COMMENCEMENT AT WASHINGTON COL. HELD MONDAY

age,—faith that our Democracy in our time can provide justice, and economic opportunity, and security, while at the same time it preserves the rights and liberties of the individual, courage to strike swiftly at treachery in any form, but also courage to keep your poise when hysteria possesses those about you, courage to make the ideals that Washington College has given you a daily, living, reality in your community."

Cincinnati Society Award

Presented to Dr. Gilbert W. Mead by Lieut. Col. Edgar Erskine Hume.

The Society of the Cincinnati was instituted at the close of the American Revolution by officers of the Continental Army. It was but natural that they should seek a means to keep alive the friendships forged through eight years of war and hardship. Plans were perfected and General Washington honored the new Society by becoming its President. This office he held to the end of his life. He was succeeded by Alexander Hamilton, and he in turn by Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, whose words "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute", are known to every school boy. It was provided that upon the death of a member, his membership would pass to his eldest son or next male heir ,and so on. Each officer contributed a month's pay to build up a fund for the relief of needy members and their widows and orphans.

Among the leaders of the American Army who became members besides Washington himself, were: Hamilton, LaFayette, Greene, Knox, Steuben, Muhlenberg, Benjamin Lincoln, John Paul Jones, McDougall, Putman, Schuyler, Gates, "Light Horse Harry" Lee, President Monroe, Moultrie, Kosciuszko, Anthony Wayne, Sullican, Weedon, St. Clair and others. President Pierce was a hereditary member. A limited number of honorary members was allowed, and among them have been such men as Benjamin Franklin, Paca, Perry, Bainbridge, Winfield Scott, Grant, Farragut, Cleveland, Dewey, Jusserand, Woodrow Wilson, Leonard Wood Pershing, both Presidents Roosevelt, Albert, King of the Belgians, Crown Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden and Secretary Hull, to name a few of them. Among the French Officers who held membership there were "the very elite of the French nobility", as Baron Contenson puts it, including Rochambeau, de Grasse, d'Estaing, Broglie, d'Aboville, Bougainville, Berthier, Chastellux, Count von Fersen, Iauzun, Segur and many others.

Mr. President, more than one tie of respect and affection binds the Society of the Cincinnati to Washington College. The Father of his Country gave the college his name, for he knew that it would be borne with honor. He gave to the Society of the Cincinnati his leadership, for he remained the head of that society to th every end of his life. Te each he gave of his means to form a permanent endowment fund that the ideals of each might be perpetuated.

Moreover our very birthdays are the same. By one of those coincidences of history the Society of the Cincinnati was instituted on the very day on which Washington College held its first commencement, May 14, 1783. Thus we had, so to say, the same commencement. We have also pursued a not dissimilar course of service to our ideals, our country and our God through the intervening hundred and fifty-seven years.
