; the result has been a juvenile magazine genuine with conscientious purpose—the greatest writers contributing to it, with the best artists and engravers helping to beautify it—and everything tuned to the key-note of youth.

It has been the special aim of St. Nicholas to supplant unhealthful literature with stories of a living and healthful interest. It will not do to take fascinating bad literature out of boys' hands, and give them in its place Mrs. Barbauld and Peter Parley, or the work of writers who think that any "good-y" talk will do for children, but they must have strong, interesting reading, with the blood and sinew of real life in it—reading that will waken them to a closer observation of the best things about them.

In the seventeen years of its life St. Nicholas has not only elevated the children, but it has also elevated the tone of contemporary children's literature as well. Many of its stories, like Mrs. Barnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," have become classic. It is not too much to say that almost every notable young people's story now produced in America first seeks the light in the pages of that magazine.

The year 1891 will prove once more that "no household where there are children is complete without St. Nicholas." J. T. Trowbridge, Noah Brooks, Charles Dudley Warner, and many well-known writers are to contribute during this coming year. One cannot put the spirit of St Nicholas into a prospectus, but the publishers are glad to send a full announcement of the features for 1891 and a single sample copy to the address of any person mentioning this notice. The magazine costs $3.00 a year. Address The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York.

A Great American Magazine.

THE SUCCESS OF "THE CENTURY" AND ITS PLANS FOR 1891.

The Century Magazine is now so well-known that to tell of its past success seems almost an old story. The N. Y. Tribune has said that it and its companion, St. Nicholas for Young Folks, issued by the same house, "are read by every one person in thirty of the country's population,"—and large editions of both are sent beyond the seas. It is an interesting fact that a few years ago it was found that seven thousand copies of The Century went to Scotland—quite a respectable edition in itself. The question in England is no longer "Who reads an American book?" but "Who does not see the American magazines?

A few years ago The Century about doubled its circulation with the famous War Papers, by Gen. Grant and others, adding many more readers later with the Lincoln History and Kennan's thrilling articles on the Siberian Exile System. One great feature of 1891 is to be describing that remarkable movement to the gold fields in '49, in a series of richly illustrated articles written by survivors, including the narratives of men who went to California by the different routes, accounts of the gold discoveries, life in the mines, the work of vigilance committees (by the chairman of the committee) etc., etc. General Fremont's last writing was done for this series. In November appears the opening article, "The First Emigrant Train to California"—crossing the Rockies in '41—by Gen. Bidwell, a pioneer of pioneers. Thousands of American families who had some relative or friend among "the Argonauts of '49" will be interested in these papers.

MANY OTHER GOOD THINGS ARE COMING,—the narrative of an American's travels through that unknown land Tibet (for 700 miles over ground never before trod by a white man); the experiences of escaping War-Prisoners; American Newspapers described by well-known journalists; accounts of the great Indians Fighters, Custer and others; personal anecdotes of Lincoln, by his private secretaries; "The Faith Doctor," a novel by Edward Eggleston, with a wonderfully rich program of novelettes and stories by most of the leading writers, etc., etc.

It is also announced that The Century has purchased the right to print, before its appearance in France or any other country, extracts from advance sheets of the famous Talleyrand Memoirs, which have been secretly preserved for a century—to be first given to the world through the pages of an American magazine. All Europe is eagerly awaiting the publication of this personal history of Talleyrand—greatest of intriguers and diplomats.

The November Century begins the volume, and new subscribers should commence with that issue. The subscription price ($4.00) may be remitted directly to the publishers, The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York, or single copies may be purchased of any newsdealer. The publishers offer to send a free sample copy—a recent back number—to any one desiring it.

The improvements thereon are a good Two-story Frame Weatherboarded which has been built only about four years; and a substantial new Barn and other outbuildings, all in first-class order. Well of good Water, and two Orchards of choice Fruit.

This farm will be offered and sold subject to a prior mortgage thereon, with consent of first mortgagee, who will permit his money to remain invested therein on arrangement with purchaser. Exact amount of first lien and interest thereon made known on day of sale.

Terms of Sale.—Cash; or, if desired by the purchaser, one-third cash on day of sale, or ratification thereof; one-third in one year, and the other one-third in two years from the day of sale; the credit payments to be secured by notes of the purchaser or purchasers, with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale.

JAMES SHORB, Mortgagee.

An Open Letter.

WESTMINSTER, April 10, 1890.

Mr. Jos. B. Boyle:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but temporary relief. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try your Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost instant relief, but a permanent cure. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.
