Christmas Greetings.

As is customary, and also in accordance with a decided inclination, the SENTINEL extends to its many readers the heartiest holiday greetings and wishes them, one and all, individually and collectively, a "Marry Christmas," and a "Happy New Year." It offers no prosy disquisition on the happy season. All who scan its columns are familiar with the wondrous event of which it is received as the anniversary, and no higher good, no greater blessing can be desired for human beings than that they may be in accord with the spirit of that event and filled with the sentiment of "good will to men." However lowly, humble and adverse the circumstances of the individual may be who has caught this inspiration, he will have a merry, joyful Christmas, and to cultivate such a spirit all the year round is the surest method of introducing a glad Christmas holiday season. May all the readers of the SENTINEL thus enjoy it.

Taking It Coolly.

"There is no excitement over the matter here in town, and business is going on as if nothing unusual had happened."

The above is the closing sentence of an account of the butchery of three men in jail at Dewitt, Arkansas, by a mob. The victims were J. M. Smith, Floyd Gregory, whites, and Mose Henderson, colored. They were held on the charge of the attemped murder of Smith's divorced wife. The negro Henderson, instigated by Smith and Gregory, as he alleged, fired a charge of buckshot into Mrs. Smith's hand and shoulder, injuring her seriously. Smith and the negro were held in default of $30,000 bail and Gregory in the sum of $1,000. A report was circulated that the white men were about to give the required bail, whereupon a "quiet and orderly" mob of fifteen or twenty men attacked the jail and fired twelve or fifteen shots into the defenceless prisoners, killing them instantly. The tragedy provoked no excitement in Dewitt, if the chronicler of the event is veracious, and people went about their ordinary business "as if nothing unusual had happened." Perhaps events of this character are not unusual at Dewitt, and the butchering in cold blood, by a "quiet and orderly" mob, of helpless prisoners not an infrequent occurrence.

Democratic Rupture in Louisiana.

The lottery business has produced a rupture in the Democratic party in Louisiana. In the State nominating convention of that party, which met last week, the faction favorable to a renewal of the lottery lease was in a majority. The anti-lottery delegates withdrew from the convention and each faction nominated a full State ticket. The convention favorable to the lottery nominated Ex-Governor McEnery, and the antis headed their ticket with the name of Governor Nichols. It is suggested that the Republicans, instead of placing a straight ticket in the field, take advantage of the split and make terms with one of the factions. To the credit of the Republicans it is said they are in full sympathy with the anti-lottery movement, and would, without the interposition of other influences, naturally throw their strength to the support of that element. But, as the New York Tribune points out, Governor Nichols became the executive of the State by manufacturing a majority by false voting, false counting and other fraudulent methods so well understood by the Democrats of Louisiana. That paper, under the circumstances, counsels the nomination of a regular Republican ticket with candidates fully pledged against the lottery. We are inclined to think, however, that, in view of the enormity of the evil whose continued existence is involved in the contest, it would be well for all opponents of the lottery to get together by pooling their strength and by a combination, just to anti-lottery Republicans and Democrats alike, insure the overthrow of the gigantic wrong. The Republicans should not be asked nor expected to support an unadulterated Democratic ticket, especially with Governor Nichols at its head, and if anti-lottery Democrats have no better terms to offer the Republicans would do well to take the Tribune's advice and let the responsibility rest where it justly belongs.

It may be added that, if the corrupting power of the lottery is too great to be overborne by the better citizens of Louisiana, an amendment might be made to the Constitution of the United States that would give the gigantic iniquity its permanent quietus.

The Baltimore Sun has frequently excited the ire and encountered the anathemas of the local Democratic press in some sections of the State in consequence of its independent and fearless opposition to the political abuses practiced by the bosses. But these antagonisms have not swerved it from the straight line of duty in dealing with local and State politics. It speaks well for its integrity of purpose that, with Democratic proclivities, it has not failed to discern and with boldness attack the political wrongs perpetrated by State and local bosses and their henchmen. Apart from politics it deals frankly and ably with all subjects calling for editorial discussion, and is an admirable newspaper, giving daily the events and happenings throughout the country in an intelligent manner and so well arranged that its readers know just where to look for particular items. Its prosperity and success are the best evidences of its value as a news medium.

Senator Plumb's death from overwork should warn many other public men that there is a limit to the power and capacity of every man for mental as well as physical labor. The body may appear vigorous, as it did in the case of Senator Plumb, while the overtaxed brain is yielding to the strain of too much mental toil.

The Columbian Exposition.

For sometime past the question of the proper representation of the resources, industries &c., of Maryland at the Columbian World's Fair, to be held in Chicago in 1893, has been agitating the minds of public spirited citizens, particularly in the metropolis of the State, and to some extent in the counties. It has been publicly asserted, without denial, that the Governor elect is deeply interested in the subject and anxious that the State should make a creditable display. Other States have taken action in the matter and will make full and attractive exhibits. It is felt by many that this Commonwealth should not be behind the most prosperous of her sisters in showing to the world, as it will be represented at the Exposition, an ample exhibition of her various products, mineral, agricultural, piscatorial, &c. This sentiment found expression at a meeting held at the City Hall, Baltimore, on Monday of last week, where prominent citizens assembled from all parts of the State, on the invitation of Mayor Latrobe, to consider the subject. The most important action taken by the meeting was the unanimous adoption of a resolution providing that a bill to appropriate not less than $100,000 for the purpose referred to, be prepared and submitted to the Legislature.

It is generally agreed that without State aid Maryland will cut a sorry figure at the Fair. Whether space will be alloted in the general buildings of the Exposition for the exhibits of such States as fail to erect suitable structures, we are not advised, but, if so, it must be very limited in extent and without any of the appliances necessary to a proper exhibit of some of the most important interests of our own Commonwealth. While it would be humiliating to Maryland pride to be thus poorly represented, that fact, in itself, is not sufficient to warrant the expenditure of a large amount of public money for the purpose of display.

The primary question to be considered is, whether the expenditure of the State's money in this connection would be of advantage to the whole people and not a part? Would the farmers of Carroll county, for instance, who would be called upon to bear their share of the taxes required to raise the necessary sum, be benefitted in any degree by the proposed exhibition? We are not prepared to answer the question. It is possible that, by outlining, in a proper manner, the agricultural, as well as the manufacturing, mineral and other interests of the State, at the great Exposition, the general prosperity of the people might, in some measure, be promoted by inducing immigration of individuals prepared to engage in each of the varied industries of the entire State. On the whole, however, we are somewhat skeptical on this point.

The Advocate, which takes unequivocal ground against the proposed appropriation, finds, according to its judgment, an emphatic interdict against it in the Constitution of the State; but we fail to see the force of its argument on that point. The Legislature, we believe, has ample constitutional power to appropriate money for the purpose in question. The organic law of the State nowhere inhibits such an act, and the Legislature may do what is not forbidden either by the State or National Constitution. It is doubtful whether the Legislature has not, at every session since its existence, passed some bill that, in principle, was analogous to that recommended in this case. It appropriated money to erect monuments to mark the whereabouts of Maryland Regiments on the battlefield of Gettysburg; it makes an annual appropriation for the support of the inmates of the Confederate Home at Pikesville; at every session it appropriates sums of money to colleges and charitable institutions. It passes these laws by virtue of its sovereignty as the representative of the people, and not because of authority conferred by the Constitution. It cannot do what the Constitution prohibits, but there is, in our judgment no obstacle of this character in the way of the legislation recommended in regard to a Maryland exhibit at the World's Fair.

We shall be glad to give space to the discussion of the propriety of such legislation, in the columns of the SENTINEL, if any of our readers desire to present their views on the subject. The matter calls for careful consideration. If the outlay of a hundred thousand dollars in advertising the advantages of Maryland, by means of an exhibit at the Fair, will bring capital, enterprise, and immigrants with money, into her borders to buy lands, engage in agriculture, manufactures, mining, oyster culture, &c., let it be made. As a rule, in private business, judicious advertising pays and pays well. It might be judicious to advertise Maryland resources at the Columbian Fair. But, if done at all it should be well done, and the sum recommended is none too great for the purpose. Of course it would not be out of place to give State pride its due weight in considering the matter, but the main thing to be regarded is the advantages of the plan from a business point of view, in so far as a State appropriation is concerned.

At the meeting at the City Hall, Baltimore, referred to above, a Board of Promotion was organized, and Senator Pinkney J. Bennett, of this city, was appointed to represent Carroll county in the body. This Board held a meeting, Tuesday of this week, and appointed a committee of nine, of whom four are from the counties and five from the city of Baltimore, to collect data and ascertain the probable cost of a proper and creditable representation of the State's interests at the Fair. This is practical action, and, if the committee performs its duty faithfully, will enable the Legislature to act intelligently on the proposition to appropriate a sum of money for the purpose proposed.

That gallant Maryland soldier, Gen. John R. Kenly, is dead. He passed away at his home, 617 West Baltimore street Baltimore, on Sunday morning. His death was caused by pneumonia. Gen. Kenly served in the Mexican war with distinction, and rose to the rank of Major of Volunteers. Early in 1861 he became Colonel of the First Maryland Regiment U. S. Volunteers, and was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General for his gallantry at Front Royal, Va., where he engaged an overwhelming force of the enemy and was severely wounded. He was subsequently in numerous engagements and always bore himself with undaunted courage and heroism.

Divided Counsels.

There is evidently a serious division among the Democrats in Congress. The breach is caused by the diverse views of Democratic Congressman as to the course to be pursued on the tariff and silver questions. The downfall of the author of the Mills bill was a decided backset for the ultra free-traders whom he represented in the fight for the Speakership. It does not appear that Speaker Crisp is any less pronounced in his views for "tariff reform," as the Democrats are pleased to term their free-trade ideas, than Mr. Mills himself, but he, in common with a good many other Democrats, is beginning to learn that the advantages which have already accrued to the country through the agency of the McKinley tariff, have begotten a wide-spead sentiment among the business men and people of all classes, that the law is entitled to a fair trial. With this idea in view it was determined that Mr. Mills should have no opportunity afforded him to introduce a general tariff bill, by being placed at the head of the Ways and Means Committee. Hence the offer of the second place and the Chiarmanship of any other important Committee he might desire. His emphatic refusal to accept the assignment and the presentation of his reasons for so doing, in plain language, will be found in another column.

With the determination to prevent the introduction of a general tariff bill, however, it appears that it was decided to introduce and pass bills repealing special items of the McKinley law; placing coal, salt, binder-twine, &c., on the free list, and imposing a duty on sugar. The urgent protests which began to pour in at once from representatives of the threatened industries are said to have induced a halt even in that direction.

The Crisp idea, it is alleged, is to give the silver question prominence over the tariff, while the Mills people will be satisfied with nothing short of thorough tariff revision. Looking at the controversy from the outside it does not seem so much a difference of opinion as to the real merits of the issues involved as it does a divergence of judgment on the political results that may follow. Especially do motives of this character seem to be actuating the Speaker and his friends. The Mills wing evidently has faith in the potency of free trade, under the guise of tariff reform, to win the support of the electors, while the Crisp people are discerning the signs of the times and are unwilling to make protection and free-trade the issues in another Presidential campaign. This attitude is an illustration of the aptness of the Democratic party in resorting to expediency instead of standing boldly by principle.

Chili's Mistake.

The temper of the government and people of Chili towards the United States is evidently far from conciliatory. A mob has threatened the American legation and Minister Egan has expressed the opinion that he was not entirely safe from injury at the hands of the police placed as a guard about his official residence. It is generally believed that the Chilian government is guided in its course by promptings of interested English and German residents, who have led the authorities to believe that Great Britain and Germany will interpose to protect the country from punishment by the United States. In the meantime the record of outrages and insults to the American flag is growing ominously long and Chili will finally be forced to an unpleasant reckoning. Neither England nor Germany will attempt to interfere for the benefit of the weak country duped by their people. Fortunately for Chili she has a magnanimous power to deal with, in the United States, and only the simplest justice will be demanded and enforced. Nothing will be done for revenge; but the sooner Chili comes to her senses and learns that she is dealing with a power fully competent to enforce all just demands the less expensive will be her experience in the promises. She is making a prodigious mistake in contemplating an evasion of reparation for the wrongs already perpetrated upon the representatives of this country. There is no bombast in the warnings already given her and she will do well to realize promptly that the American administration means business and will be satisfied with nothing short of full and complete justice, while forbearing to insist upon the tithe of a fraction more than that.

Reciprocity is not free-trade as some Democrats seem to imagine. The treaties with South American countries and Great Britain and Spain for their West Indian Provinces, provide for the abrogation or reduction of duties on articles not produced in the United States, imported by us, in turn for similar favors extended to our products imported by those countries and provinces. For instance, Spain has reduced the duty on American flour, imported by Cuba, from $2 to $1 per barrel. This was done to assure the free importation of Cuban sugar by the United States, in which the home product is very small and is protected by a government bounty. This is the kind of reciprocity provided by the McKinley law, and is as far removed from free trade as day is from night.

Senator Preston B. Plumb, of Kansas, died suddenly, at Washington, on Sunday last. His death was caused by apoplexy, the result of overwork. Senator Plumb was born in Ohio, October 12th, 1837. He went to Kansas in 1856 and in 1857 established the Kansas News, at Emporia. He studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1861. He was a member of the Lower House of the Legislature in 1862 and entered the army in the summer of that year. He served through the war and rose to the rank of Colonel. After the war he practiced law successfully and engaged in other business and was several times a member of the Legislature of Kansas. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1877, and was serving his third term at the time of his death. He was a man of marked ability.

The SENTINEL notes the fact, as requested by the Advocate, that Senator Stewart, of Nevada, a Republican, "has started the fight for free silver coinage." Will the Advocate kindly note the fact that his principal backing in the fight will come from Democratic Senators.

Speaker Crisp announced the Committees of the House on Wednesday. Mr. Springer was made chairman of the Ways and Means, and Mr. Bland of the Coinage, Weights and Measures Committees. Fuller details with comments will be given hereafter.

Death of Gen. Creswell.

Ex-Postmaster General Jno. A. J. Creswell died at his home, near Elkton, on Wednesday, at the age of about 63 years. We regret that we have not space, this week, for an extended sketch of his life. He was a man of great ability and decided character, with hosts of ardent friends and some bitter enemies, especially in politics. He was first prominent in public life as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates in 1861-62, where he took rank as a debater with such members as Reverdy Johnson, Thomas Donaldson, Thos. S. Alexander and William Price, who sat in that remarkable body. He was subsequently elected a member of the House of Representatives and on the death of Thos. H. Hicks succeeded him as United States Senator. He was Postmaster General during the first and second Administrations of President Grant, resigning in 1874. He was afterwards counsel for the United States before the Court of Commissioners on Alabama Claims, and also a Commissioner to settle the affairs of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company. Since then he has lived a comparatively retired life, attending to his private business. A warm friendship existed between him and Gen. Grant. His death will bring sorrow to many hearts. He died childless, but leaves a widow.

Won't Take Second Place.

On Friday of last week Speaker Crisp addressed the following communication to Mr. Mills, of Texas, who was his principal competitor for the Speakership:

My Dear Sir—Having been too much engaged to call upon you and being now about to enter upon the work of constituting the House committees, I drop you a line to know if it would be agreeable or acceptable to you to be appointed second on the Committee on Ways and Means, and, in addition to such assignment to be appointed chairman of the Committee on Commerce, or chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, or chairman of some committee whose work is less laborious than Commerce or Postoffice. Would be glad to have a reply at your earliest convenience, as I desire to make up and announce the committees in a few days.

To this Mr. Mills replied as follows, on Saturday:

My Dear Sir—I have received your letter of the 18th inst., asking me "if it would be agreeable or acceptable to me to be appointed second on the Committee on Ways and Means, and, in addition to such assignment, to be appointed chairman of the Committee on Commerce, or chairman of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, or chairman of some committee whose work is less laborious than Commerce or Postoffice."

Having been a member of the Committee on Ways and Means for ten years, and chairman in the Fiftieth Congress, the reasons which have, in your judgement, rendered my appointment as chairman unwise would disqualify me for the service in any other place on that committee, and it would not be sincere to say that it would be agreeable to accept your tender.

I leave to you, without any suggestion from me, to make such other assignment as you, in the discharge of your official duty, may determine.

At a public meeting in York, Pa., on Monday evening, the sum of $50,000 was subscribed towards the projected railroad extension from Porter's Siding, on the Baltimore and Harrisburg Division of the Western Maryland Railroad, to York and ultimately to a connection with the Reading system at Chickies. A York despatch says the road is to be built by the Potomac Valley Company, provided that city can raise the amount asked—$200,000. The meeting referred to appointed committees to canvass the city for additional subscriptions and the outlook is favorable for the success of the enterprise. The great value of this connection to the Western Maryland Railroad can be discerned at a glance and it will, if successful, be fruitful of benefits to residents along the line of the Western Maryland well up to the western limits of this county. We presume it is a part of the admirable system of connections with the Reading system projected by Col. J. M. Hood, the farseeing President of the Western Maryland.

The readiness with which names may be forgotten or confounded is illustrated in the Washington correspondence of the Baltimore Sun of Tuesday, in which the Vice-President is spoken of as Oliver P. Morton. That was the name of one of Indiana's greatest statesmen. The Vice-President is Levi P. Morton.

An Open Letter.

WESTMINSTER, April 10, 1890.

Mr. Jos. B. Boyle:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very trouble some cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but temporary relief. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try your Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost instant relief, but a permanent cure. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.

FUN FOR EVERYBODY

—AND—

XMAS BARGAINS For Everybody.

S. Kann, Sons & Co.

BRING THE CHILDREN TO US!

Christmas is essentially the season of good cheer and merriment, and to 'liven the dull monotony of trade and make fun for everybody, young and old, we've secured, at considerable expense and trouble, the most marvelous and mirth provoking piece of mechanism ever exhibited. It depicts an irate butcher, clinging to the tail of a greased pig, and the tussle between the two is positively the most laughable thing you've ever beheld. You'll see it in our window, and in order to enable some one of our patrons to possess it,

We will give with every $2 worth of goods a Ticket for the famous "Pig Tussle."

Children go wild with joy over it; ladies laugh themselves to tears and big men almost split their sides with laughter. Don't fail to see it; don't fail to get a ticket on it—the funnest thing in all creation! The more you look at it the more you laugh. Couldn't stop to save your life.

BEAR IN MIND

that every two dollars worth you buy entitles you to one ticket; four dollars worth to two tickets; six dollars worth to three tickets, and so on. Begin to buy right away. Here are bargains the like of which we've never been able to give you; and you've almost double the stock of a year ago to select from.

BARGAINS IN DRESS GOODS.
BARGAINS IN BLANKETS.
BARGAINS IN WRAPS.
BARGAINS IN UNDERWEAR.
BARGAINS IN HOSIERY.
BARGAINS IN HANDKERCHIEFS.
BARGAINS IN CARPETS, RUGS, &c.
BARGAINS IN NECKWEAR.
BARGAINS IN XMAS AND NEW YEAR CARDS.
BARGAINS IN BOOKS.
BARGAINS IN PERFUMERY.
BARGAINS IN PICTURES.
BARGAINS IN GLOVES.
BARGAINS IN NOTIONS.
BARGAINS IN FANCY GOODS.
AND BARGAINS IN REMNANTS.

TOYS AND DOLLS

Never saw such a collection of

HOLIDAY ∵ GOODS,

Toys and Toydom, Dolls and Dolldom, Horses, Carriages, Carts, Bicycles, Velocipedes, Elephants, Tigers, Lions, Panthers, Leopards, Games, Ten Pins, Foot Balls, Musical Toys, Bugle and Musical Horns, everything known in Toydom. And as for Dolls, we have them in all stages of life; all sizes and conditions, from the little stuffed Doll, with chubby chamois legs, to the big alabaster Doll, with big blue eyes, golden hair and dimpled cheek, pretty little Dolls that lie down and sleep, and funny little Dolls that stand up and wink at you; Dolls in Garden of Eden costumes, and Dolls in oriental toggery, gipsy Dolls, and fifth avenue Dolls. They're all here. Never saw so many; never saw such cute ones, almost smart enough to talk and walk and play with the boys. You must buy your dolls here if you would have the prettiest and cutest. Look for our famous "Pig Tussle," and get all the tickets you can on it Some one will get it. Might be you. You'll never get it if you don't try. It costs you nothing.

STORE WILL BE OPEN AT NIGHT TILL 9 O'CLOCK.
