His Text.

A rising young minister, very absent minded, very earnest, and very sensitive, hurrying to church one Sunday morning and going into the pulpit late, was horrified to discover that he had not his carefully written sermon with him. The service was begun by the singing of the anthem, but he called up one of his neighbor's boys, and gave him hurried directions about his study and the probable location of the sermon, and sent him post haste to get it and return as fast as possible. The service proceeded, and still the boy did not appear.

The young preacher was in agony. He had never preached without notes, and the perspiration stood in great beads on his forehead, as he wondered what he would do if the sermon did not come. Finally, just as the last stanza of the hymn which preceded the sermon was being sung the boy appeared, rushed up the aisle conspicuously, and handed the minister his manuscript. The clergyman took the package nervously, opened it, and during profound stillness announced the text. Not until he had spoken it, did the meaning of it flash over him. It was this:

"Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which was lost!"

This was too much for the audience. The people laughed outright. But the lesson was a good one for the minister, who never forgot his sermon again while in that parish.

Wood Like Iron.

The jarrah wood is a species of eucalyptus native to western Australia. The main difficulties in connection with its use to this country are the cost of freight for such heavy timber from Australia and its intense hardness, which makes it difficult to ordinary English carpenter's tools to work it. The tree which produces it grows generally to a height of 100 feet, and sometimes 150 feet. It is found only in western Australia, extending over the greater portion of the country from the Moore River to King George's Sound, forming mainly the forests of these tracts. According to Baron Mueller, when selected from hilly localities, cut while the sap is least active and subsequently carefully dried, it proves impervious to the boring of insects. Vessels constructed solely of it have, after 25 years' constant service, remained perfectly sound, although not coppered. It has been tried at three places in the Suez canal, and after having been down seven years the trial samples were taken up in order that a report on their condition might be sent to Paris. From certain correspondence between Kew and some London vestries it appears that jarrah had lately been used by the Chelsea Vestry for paving the King's road, and by the Lambeth Vestry in the Westminster Bridge road.

Advantages of Bulky Food.

The why and wherefore of coarse food for cattle is treated as follows by The Republic: Animals do not always eat bulky food for its nutrition, but sometimes as a complete change from a sameness of diet, and because the bulky food distends the stomach and aids digestion. A variety of food of any kind will be preferred to one or two articles regularly given. Cattle and sheep that are daily allowed hay and grain, if permitted to have access to wheat straw or cornstalks will eat quite a quantity of such materials, and if the straw or corn fodder is cut up and ground grain added, even horses have been known to thrive well on such during the winter. Where a liberal supply of grain is allowed there is no risk incurred by feeding the coarse foods to any class of stock, and it is an advantage to do so in order to feed less hay when the season has not been favorable to grass and hay making.

One Thing at a Time.

Don't live a single hour of your life without doing exactly what is to be done in it, and going straight through it from beginning to end. Work, play, study, whatever it is, take hold at once and finish it up squarely and cleanly. Then do the next thing without any moments drop between. It is wonderful to see how many hours those prompt people contrive to make in a day. It is as if they picked up the moments that the drawlers lost.

Prof. F. W. Putnam, the well-known permanent secretary of the American Association, recently made an interesting discovery which furnishes fresh evidence in support of the theory that man in America was contemporaneous with the mammoth. In a communication to the Boston Society of Natural History, Prof. Putnam describes a shell found by him in the State of Delaware. Upon a portion of this shell is scratched the rude outline of what without doubt represents a mammoth. The shell was found under peat, and near by were human bones, charcoal, bones of animals and stone implements.

We hear of a man so sensitive that he lies awake at night to find out what a mosquito is after.

Children's Literature.

WHAT "ST. NICHOLAS" HAS DONE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Victor Hugo calls this "the women's century," and he might have added that it is the children's century as well, for never before in the world's history has so much thought been paid to children—their schools, their books, their pictures, and their toys. Childhood, as we understand it, is a recent discovery.

Up to the time of the issue of the St. Nicholas Magazine seventeen years ago literature and children's magazines were almost contradictory terms, but the new periodical started out with the idea that nothing was too good for children; the result has been a juvenile magazine genuine with conscientious purpose—the greatest writers contributing to it, with the best artists and engravers helping to beautify it—and everything tuned to the key-note of youth.

It has been the special aim of St. Nicholas to supplant unhealthful literature with stories of a living and healthful interest. It will not do to take fascinating bad literature out of boys' hands, and give them in its place Mrs. Barbauld and Peter Parley, or the work of writers who think that any "goody-goody" talk will do for children, but they must have strong, interesting reading, with the blood and sinew of real life in it—reading that will waken them to a closer observation of the best things about them.

In the seventeen years of its life St. Nicholas has not only elevated the children, but it has also elevated the tone of contemporary children's literature as well. Many of its stories, like Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," have become classic. It is not too much to say that almost every notable young people's story now produced in America first seeks the light in the pages of that magazine.

The year 1891 will prove once more that "no household where there are children is complete without St. Nicholas." J. T. Trowbridge, Noah Brooks, Charles Dudley Warner, and many well-known writers are to contribute during this coming year. One cannot get the spirit of St Nicholas into a prospectus, but the publishers are glad to send a full announcement of the features for 1891 and a single sample copy to the address of any person mentioning this notice. The magazine costs $3.00 a year. Address The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

The Tariff and the Farmer.

The Tribune will devote much space during 1891 to the Tariff as it affects the Farmer and the Mechanic.

Hon. Roswell G. Horr, of Michigan, has been added to the Tribune's staff of Tariff writers for this purpose. He will, through the columns of The Tribune, devote himself to this topic, and will invite and answer questions upon points which perplex the American Farmer and Mechanic. He will also, so far as other duties will allow, attend Farmers' Institutes and agricultural gatherings the coming winter and spring, and expound the principles of the Tariff.

Those who desire the presence of Mr. Horr at Farmers' Institutes, etc., are invited to communicate promptly with The Tribune.

Young Men Who Wish to Succeed.

Many a man feels the lack of early direction of his energies and early inculcation of the maxims which promote the formation of character and success in after life. Every such man would gladly see the young men of to-day better guided in youth than he was. The Tribune has planned the following series of valuable articles, which will appear in this paper only:

"What shall I Do?" By S. S. Packard, President of Packard's Business College.

"Suggestions for the Boys on the Farm who are Ambitious." By the Hon. J. H. Brigham, of Delta, Ohio, Master of the National Grange.

"Education without the Help of a College." By President C. K. Adams, of Cornell University.

A Continuation of "How to Win Fortune." By Andrew Carnegie, whose remarkable article of last Spring was so full of encouragement to poor men.

"Multiplicity of Paying Occupations in the United States." By the Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of the Department of Labor.

"A Talk with American Boys." By P. T. Barnum, of Bridgeport, Conn., the great American showman, temperance lecturer, traveler and writer.

"Examples in the History of our own Country. By Gen. A. S. Webb, the gallant soldier of Gettysburg and Spottsylvania and College president.

"Importance of Good Manners." The views of Ward McAllister.

"A College Education good for all; what is best for those who cannot get it." By President William Pepper, University of Pennsylvania.

The Tribune will print from week to week, well-considered answers to my questions which young men or women, in any part of the country, may ask.

Vital Topics of the Day

"Present Needs and Future Scope of American Agriculture." By the Hon. Jeremiah Rusk.

"Proper Function of the Minority in Legislation." By the Hon. Julius C. Burrows, Kalamazoo, Mich.

"Village Improvement Associations, their practicability in Rural Districts, with the story of certain Model Villages." By the Hon. B. G. Northrop, of Clinton, Conn.

"Principle in Politics and the Virtue of Courage." By the Hon. James S. Clarkson, of Iowa.

"Influences of the Labor Movement upon Human Progress." By Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor.

"America's Suburban and Rural Homes." By George Palliser, of New York.

"Warehouses for Farm Products." By L. L. Polk, President of the National Farmers' Alliance.

"Glaciers of the United States." By Professor Israel C. Russell, of the United States Geological Survey and explorer of Alaska.

Other Features.

During 1891 The Tribune will print a valuable series of articles, written by its own traveling correspondent, on the agriculture of the United States, with explanation of a large number of model farms.

A special correspondent, a practical farmer, is now in France, visiting the farms and farm-buildings of that thirtiest of the agricultural nations of the world. He will report upon the dairy, grain, stock and other branches of French farming in illustrated articles.

Mrs. Annie Wittenmeyer, President of the Woman's Relief Corps, will contribute a column of notes and news to The Tribune's G. A. R. page, every week.

Admirable letters of travel in the Southern States, illustrated with pictures, will be printed, describing the South as it exists to-day.

All the regular features will be continued.

The Home Circle columns will be varied by frequent illustrated articles on home decoration, fashions and other objects of intense interest to women. Written principally for people with little money.

Mrs. Bayard Taylor, the widow of Bayard Taylor, will write articles on Cookery. She is a remarkable home-keeper, with a scientific as well as practical knowledge of her subject.

Sciatic, the great chess champion of the world, will supply a column a week on the greatest and purest of all the games of the home.

Foreign letters, good stories, the news of the day, the best of market reports, book reviews and literary news, witty jokes, etc., etc.

A JOURNAL OF POLITICS.

A Weekly record of the FACTS AND CONSIDERATIONS which show that individual Liberty is good for the people of the United States;

And that, therefore, Excessive Legislative Regulation is injurious for them;

They are injured by Governmental interference with Banks, Railroads, Postoffice, Education, International Trade, Relations between Laborers and Employers, and by the countless other extensions of the political function in a Socialistic sense;

Leading to the neglect of Justice, the one thing needful.

Those who are in sympathy with the object, or who are likely to be interested in such a paper, may receive it one month free by addressing TO-DAY,
