NOW AND THEN

SUMMER IN LONDON: 1940

Summer has come to London,
And roses are everywhere.
Each daybreak gleams with shafts of gold.
From dawn to dusk
There is movement, activity, tramp of feet,
Men and women eager to meet
The demands that the hours unfold.
The air is laden with strange, dull sound—
Then twilight falls with its confident calm.
And wraps the great city round.
But what of the night?
There are swords of light in the midnight sky
And the whirr of wings goes by.
But—summer has come to London:
There are roses everywhere.

—Bertha Rivers-Thompson.

Flowers, flowers, everywhere, a perfect riot of bloom. Never have they been more abundant. Is it to cheer the people in this war torn world? Tourists, who have visited the battle fields of the last World's War, tell of the wreck of the once splendid buildings still in ruins. A pitiful sights, but flowers and vines, are busy trying to cover up the sad scene while in Flanders field the poppies still blow, "Give peace O God give peace again."

CEYX AND HALCYONE

In Grecian Mythology, it tells of a most devoted couple Ceyx and Halcyone. They were never separated, but at last Ceyx had to leave her for a whlie. She plead that she might go with him but he knowing how stormy the sea was at that season persuaded her to stay at home promising to return as soon as possible. But his ship was wrecked and all on board were lost, Halcyone waited and waited in vain. Then she had a dream and in the dream she saw her husband dead lying on the sea. Broken hearted she went to find him, so the pitying gods changed her into a bird, and with her swift wings she sought and found him. Then he too, was changed into a bird and they brooded on the water. When they nested the waves were always quiet and there were no wrecks nor turmoil while they brooded. Hence the season was called the "Halcyone days," days when peace was on the land and sea. The name has come down to us and when peace and plenty reigns supreme, they still call them "Halcyone Days."

There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart. Never believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it is true. Never tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary and that God is listening while you tell it. Henry VanDyke

AN ACTRESS HELPS

Clad in a cheap dress and using an assumed name, Actress Luise Rainer was found working in the New York office of a committee for the welfare of foreign refugee children. She had given up her vacation to help the committee because of her own unhappy childhood in war-torn Europ.e

PRAY BE SEATED

Anton Rubenstein, the Russian pianist, who, at the height of his fame, invariably played to packed houses, was once accosted by an eager young woman, who exclaimed, "Oh, Mr. Rubenstein, I have been trying all day to get a seat for your concert, but they are all sold. Haven't you a seat you could let me have?"

"There is only one seat at my disposal, madam," the pianist replied, but you are welcome to that if you will take it."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Rubenstein," the woman exclaimed happily. "Thank you a thousand times! Where is it?"

"At the piano."

A H. Kramer, a farmer, is proud of his farming ability but prouder still of his talent with musical instruments.

"I am," he says, "the first man on record who planted a tree, watched it grow, saw it begin to die, cut it down and from the wood built a violin, which I'll enter in any contest of quality and tone."

The tree was planted years ago. Mr. Kramer's children, now grown, played in the shade of it.

He had no expert knowledge of violins, although he played that instrument and others.

Back of the loaf is the snowy flour,
And back of the flour the mill,
And back of the mill is the wheat and the shower,
And the sun and the Father's will.
—M. D. Babcock.

JUST SO

The dear old lady expressed the spirit of the day, whether intentionally or unintentionally, when she said that she could get along very well without the necessities of life, but she just couldn't be reconciled to get along without the luxuries.—Rays of Sunshine.

Perth Amboy, N. J.,—The steeple of St. Peter's Church, oldest Episcopal parish in New Jersey, has served as a beacon to guide many ships to harbor.

Chartered in 1718 by King George I, the church stands on a high bluff, and its cross-crowned spire is visible far out at sea. In the early days Perth Amboy was a busy port, planned to be "the London of America."

In the churchyard of St. Peter's are the graves of many people of prominence, among them those of John Watson, known as the first American portrait painter, and William Dunlap, a playwright often called "the father of the American theatre." At one end of the yard is the grave of Thomas Peterson, the first Negro to vote under the 15th Amendment. At one time gold seekers dug for Captain Kidd's buried treasure in the churchyard, but were frightened away, and no treasure was unearthed. St. Peter's has one of the last paid bell-ringers. His position is honorary, but he still receives his half crown a year in accordance with the 1718 charter.
