The Maryland Unemployment Compensation insurance is not altogether for the men who works. Employers are forced to pay taxes for employees who are not considered eligible for insurance payments and who cannot collect benefits due to them under the law when they are unemployed.

The Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board has been functioning since the beginning of the year 1938; a period of time long enough in which to iron out the present difficulties. We could not and would not expect a newly functioning commission to be infallible—but we do believe that established public agencies should amend themselves or seek legislative adjustment of obvious fallacies and injustices. We hold no brief against the principle of the present law. But we do feel that the present law needs amendment. Amendment to include such cases that because of technicalities in present regulations receive no benefits. There are examples of work men who have such physical disabilities, that, while they are able to perform their duties in one line of work, are prevented from ever working at other forms of employment.

We cite the example of one man, who, due to a certain physical disablement, could lift no heavy objects. For a long time he was employed under the provisions of the Unemployment Compensation act, and his insurance paid regularly. Yet, unemployed, he receives no benefits from the state, for the reason that he is unable to accept new positions offered because of his physical handicap.

Another example of injustice is the exclusion under the law of elderly men, unable at the present to work because of physical infirmities, yet taxes were collected by the Board on these men while they were working.

If the Unemployment Compensation Board is going to exclude from benefit payments these men unable to find work, or temporarily unable to work, because of physical infirmiites, present at the time the taxes were being paid, why, then, are the employers of these men forced to pay taxes directly to the Board, when it is perfectly apparent that the workmen will never collect any compensation?

The Board must decide on a fair policy soon. It must either pay benefits to this class of the unemployed, or it must cease collecting taxes from their employers on them. It must cease deluding employees with a false sense of security; it must cease robbing the employers.

America, Thursday, celebrated its one hundred and sixty-fourth birthday in the customary fashion. For sheer noise and color, Uncle Sam's anniversaries can nowhere be equaled, especially for the noise involved.

The kids had a good time, or at least those that survived the day intact did; so did most of the grown-ups, too. But there were a few adults that did not spend the day rioting at the regatta or beaches or in collecting sunburn and poison ivy at picnics or in being blasted by the volcanic mouths of "4th" orators. Once a year, they crawl out of their hiding places, sound off and retire, but not usually before the audience has first.

No, these people that sat at home or wandered into kindred groups did some honest thinking, of taxes, of holiday accidents, of war and the threat of war, of conditions abroad and at home that had grown to become intolorable to decent free people.

It wasn't a pleasant outlook that was facing people of America on July fourth, 1940. A peaceful people that had appointed this day to celebrate and honor, to rekindle those ideals of life, those inalienable rights of man to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Liberty in Europe, indeed, on every other continent, as we conceive of liberty, has vanished or been vanquished. It is none too secure in these United States, with all our smugness to the contrary. We must man the ramparts guarding our civil liberties. Even now, the enemies of democracy would muzzle the press, and the radio never has achieved the freedom attained for religion, the press or free speech. Once these guarantees of freedom disappear, we are lost.

France, in 1859, gave America a statue that every last American recognizes in an instant. And Americans are notorously innocent when it comes to art appreciation. The stature itself is a rather ordinary, conventional figure, bearing aloft a torch in the right hand, which burns at night for the tourist trade. Few New Yorkers, other than ferry captains, pay much attention to it. As a matter of fact, the shrine has almost become just another sightseer's attraction to the casual American. Travelers, returning from abroad nearly to a man mouth "Greatest thing I seen on the whole trip" in perfect insincerity, but in an expansive patriotic mood.

A few of them are sincere. And so are the hordes of refugees pouring into our harbor. This statue with its welcoming arm extended gives them renewed hope that some where they can find that peace within themselves, somewhere that they will be free from the cruel political, religious and racial predjudices that drove them from the fatherland, somewhere that they may regain those inalienable rights of man denied them by dictator ridden Europe.

The people of France, the once favorite home of the aegis of liberty, now crushed and defeated, raised the money for their gift to the people of the new world by popular subscription and sacrifice. Today, France is in desperate need of the return of those liberties which her gift so proudly proclaimed to mankind.

Waterspout Formation

Waterspouts at sea occur when opposite winds of different temperatures meet in the upper atmosphere, whereby a greater amount of vapor is condensed into a thick black cloud, to which a vertical motion is given. A partial vacuum is created in the center, which draws up the water in its vortex. When the waterspout has played itself out, it commences to disappear at the base, gradually traveling upward.

Skiing in Summer

Skiing in summer is nothing unusual on the Jungfrau of Switzerland in July and August. At an altitude of 11,340 feet skiers enjoy races on the Aletsch glacier or luxuriously ride in sleighs drawn by Polar dogs.

Who's talking through whose hat?

IN THE LAST FEW MONTHS, certain regular-priced gasolines have been implying that they will perform as well as our premium-priced gasoline, Gulf No-Nox.

Actually, that is a long way from being true.

There are three methods most generally used to determine the anti-knock value of a gasoline. These tests are used by us, used by our competitors, and are recognized by everybody in the industry.

On these tests of quality made by an independent laboratory, the regular gasoline, which is making the most to-do about being the equal of Gulf No-Nox, RATED 7 FULL POINTS BELOW GULF NO-NOX!

Even a 3-point difference in anti-knock rating is a noticeable difference. This 7-point difference is a BIG difference—gives Gulf No-Nox a major advantage in the high-compression engines you find in the newer cars.

Therefore, don't swallow it hook, line, and sinker, when someone tells you that his regular gas (however much it's been improved!) is as good as improved Gulf No-Nox. It isn't. In gasolines, as in everything else, you get about what you pay for.

These facts aren't just paper facts. You can confirm them in your own gas tank. Next time—try just one tankful of No-Nox, and make up your own mind whether any regular gas, anywhere, is within shouting distance of it!

FREE—"21 Ways to Save Money." This helpful booklet yours for the asking at your Good Gulf dealer's. Get yours, right away at the Sign of the Gulf Orange Disc!

NO REGULAR GASOLINE—NOT ONE—CAN COMPARE WITH GULF NO-NOX!
