Should Be Reciprocal.

The appointment of Judge Howell E. Jackson, of Tennessee, as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Lamar, has occasioned much comment on the part of the press of the country, chiefly of a favorable and commendatory character, with here and there an exception, made by some Republican journal. We are not disposed to criticise the action of President Harrison in the matter, or would not be if a little more liberality were displayed by the other side. Acts of this character should be reciprocal. Unfortunately this is not the case, at least in this State. Here methods of appointment are frequently changed or modified to prevent Republican ascendency, even in school boards. The first school law under the constitution of 1867 made the commissioners elective by districts. It was soon ascertained that a majority of Republicans in some of the Boards was a possibility under that system, and the law was changed and the appointing power vested in the courts. All the courts were then safely Democratic, but in the process of years this unanimity became broken and now at least one of the judicial circuits has two Republicans to one Democrat on the bench. This threatened the loss of Democratic supremacy in the School Boards of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, a circumstance that Maryland Democrats could not tolerate, and the appointment of commissioners was taken from the least partisan department of the State government, in theory at least, and conferred, by the act of 1892, on the Governor.

In Baltimore it had become a custom to allow the member of the City Council from each ward to designate the member of the school board for such ward, but recently the custom has been abrogated and now the majority names all the members and takes good care to see that they are politically sound; that is, faithfully Democratic.

The Legislature of 1892 passed a law to create the district road system in this county. Three commissioners were created for each district, not to be chosen by the people of such district, but appointed by the County Commissioners; but even the latter were restricted in making a choice of the officers provided in the law by being commanded to appoint at least two of the three in each district from among the members of the dominant party in the county. Illogical as is such a provision, it is more than probable that the law could not have been passed without it, and so the large Democratic population of Myers', Manchester, Hampstead and Woolery's districts are practically invested with the power of appointment in the other nine districts, which generally give Republican majorities.

The relation of these simple facts is sufficient to show why a Carroll county, or a Maryland, Republican is not likely to become enthusiastic over the appointment of a Democratic Judge of the Supreme Court by a Republican President, whatever may be the qualifications of the appointee. In Judge Jackson's case there seems to be no doubt about his fitness for the station, and this is a strong point in his favor; but Republicans here will naturally believe, in the light of all they have experienced, that if the conditions had been reversed a Democratic President would not have nominated a Republican for a station of such importance; and entertaining this opinion, will feel that, to a certain extent, the action of President Harrison is not commendatory. While the judiciary, the public schools and local matters generally should be removed as far as possible from mere partisan influences, there should be at least a measure of reciprocity in placing them in that attitude. It is scarcely satisfactory to have the Republicans give all and receive nothing.

The Hawaiian Matter.

Little has been done during the last week concerning the proposed annexation of the Island of Hawaii, but indications are not wanting that the project is regarded favorably in official and private circles, and that it will eventually be consummated. Annexation will be far from an unmixed blessing, but the impression prevails generally that the advantages of that course far outweigh the disadvantages that might arise through refusal to consider and accept the proposal of the commisioners now representing the new government of the Island at Washington.

Preliminary legislation to establish the status of the Island in its governmental relations to this country, in the event of annexation, is necessary and steps to that end are being taken. Senator Morgan, the leading Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate, has introduced the followidg bill in that body, evidently with the the object of covering the case referred to:

"That whenever the United States shall acquire dominion over any foreign country or place, by treaty or annexation or otherwise, the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate, may appoint a governor for the same and a legislative council, to consist of any number of persons not less than five nor more than twenty-five, whose acts shall be subject to revision or repeal by Congress, unless the treaty of annexation or secession shall otherwise provide. Said governor and council shall constitute and conduct all provisional government for such country or place until Congress shall otherwise provide by law."

Pending negotiations for the annexation of Hawaii, United States Minister John L. Stevens has placed the Island under the protection of the American flag.

The National quarantine bill has been passed by the Senate and House, and with the President's signature will become a law.

The Sherman Law.

An attempt to take up the bill to repeal the Sherman silver law, in the United States Senate, on Monday last, was defeated by the decisive vote of 42 to 23. Twelve Democrats voted in the affirmative and twenty in the negative. Eleven Republican Senators voted for and twenty-two against consideration of the bill. Senator Hill, of New York, was the mover of the proposition to consider the bill and made a speech in favor of its adoption, but his argument, if it can be dignified by that term, was remarkable and incomprehensible. He announced his adhesion to free silver coinage, and said many bitter and sarcastic things, but little that was of value. He referred to Mr. Cleveland as the "Eastern Olympus in Nassau street."

The vote against taking up the bill is not considered as indicative of the real strength of those opposed to the repeal of the Sherman act. A number of the Republicans, and possibly some of the Democrats, whose votes were recorded in the negative, would vote for repeal on the square issue, but considered it a waste of the Senate's time to enter upon a fruitless discussion of the measure, the defeat of which could be readily compassed by dilatory tactics on the part of the silver men.

The result, so far as the Democratic Senators is concerned, however, is apparently a notice to Mr. Cleveland that his will is not to be accepted as law by other representatives of his party. He is sincerely anxious to have the silver question disposed of before his inauguration, and it was deemed probable that the influence of the vast patronage at his command would be sufficient to induce compliance with his wishes on the part of the Democrats in the Senate and House. Those in the higher body, however, by this action on Monday, have served notice on him that the law-making power does not reside in the executive, a fact which he seems to have forgotten. Nothing could be more vicious, or less in harmony with the spirit of Republican institutions, than a set purpose on the part of the chief executive of the country to coerce legislation through the use of patronage. The repeal of the Sherman law is highly desirable, if not imperatively necessary to the financial interests of the country, but it should not be brought about by improper means and influence.

An attempt to fix a date upon which a vote to repeal should be taken in the House of Representatives, was defeated in that body on Thursday, 107 Democrats, 35 Republicans and 10 Populists voting against it. The vote in its favor was 104 Democrats, 39 Republicans.

Maryland at the World's Fair.

President Sylvester, of the Maryland Agricultural College, has issued an appeal to the farmers of this State in relation to a proper representation of her agricultural products at the Columbian World's Fair. The document is in the shape of a circular letter, which, by request, is given a place in the columns of the SENTINEL this week. The particular attention of the farmers of this county is invited to this matter, which must possess more than common interest for all. The letter needs no explanation, and we only desire to advise the acceptance of its suggestions by any of our readers having articles worthy of exhibition. It is as follows:

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE,
COLLEGE PARK, MD., FEB. 6TH, 1893.

To the Farmers of the State:—The Board of World's Fair Managers for Maryland, at a meeting held on the 31st ult., decided that Maryland should be represented in the Agricultural Hall at Chicago.

This decision must be received with pleasure by every public spirited agriculturist in the State. It offers our farmers an opportunity to show to the world what Maryland is capable of in this line of human endeavor; her full capacity shown can but be a source of pride to every man interested in the welfare of the State.

We make a direct appeal to every farmer in the State to give us his hearty co-operation in this most important matter.

If you are willing to aid us by contributions of samples of different varieties of your grain, hay, photographic views of your stock and well kept premises, specimens of fruits put in glass jars in your homes (and in this matter our appeal is directly to the ladies, for we know by a wide and careful observation that no locality can surpass them in what they can furnish for exhibition on this line). It is repeated then, if you are willing to aid us in this matter, write at once to the undersigned and full particulars will be given as to the amount of material of each kind wanted and full directions as to packing and shipping to the Central Office for Collection, Baltimore, where all freights will be paid.

We earnestly ask prompt action on your part. Our time is very short and we desire in this time to make a collection of which every Marylander may justly be proud. The object is two-fold:—1st, to afford an opportunity to gratify pleasurable pride. 2nd, to afford an opportunity, with object lessons, attractively to show the advantages of Maryland, on the line of her diversified interests, and be the means of calling attention of the buying world to her capabilities and productions.

It is expected to return specimens loaned for exhibit.

We are required to have the exhibit ready for shipment from Baltimore to Chicago, by the last of March.

R. W. SILVESTER,
President M. A. C.

A cablegram to the New York Herald from London announces the death in Capri, on February 3, of Algernon Charles Sartoris, the husband of General Grant's daughter Nellie. Mrs. Sartoris was called on by a Herald correspondent, but she could add but little to the news. She does not yet know the cause of the death of the man who brought her so much sorrow. It is not likely to make any difference in her mode of life. She will continue to live in London attending to the education of her three childrdren. Gen. and Mrs. Grant were averse to the marriage of their daughter with Sartoris, but yielded rather than risk her happiness. The result was a sorrowful experience, however, for the cherished child of the great American soldier, events proving that cupidity and ambition were the motives of the Englishman, and not love for the woman he married.

The Board of the Visitors of the Asylum and Training School for the feeble-minded of the State of Maryland announces that the new buildings have been so far expanded and equipped as to be capable of accommodating about seventy-five children. As there are still a few vacancies, applications will be promptly considered until these shall have been filled. The Board states that preference is always given to children who are susceptible of training and improvement, and epileptics are included. For application blanks or information apply to Dr. B. J. Turner, superintendent, Owings Mills, Baltimore county, Md.

The trunk line railroad officials have agreed upon passenger rates to the Chicago World's Fair. One way and round-trip tickets for slow trains will be sold at a discount of 20 per cent. on existing fare. On trains that travel between New York and Chicago in less than thirty-five hours there will be no reduction in the regular fare. Tickets will be sold on one road going out good to return by a different route. The fare from Baltimore, for the round trip, will be $27.50.

The official votes of the electors of the several States, for President and Vice-President of the United States, were counted and the result declared by Vice-President Morton, before the Senate and House of Representatives, on Wednesday. Cleveland and Stevenson received 277, Harrison and Reid 145 and Weaver and Field 22.

Reported for the SENTINEL.

Carroll County Teachers' Institute.

It is seldom that the chronicler of local events has a more fruitful or engaging theme than the County Teachers' Institute held in this city on Thursday and Friday of last week, the day sessions at Central Hall Schoolhouse and the night sessions at Odd Fellows' Hall, under the management of the County School Examiner, Prof. James A. Diffenbaugh. A very enjoyable and successful series of meetings was not unlooked-for. The suggestive list of attractions outlined in the announcements, the pleasant recollections of the last Institute, and everybody's confidence in the Examiner's ability to arrange and manage elaborate programs harmoniously and vigorously, had stimulated public expectation. From the beginning to the end this expectation was fully met. Every hour of the time was crowded with profitable instruction and pleasant entertainment, in which the interest of the teachers and the public never flagged.

Of the 155 teachers in the employ of the School Board, more than 130 were present at ten o'clock Thursday morning when the venerable and beloved president of the Westminster Theological Seminary, Rev. Dr. J. T. Ward, opened the Institute with prayer. This number was increased to about 150 before the noon recess.

The contributions by home talent to the exercises were the music—an indispensable and delightful part—by an excellent choir and a number of trained soloists; the Address of Welcome, by Dr. J. W. Hering, cashier of the Union National Bank; the response by Mr. Chas. W. Otto, Principal of Springdale school near New Windsor, and an address by Rev. Dr. James W. Reese of Western Maryland College. Rev. Dr. Lewis, president of the college, was also on the program for an address, but was suddenly called away from town.

The musicians were: Miss Ida Lockard, pianist; Messrs. George and Bailey Morelock and Master Arthur Stonesifer, corneters; Miss Maggie Lockard, Ida Diffenbaugh, Grace Hockensmith, Hilda Crass, Carrie Mourer, and Maria Mikesell, and Messrs. Simon P. Weaver, George H. Caple, William D. Reese, B. F. Crouse, Austin H. Geiselman and E. Gehr Smith, vocalists. With solos, duets and choruses, instrumental and vocal, from time to time, they added vastly to the variety and pleasure of the meetings.

Dr. Hering, always wise in thought, persuasive in manner and felicitous in expression, on this occasion surpassed himself. His Welcome was one of the most eloquent and pertinent addresses he ever delivered. He assured the teachers that their calling was second only to the sacred ministry, and that they and their work were held in tender regard by every thoughtful citizen. He encouraged them also by citing evidences that the county had been steadily rising in rank among the counties of the State in educational circles, during the last few years, and that under the present prudent, economical and energetic management of school affairs, it would continue to rise—public confidence was secure, public appreciation was enlarging, good houses and other appliances for the work were being supplied as rapidly as possible, and the teachers might soon hope for material improvement in their own condition.

Mr. Otto, in his response, surprised his fellow teachers and the rest of his hearers by the thoughtfulness and force of his remarks, and the excellent taste in which they were conceived. He argued that organization is the inevitable condition of all material life, and following nature's hint, man has organized despotism and carnage with wonderful results. Why should not the constructive and conservative forces in society be likewise organized, drilled and solidfied? Such organization and concentration of educational forces was the purpose of meetings like this Institute, and the time given to them was well expended.

Prof. Reese's theme was "The Teacher's Right to Popular Appreciation and Regard," which he set forth at the Friday night session, with unsurpassed power, eloquence and learning, citing with great force three priceless gifts which teachers give to their schools—their experience, their character and their love, as worthy of the highest appreciation.

In addition to the above, there were lessons in Teaching Constitutions, by State Superintendent, E. B. Prettyman; in the construction and use of Home-Made Apparatus for Teaching Physics, by Prof. Wm. C. A. Hamell; in Nature Study, by Prof. Herbert E. Austin; and in Physical and Voice Training by Miss Helen M. Cole, all of the Faculty of the Maryland State Normal School; a lecture on the Province of Elocution and various recitations, by Miss Cole; a talk on the Duties and Trials of Teachers, by Col. John A. M. Passmore of Philadelphia; instruction in Concrete Number Work and a lecture on The Palatines in America, by Dr. Samuel A. Baer, City Sup't. of Reading, Pa; two Chalk-Talks by Prof. George E. Little of Washington, D. C.; and various talks and lectures by Hon. Henry Houck, Deputy State Supt. of Pennsylvania. Prof. Prettyman's subject was dry and unpromising, but he clothed it with such an investiture of historical interest, State pride and patriotism, as to arouse the enthusiasm of his audience and cause them, at the close of his period, to sing "Maryland My Maryland" with great unction under the lead of Prof. Houck. He showed both by instruction and his own example, how, by teaching the historical events and local circumstances which led to various constitutional provisions, the subject might be made to glow with interest and hold the attention.

The talks and experiments of Profs. Hamell and Austin were so novel, so interesting and so instructive, that there was general regret when the end came.

These gentlemen are youthful in appearance, and their hearers were unprepared for the lucidity of statement, skill of manipulation and wealth of learning they displayed.

Miss Cole was no stranger to a Westminster audience, having by instruction at the last Institute, two years ago, along with Profs. Prettyman and Houck, secured a high place in the regard of our people. Her lesson in physical and voice training at the schoolhouse was a practical exposition of a number of simple and easy movements of the body for the correction of sundry common errors in habit and deficiencies in development; and in order that the teachers might be able to practice these movements intelligently in their schools she took a class of them carefully through the movements several times. Her lecture at the Thursday night session on The Province of Elocution, was remarkable alike for richness of thought and grace of diction. She argued that the true province of elocution is character-building or soul-culture, by the true interpretation of literature, and the moral forces awakened and employed in the study of good literature which follows. Later in the evening she recited, in Greek costume, "Phaeton, A Mythological Tale" translated from Ovid, which a competent critic pronounced "a very classical selection very classically rendered," and which delighted the whole house. She impressed the audience as one of the most natural, graceful and accomplished elocutionists they have ever heard. On Friday night she yielded to urgent requests and recited several selections.

Col. Passmore's paper on the Duties and Trials of Teachers was made up largely from his own experience. He is a graduate of the State Normal School at Millersville, Pa., and taught in the public schools of that State for a number of years; and although he is not now engaged in teaching, his message was warm from the heart of one who had performed the duties and endured the trials of which he spoke so feelingly, to the hearts of kindred toilers and sufferers of to-day. It was replete with wisdom and practical suggestions persuasively and eloquently set forth.

Prof. George E. Little's Chalk talks exhibited marvelous skill, dexterity and rapidity in his art, and abounded in useful practical instruction in drawing. In his delineations of "Forms and Faces in Chalk and Charcoal" he kept the curiosity of all continually on the alert by a constant succession of novelties. By a few simple lines rapidly executed he would make the most surprising changes of expression.

Dr. Baer's instruction in Concrete Number Work, as used in the Reading primary schools under his supervision, as a preparation for the study of arithmetic, was eminently practical and full of usefulness to the teachers. Friday night he delivered an exceedingly interesting lecture on "The Palatines in America, or the Pennsylvania Germans, their History, Customs and Peculiarities," which was filled with unwritten and not easily accessible information about these interesting people, the most of which was new to his audience.

Humorous anecdotes, illustrative of peculiarities of character and habits, enlivened the lecture and added to its attractions. The theme is one with which the accomplished Doctor is thoroughly familiar, and is presented by him in an engaging manner. Although the lecture lasted over an hour and a half the attention was close and appreciative to the end.

Prof. Houck has laid our school authorities and our people under renewed obligations by his helpful presence. It would be impossible to do justice in any description, to his readiness, variety, adaptability, humor, eloquence and homely wisdom. It was a great disappointment that he was unable to speak more at the night sessions. But we hope to hear him at future Institutes. When he and Col. Passmore were obliged to leave Friday noon to meet other engagements, the freedom of the school system of the county was tendered to them by a rising vote.

As an evidence of popular appreciation of the Institute, it is a real pleasure to state, that there were present at the various sessions, hundreds of the most cultivated citizens of the town and vicinity, and the order throughout was excellent, the interest was unabated and commendations are universal. As an evidence of its value, the teachers are loud in expressions of thanks for the good it has done them in enlarging their views, stimulating their energies, encouraging their hopes, improving their social relations, and bringing popular attention and approval to their work.

NOTES.

Messrs. N. H. Baumgartner, William D. Reese and Charles E. Hering rendered useful and appreciated service as ushers at the night meetings of the Institute.

The Friday morning session was opened with prayer by Rev. Father Sargent of the Order of the Holy Cross.

All of the instructors from abroad were entertained by Prof. Diffenbaugh at his residence, The Maples.

Weaver, of Hanover, Pa., succeeded in obtaining excellent pictures of the officers, teachers, and a number of visitors, making in all 150 figures, grouped at the front of Central Hall schoolhouse. The tone of the picture is admirable, and the fidelity of the likenesses remarkable, the features of nearly every person in the group being distinct and easily recognizable. Copies of the picture can be obtained by applying to Mr. S. P. Weaver, principal of Central Hall school.

Flour Conundrums!

Where can I get the best barrel of Flour?

At the Roller Mills of MESSRS. N. I. GORSUCH & SON, Westminster, Md.

What is the cost of this Flour?

At this time they sell for sixty-three cents per sack, or five dollars per barrel.

Do they make more than one grade of Flour?

Yes, they make four grades, but "SEA FOAM" is the best.

What makes their Flour better than other mills?

Because of the care they exercise in selecting their wheat.

Do they make much Flour?

I should think they did. Last year they made and sold nearly eighteen thousand barrels.

What are the names of the other Brands of their Flour besides Sea Foam?

WHITE LILY, COOK'S DELIGHT AND CROWN.

Can you recommend these brands?

Yes sir! I have tried them all, and either will please you.

Is it necessary for me to go to the mill of Messrs. N. I. Gorsuch & Son to get their Flour?

By no means. Wherever you find a live merchant who sells any flour, there you will find the superior brands of this firm.

I greatly appreciate the information I have received from you and you will pardon me for further intruding on your good nature; but I have one more question I wish to ask. It is in regard to Mill Feed. Can I get fresh ground Bran and Middlings from this firm?

Well I should say you can. That is their great hobby—fresh ground Mill Feed, and with the late reduction in price you would be surprised how cheap it is.

Please tell me whether they buy wheat?

Indeed they do. They are in need at this time of five thousand bushels of good wheat.

Thank you for this gratifying information. I will certainly give them a call. Good morning.

Very Respectfully,

N. I. Gorsuch & Son,

Testimonials,
FROM PEOPLE YOU KNOW,
ARE OFFERED BELOW.

A problem solved by Carroll countians. Dr. G. D. Johnson's is cheaper than any Condition Powder or Special Food, and possesses the quality to make it the standard.

Horse, Cattle and Poultry Powder

An Appeal to your Intelligence.

Johnson's Powder retails at 25 cts. for 32 oz. package. Dose—tablespoonful, all medicine, 64 doses in package, at a cost of less than half a cent.

PRATT'S FOOD costs 75 cts. for 12 lb. bag, or 6¼ cts. per lb. Dose—quarter pound, or about 8 tablespoonfuls, containing probably one tablespoonful of medicine, 7 do. of bran; cost per dose 1½ cts. The farmer thus pays at the rate of between $40 and $50 per ton for bran, whose market value is about $18.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.—Among many prominent dairymen and farmers who have used the powder with good results, and who speak very highly of their merits, we may mention:
