Fined $90 And Costs By Justice Jewell

G. Fred Obrecht, of Baltimore, was fined $90 and costs by Polce Magistrate Jewell last week when found guilty of selling hog feed in Kent County which did not come up to the tag specifications.

According to the State law all feed sold in this State must be branded showing the analysis and ingredients of the feed. This law is designed to protect farmers in their purchase of feed.

The feed in question was sampled by the State Feed Inspection Department and found to contain rye which was not specified on the regulation tag.

CALF CLUB NAMES OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Celebrated Fifteenth Anniversary This Week

The Kent County 4-H Clover Calf Club celebrated its fifteenth anniversary of continuous activity this week at a meeting at the home of George R. Moffett, former president of the club and one of its most active members.

This 4-H club is the parent organization of the various 4-H clubs in Kent County and was organized by Mr. H. B. Derrick, former County Agent, in 1923 and since that time has been an active organization in this county.

Many of its former members are now engaged in farming while others have secured positions in which their 4-H training has been of great value.

Many of the younger members, upon joining the club purchased thorobred calves and through years of hard work have developed some of the outstanding herds in the county.

The officers of the club as elected this week were:

President—Theodore Redman.
Vice President—Orville Wright.
Secretary—Doris Dulin.
Treasurer—Robert Spray.

Nineteen Days Left To Re-register For Auto Driving

There are only nineteen more days on which re-registration operator's cards can be issued by this office, according to a statement made by the supervisors of Re-registration. To date, approximately 299,000 out of 450,000 operators have applied for re-registration operators' licenses, making approximately 151,000 that have failed to make application for re-registration.

The Attorney General's office advises that it will be impossible for the Governor to grant an extension of time.

Unless operators have their re-registration cards by January 1st, 1938, they will be unable to operate their cards until license is received.

We should now be receiving around 10,000 applications for re-registration per day instead of the 4,500 that are now coming in. All licenses received in this office post-marked later than midnight December 31st, 1937, will be returned to the sender with instructons to appear for the regular examination, and the cost will then be $3.50 instead of $1.00.

MAY ESTABLISH NEW MILK STATION

Would Take Place Of Chestertown and Worton Plant

The possibility of closing the Chestertown and Kennedyville milk stations and the building of a new plant to serve the patrons of these two stations has been a rumor for some time but recently reports indicate that such a change may come soon.

The location of the new plant is undetermined although a number of locations have been suggested. Residents of and near Worton maintain that location is ideal both from a standpoint of being centrally located and having good drainage. Other suggestions have been for a location near Urieville Mill and also at Goose Hill where good drainage conditions exist and location is on the main highway. Advocates of these last mentioned locations are apparently convinced that shipment of milk from Kent County in the future will be by truck instead of railroad.

According to a recent statement made by the plant superintendant of Supplee-Willis-Jones, the wishes of farmers delivering milk to the present plants will be considered before any definite site is selected.

It is further understood that the milk interests in this section will take no part in the discusson as to the removal of the passenger train from Kent County.

Efforts are being made by representatives of the various milk locals to effect an Eastern Shore Organization of Maryland and Delaware milk producers so as to receive Federal recognition in their efforts to bring about a higher price for milk shipped into Pennsylvania. It is understood that the price paid is under direct control of the Pennsylvania Control Board and that at the present time the milk shipped from Maryland and Delaware brings a much lower price than that shipped to Philadelphia by Pennsylvania dairymen.

Another subject of importance being discussed by local dairymen is the advisability of reverting back to the basic and surplus plan which existed in this area for a long period of years until recently.

DAIRYMEN URGED TO ATTEND MEETING NEXT WEDNESDAY

Kent dairymen are urged to attend the dinner meeting to be held at the Washington College gymnasium next Wednesday at which time important matters directly affecting the local dairy industry will be discussed. The most important matters to be discussed is the difference between the price paid Maryland and Delaware farmers and that paid Pennsylvania farmers for raw milk shipped into Philadelphia. This differnece avergaes approximately 9 cents per 100 pounds. The advisability of requesting Federal intervention to determine the cause of this diffe rential in price will be considered. Also the proposal that the old basic and surplus plan be again put into effect.

It was brought out at the recent Interstate milk meeting in Philadelphia that the Pennsylvania dairymen and the Milk Control Board of that State are in sympathy with the efforts of out-of-State dairymen to secure a more even price with that paid within that State.

Mr. H. S. Startt, President of the Dairy Council, representing the five milk locals in Kent County, urges all dairymen in the county to attend the meeting on Wednesday and send in reservatons beforehand so that places may be provided for them.

Christian Workers Convention

An important event to all Christian workers of Kent County will be the Convention to be held in the Betterton Methodist Episcopal Church on Saturday, December 18. This convention will be open to all persons or groups who are interested in the cause of righteousness and will be under the auspices of the Kent County Council of Churches. The opening session will be at 2 o'clock. The discussion groups will begin at 3 continuing until 4 o'clock followed by the election of officers for the new year. A fine supper is to be served by the Betterton ladies in the church at 5.30 and the convention will close with the evening address brought by the Rev. Otis P. Jefferson, Pres. of the Cecil County Council of Churches and Christian Education. It is hoped every Church in Kent County will be represented at the convention. Come that we may share in this privilege of helpfulness and join in the task of furthering the cause of Christ.

RELIEF OFFICE TO INVITE CRITICISM

Discussion Of Local Cases Will Be Held Confidential

At this season of the year when applications for relief are on the increase, the local Relief Office invites the cooperation of the public in the just administration of that office, according to a statement made this week by Mrs. Margaret Massey, local relief administrator.

All cases are investigated in their respective communities as far as possible although in many cases complete information is not available.

and never reaches the Relief Office, has received information about applicants for relief, particularly with reference to C. C. C. applicants, which when investigated revealed the fact that there was a great shortage of labor in the community where the applicants resided and resulted in the applications being rejected. Too often, it is found, that the criticism is confined to gossip on the streets, ect.,

In a number of cases the relief office resulting in the desired information being unknown to the proper authorities. Relief funds are public funds and the expenditure of relief moneys should be of direct community interest. Mrs. Massey also stated that any criticism brought to her office will be held confidential so as to avoid any fear of the informer becoming involved.

MARYLAND FARMS NEAR BEST MARKET

Located Near Centers Of Population

More than 25 million people, nearly one-fifth of the total population of the United States, live in cities and towns within easy shipping distance of Maryland farms, and they must be fed, Dr. T. B. Symms, acting dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland, told members of the Maryland State Grange in their annual meeting at Westminster on December 8. "Maryland farmers," he said, "occupy a preferred position for producing products for human consumption."

In discussing national agricultural programs from the standpoint of their effects upon Maryland agriculture, Dr. Symons pointed out that different sections of the country and different states vary widely as to the programs that best fit their needs. He urged that national programs be considered carefully as to thier effects in the several regions and states. In this conection, he compared the principal sources of cash income in Maryland with those of farmers in Iowa. For example, he stated that Iowa farmers receive approximately 57 percent of their cash income from beef cattle and hogs, while Maryland farmers get about 7.7 per cent of their cash income from that source; dairy products bring 15 per cent of the cash income for Iowa farmers and more than 29 per cent for Maryland farmers; truck crops are responsible for only one-half of one percent of the cash income of Iowa farmers and for 14.5 percent of the Maryland farmer's cash income.

Maryland farmers to the number of 18,000 participated in the national agricultural conservation program in 1937, according to Dr. Symons, and it is anticipated that even a larger number will participate in the program for 1938. The main objective of these programs, he said, is to maintain adequate production of farm products in line with demand, so as to stabilize farm income at levels fair to farmers, and to conserve and improve soil resources.
