That Colorado Desert.

It is probable that when the lake suddenly appeared on the Colorado desert and the news of it reached the world not one person in a hundred who read the accounts knew where Salton was. It is pretty well known now as the lowest point of the great Colorado desert and the hottest place in this country—not even barring Yuma. It is just about midway of the desert, and it was celebrated, before this lake appeared, solely as the scene of the largest salt works on this coast. All the proprietors of the salt works had to do was to scrape the salt from the surface of the soil and clean and grind it. You can judge that it was a bonanza. Only four white men remained regularly at the works through the summer, as the heat became so unendurable. The Indians did not seem to mind the heat, and they were able to work as well when the thermometer was at 145 degrees in the sun (and 125 degrees in the shade) as on cold winter days.

No one who has not spent a few days in the desert in midsummer can get any just idea of the terrific heat of Salton. It is an actual fact that during last month, when I was there, I have frequently boarded the cars and ridden to Yuma to get a breath of fresh air, and you know the soldier's joke about the heat of Yuma. The air is stifling at Salton from 8 a. m. to nightfall, and if one makes the least exertion perspiration pours from him like water. You cross the room and your clothes will be wringing wet; yet in ten minutes all this water has evaporated. To keep yourself alive you are forced to drink water by the gallon. If you have no water your tongue swells, you suffer torments of the lost, and if water doesn't reach you in twelve or fourteen hours you will perish miserably.

Preserving Iron from Rust.

The beautiful ironwork so much in vogue nowadays, is generally finished, on account of its susceptibility to rust, with a coating of black lacquer, or some other preparation, which is not only inappropriate but gives to the metal an unnatural appearance. A clever Frenchman, who was an expert in metal work, showed us such a simple and effective way of preserving it from rust, that it is worth remembering. The only material required is a cow's horn (the toy trumpets sold in the shops will answer the purpose.) Heat the iron and rub the edge of the horn over it—that is all. If the horn smokes a little as you rub it on you will know that the iron is hot enough. This will cause the horn to melt, and an imperceptible coating will be left upon the iron that will afford complete protection from the damp for a year or more on outdoor work. On indoor ironwork it will last indefinitely.

High Places.

The highest place in the world regularly inhabited is stated to be the Buddhist monastry Halne in Thibet, which is about sixteen thousand feet above the sea level. The next highest is Galera, a railway station in Peru, which is located at a height of fifteen thousand six hundred and thirty-five feet. Near it, at the same level, a railway tunnel three thousand eight hundred and forty-seven feet in length is being driven through the mountains. The elevation of the city of Potosi, in Bolivia, is thirteen thousand three hundred and thirty feet; Cuzco, Peru, eleven thousand three hundred and eighty feet; La Paz, Bolivia, ten thousand eight hundred and eighty-three feet.

Ingenuity can extemporize the most unusual methods for attaining certain purposes. The Lounger happened into a rolling-mill one evening recently, and witnessed a novel feat in the beefsteak boiling line which commended itself from sheer force of ingenuity. On the cooling bed back of the rolls lay a pile of red hot iron which had just been rolled. The "heat" was over, and a brawny "rougher-up" began to prepare his supper. In a jiffy he had slapped a beefsteak on the hot iron, and by quickly turning it over as often as once in five seconds, he broiled that steak to a nicety. This was equal to the makeshift of a hod carrier at work on a Dearborn Street building. When the noon hour struck, he rammed a handful of lime in a hole scooped in the sand, and, sprinkling it with water, placed his dinner-pail over the flameless fire, securing a warm dinner and the open-eyed admiration of his amused spectators.

A Great American Magazine.

THE SUCCESS OF "THE CENTURY" AND ITS PLANS FOR 1891.

The Century Magazine is now so well-known that to tell of its past success seems almost an old story. The N. Y. Tribune has said that it and its companion, St. Nicholas for Young Folks, issued by the same house, "are read by every one person in thirty of the country's population,"—and large editions of both are sent beyond the seas. It is an interesting fact that a few years ago it was found that seven thousand copies of The Century went to Scotland—quite a respectable edition in itself. The question in England is no longer "Who reads an American book?" but "Who does not see the American magazines?

A few years ago The Century about doubled its circulation with the famous War Papers, by Gen. Grant and others, adding many more readers later with the Lincoln History and Kennan's thrilling articles on the Siberian Exile System. One great feature of 1891 is to be describing that remarkable movement to the gold fields in '49, in a series of richly illustrated articles written by survivors, including the narratives of men who went to California by the different routes, accounts of the gold discoveries, life in the mines, the work of vigilance committees (by the chairman of the committee) etc., etc. General fremont's last writing was done for this series. In November appears the opening article, "The First Emigrant Train to California"—crossing the Rockies in '41-by Gen. Bidwell, a pioneer of pioneers. Thousands of American families who had some relative or friend among "the Argonauts of '49" will be interested in these papers.

MANY OTHER GOOD THINGS ARE COMING,—

the narrative of an American's travels through that unknown land Tibet (for 300 miles over ground never before trod by a white man); the experiences of escaping War-Prisoners; American Newspapers described by well-known journalists; accounts of the great Indians Fighters, Custer and others; personal anecdotes of Lincoln, by his private secretaries; "The Faith Doctor," a novel by Edward Eggleston, with a wonderfully rich program of novelettes and stories by most of the leading writers, etc., etc.

It is also announced that The Century has purchased the right to print, before its appearance in France or any other country, extracts from advance sheets of the famous Talleyrand Memoirs, which have been secretly preserved for a century—to be first given to the world through the pages of an American magazine. All Europe is eagerly awaiting the publication of this personal history of Talleyrand—greatest of intriguers and diplomats.

The November Century begins the volume, and new subscribers should commence with that issue. The subscription price ($4.00) may be remitted directly to the publishers, The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York, or single copies may be purchased of any newsdealer. The publishers offer to send a free sample copy—a recent back number—to any one desiring it.

SALE BILLS, and all kinds of Job Printing done at this office, on reasonable terms.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

The Tariff and the Farmer.

The Tribune will devote much space during 1891 to the Tariff as it affects the Farmer and the Mechanic.

Hon. Roswell G. Horr, of Michigan, has been added to the Tribune's staff of Tariff writers for this purpose. He will, through the columns of The Tribune, devote himself to this topic, and will invite and answer questions upon points which perplex the American Farmer and Mechanic. He will also, so far as other duties will allow, attend Farmers' Institutes and agricultural gatherings the coming winter and spring, and expound the principles of the Tariff.

Those who desire the presence of Mr. Horr at Farmers' Institutes, etc., are invited to communicate promptly with The Tribune.

Young Men Who Wish to Succeed.

Many a man feels the lack of early direction of his energies and early inculcation of the maxims which promote the formation of character and success in after life. Every such man would gladly see the young men of to-day better guided in youth than he was. The Tribune has planned the following series of valuable articles, which will appear in this paper only:

"What shall I Do?" By S. S. Packard, President of Packard's Business College.

"Suggestions for the Boys on the Farm who are Ambitious." By the Hon. J. H. Brigham, of Delta, Ohio, Master of the National Grange.

"Education without the Help of a College." By President C. K. Adams, of Cornell University.

A Continuation of "How to Win Fortune." By Andrew Carnegie, whose remarkable article of last Spring was so full of encouragement to poor men.

"Multiplicity of Paying Occupations in the United States." By the Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of the Department of Labor.

"A Talk with American Boys." By P. T. Barnum, of Bridgeport, Conn., the great American showman, temperance lecturer, traveler and writer.

"Examples in the History of our own Country. By Gen A. S. Webb, the gallant soldier of Gettysburg and Spot
