Astounding Figures.

[From Yankee Blade.]

The present anniversary year is an appropriate time to consider the growth of the United States in population during the past century.

In 1790 the first national census was taken. In 1890, one hundred years later, the last national census was taken. These censuses are taken every ten years, and from their examination an adequate idea of the growth of the country may be obtained.

Statistics are usually considered very irksome reading, but the census statistics of the United States, recording as they do the most marvelous national growth in all history, are of great interest to all who are impressed by our country's development.

In the census of 1790 the present states of Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Ohio, Oregon, Texas, West Virginia, Wisconsin, North and South Dekota, Montana and Washington were not represented, for the simple reason that they had not yet come into existence. Indeed the territory of the most of them had not been explored. It was a solitude roamed by savages and wild beasts.

The population of Massachusetts in 1790 was 378,787 or about 100,000 less than the population of the single city of Boston to-day.

The population of the state of New York in 1790 was 340,126. There are seven cites in the United States to-day—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Boston and Baltimore, that contain a larger population than did the entire state of New York in 1790.

The population of the entire country in 1790 was 3,929,214. The whole country, then, one hundred years ago, contained about as many people as is contained in the three cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. The state of New York as well as the state of Pennsylvania has a far larger population today than did the entire United States in 1790. If New York City should annex Brooklyn and the other contiguous cities, the mayor of the new consolidated city would govern a population almost as large as that governed by President Washington.

In the census of 1800 Mississippi, Indiana, Ohio and the District of Columbia were included, which were not included in the census of 1790. The population increased about a million and a half in ten years, and at the opening of the century our population was 5,368,483, or several hundred thousand less than the present population of the state of New York. There was not a single state that had a population as large as the present population of either of the citiesof New York, Chicago, Philadelphia or Brooklyn.

In the census of 1810 were included Illinois, Louisianna, Michigan and Missouri, not included in previous censuses. The population increased almost two millions in ten years, and was 7,239,881. Virginia had the largest population, and contained 974,600 people.

So there was not a single state in the Union, even then, with as large a population as is now possessed by either of the cities of New York, Chicago or Philadelphia.

In the census of 1820 Arkansas was the only name not represented in some previous census. The population had increased considerably over two millions, and was 9,633,822. New York was the largest state, and contained 1,372,111 population, a figure considerably smaller than that represented by the present population of the city of New York.

Florida is the only new name represented in the census ot 1830. The population had increased over three millions, and was 12,866,020. The largest state was New York, which then contained a population of 1,918,608. This was the first time in our history when our largest state was larger than our present largest city.

In the census of 1840 Iowa and Wisconsin were the new names represented. The population had increased almost five millions.

In the census of 1850 California, Minnesota, Oregon, Texas, New Mexico and Utah are represented for the first time. The population had increased to 23,191,876.

In 1860 Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, Dakota and Wyoming are represented for the first time. The population had increased in round numbers to thirty-one millions.

In 1870 it had increased to thirty-eight millions.

In 1880 it had increased to fifty millions.

In 1890 it had increased to sixty-two millions.

So it will be seen that our population has doubled since 1860, and that Benjamin Harrison rules over twice as many people as did Abraham Lincoln.

We learn from this brief survey that the population of the United States doubles at least once in thirty years. If this rate of increase keeps on for the next one hundred years we shall have, in 1990, a population exceeding 500,000,000, or about one-half the present population of the entire world.

If you can bear all your small trials you will never break down under your great ones.

There ought to be more religious people who are religious when things don't go right.

The fact that a man wants more knowledge is proof that he has some already.

It does not take an eloquent tongue to give a pleasant sound to good news.

To speak harshly to a person, is like striking a harpischord with your fists.

Resolutions taken without thought may bring disasters without remedy.

If you hear a sweet and pleasant echo, speak sweetly and pleasantly.

The height of ability consists of a knowledge of the value of things.

The Century Magazine

IN 1893.

It would be hard for a person who cares for good reading to make a better investment than a year's subscription to The Century Magazine. No region is too remote, no expense too great, if it will only produce what the Century's readers want. This is the policy that has made it, as the Pall Mall Budget, of London, says, "By far the best of the magazines, English or American."

The November number begins a new volume and contains the first chapters of a powerful novel of New York society, called "Sweet Bells Out of Tune," written by Mrs. Burton Harrison, the author of "The Anglomaniacs." In this story the fashionable wedding, the occupants of the boxes in the Metropolitan Opera House, the "smart set" in the country house are faithfully reflected, and the illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson, Life's well-known cartoonist, are as brilliant as the novel.

In this November number begins also a great series of papers on "The Bible and Science," opening with "Does the Bible contain Scientific Errors?" by Prof. Shield, of Princeton, who takes decided ground that the Bible does not contain scientific errors of any moment, and who most interestingly states the case from his point of view. Other articles in this series will include one in the December (Christmas) number, "The Effect of Scientific Study upon Religious Beliefs."

An important series of letters that passed between General Sherman and his brother, Senator John Sherman, is also printed in November, which number contains also contributions from the most distinguished writers, including an article by James Russell Lowell, which was not quite completed at the time of his death. The suggestion which Bishop Potter makes in the November Century as to what could be done with the World's Fair if it were opened on Sunday, is one which seems the most practical solution of the problem yet offered.

The December Century is to be a great Christmas number,—full of Christmas stories, Christmas poems, and Christmas pictures,—and in it will begin the first chapters of a striking novel of life in Colorado, "Benefits Forgot," by Wolcott Balestier, who wrote "The Naulahka" with Rudyard Kipling.

Papers on good roads, the new educational methods, and city government are soon to come.

Four dollars will bring you this splendid magazine for one year, and certainly no cultivated home can afford to be without it. Subscribers can remit directly to the publishers, The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York. They should begin with November, and so get first chapters of all the serials, including "Sweet Bells Out of Tune."

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Weekly is acknowledged as standing first among illustrated weekly periodicals in America. It occupies a place between that of the hurried daily paper and that of the less timely monthly magazine. It includes both literature and news, and presents with equal force and felicity the real events of current history and the imaginative themes of fiction. On account of its very complete series of illustrations of the World's Fair, it will be not only the best guide to the great Exposition, but also its best souvenir. Every public event of general interest will be fully illustrated in its pages. Its contributions being from the best writers and artists in this country, it will continue to excel in literature, news and illustrations, all other publications of its class.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Greatest of Republican Newspapers.

National in its aims and devoted to the welfare of the Masses of the American People.

The New York Tribune concedes the election of Grover Cleveland, but promises to defend the Republican policy on Finance and Protection, with all the ability it can command.

It was the discontent of the farmers which caused the Democratic victories of two years ago. The Weekly Tribune, addressing itself directly to them for the past two years, has carried on a campaign of discussion for their benefit, almost unparalleled in American journalism; and the result coupled with Whitelaw Reid's previous great service to farmers, has been seen in the fact that agricultural communities have stood faithful to the Republican party, in a campaign in which, in other localities the party went completely to pieces. This year, the Democratic leaders changed their tactics and excited discontent among workingmen. They pointed to the higher prices of farm products, and assured the workingmen of Northern cities that the British tariff system, (that is to say, lessened protection to American Farming and Industry) would lower the prices of food and manufactured products, and the profits of "monopolists" in this country, while at the same time maintaining the wages of labor, those wages being now the highest ever known in the United States. By false pretence, deception, and a pandering to the lowest passions of uninformed men in large cities, they have carried the country and elected a Democratic President and Congress.

The Tribune confidently awaits the result. Not for one moment, however, will The Tribune yield one inch of ground in the battle for American policies.

Roswell G. Horr's great articles will be among the features of The Tribune, the coming year. Men of every political faith are invited to read them. They will state the Republican view with frankness, point out the probable consequences of a change in the tariff policy of the country, and evade no issue, and conceal no fact, bearing upon the subjects discussed. Their thorough treatment of fundamental principles will aid every reader to a better understanding of profound and important issues.

A page a week will be devoted during 1893, to war stories and news of interest to Union veterans. Old soldiers, who have some experience to tell, which has not yet been printed, are asked to send the story to The Tribune for publication.

Farming has now become such an enormous interest in the United States, that there is an imperative necessity for making more of a specialty of the business interests of the Farmers of the country at large. Plans have been formed which ought to make The Semi-Weekly and The Weekly Tribune absolutely indispensable to every tiller of the soil during 1893.

A large number of entertaining features of general interest will also appear. "How to succeed in Life," "Village Improvement," special articles by brilliant men and women of high reputation, Chess and Checkers, and a hundred other things which cannot be recited in a brief prospectus, will appear on the Tribune's pages during 1893. The paper will have less politics and more of the thousand and one things which refresh the mind, entertain the imagination, and guide the reader in the prosecution of his business and social life.

The Tribune asks for reports as to the operations of Village Improvement Societies, from those who are acquainted with their operations.

An illustrated catalogue of excellent premiums will be sent free on application.

The Semi-Weekly is particularly commended to the attention of general readers. It gives more of the keen, incisive editorials, book reviews, foreign letters and other valuable features of The Tribune, than there is room for in the Weekly. The large type and broad columns of the Tribune make it the easiest paper to read.

To all who subscribe during 1892 for one year the paper will be sent free for the balance of this year. Sample copies free. Weekly, $1.00; Semi-Weekly, $2.00.

Friends of Agriculture, Industry and the Republican party, are invited to make up clubs for this paper in their localities. There are four years' of trial, of new experiment, of discussion of great national topics, and of observation of the effects of Democratic supremacy before the country. The Tribune will lead in the presentation of the Republican view. The friends of the splendid record of the Republican party, can aid in the final triumph of Republican principles by seeing that the people read the Republican side of the story.

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

St. Nicholas for Young Folks.

JOHN G. WHITTIER long ago wrote of St. Nicholas, "It is little to say of this magazine that it is the best children's periodical in the world." Edward Eggleston, the author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," says of it, "There is not one of the numbers that does not stir the curiosity, inform the memory, stimulate thought, and enlarge the range of the imagination." Founded in 1873, and from the first number edited by Mary Mapes Dodge, St. Nicholas is now entering upon its twentieth year. The most famous writers have contributed to its pages in the past, but never has its editor been able to offer a better program or a more distinguished list of contributors than for 1893.

There is to be a series of illustrated papers on "The Leading Cities of the United States,"—the story of each city told by a prominent resident. Edward Clarence Stedman will write of New York; Thomas W Higginson, of Boston; New Orleans will be described by George W. Cable, and Baltimore by President Gilman, of the Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Lyman Abbott will tell the story of Brooklyn, and other cities will be treated by other famous men. There will be articles on the World's Fair, and a number of pages of funny pictures and humorous verses.

Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, the well-known author of "The Birds' Christmas Carol," etc., will contribute the leading serial for St. Nicholas during the coming year. The November number opens with a three-page poem by John G. Whittier, which has in it some of the most beautiful lines the good Quaker poet has ever written, describing the visit of a party of young girls to his home.

The School Journal says, "Place St. Nicholas in your household, and you need have no fears for the lessons taught your children." The magazine is the greatest aid that the teacher and the conscientious parent can possibly have. It entertains, and at the same time educates and instructs. The subscription price is $3 a year. Remittances may be made directly to the publishers. The Century Co., 33 East 17th St. New York.
