ON THE SCREEN AT THE NEW LYCEUM

Jon Hall and Lynn Bari indulge in some gun-play while trekking westward on a wagon train during the exciting action of Edward Small's "Kit Carson," the thrilling adventure romance slated for the New Lyceum Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26, 27 and 28th

Comedy, heart interest and the drama of science mingle to provide entertainment with thrills in "Dr. Kildare Goes Home,' latests of the medical-mystery series with Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Laraine Day, coming on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 23, 24, and 25 to the New Lyceum Theatre.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has produced the latest in the series on an important scale, and the young doctor and his veteran preceptor invade the important field of preventive medicine to disclose many important truths, grapple with a new mystery malady and, between thrills, create laughs.

A town near the home of young Dr. Kildare (Lew Ayres) goes "broke." When the doctors leave, stagnant ponds and wells spread disease. Young Dr. Kildare, aided by the veteran Dr. Gillespie (Barrymore), enlists a group of young medicos headed by Dr. Davidson (John Shelton) to start a clinic and make a doomed town "live and like it."

The city fathers rebel at closing wells and ponds. They prepare to throw the clinic out of town, when Citizen No. 1 is stricken by a malady, the clinic cures him, the day is saved. And the plan of Ayres and Laraine Day to elope collapses hilarously when it's discovered that the whole town knows their secret.

Ayres plays his role more seriously as befits the seriousness of the situation, Barrymore barks at internes and gleans laughs, Miss Day is beautiful and wears becoming fashions for the first time in a Kildare picture, John Shelton, new-comer who scored in "We Who Are Young" with Lana Turner, turns in a serious and convincing performance.

Alma Kruger and Barrymore indulge comedy scenes, as do Nat Pendleton and Marie Blake, and Samuel S. Hinds and Emma Dunn have some charming moments as the parents of the young doctor. The "family dinner" with Barrymore and Pendleton as guests is whimsically human. Walter Kingsford, Nell Craig, Frank Orth, Horace McMahon and George Reed fill their usual Kildare parts satisfactorily.

The direction of Harold S. Bucquet, who directed the preceding Kildare pictures, is deft and incisive, and unusual photographic effects such as the spectroscope scene and garret emergency operation are provided by Harold Rosson. The musical score, which does much to enhance the dramatic highlights, is by David Snell.

A stirring chapter out of the making of the West will unfold when Edward Small's "Kit Carson' comes on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26, 27, and 28 to the New Lyceum Theatre. This new production, an epic of frontier life and bravery, concerns the adventures of Kit Carson, the famous Indian-fighter, in the days when America was young. The film features Jon Hall in the title rloe, with Lynn Bari, Dana Andrews, Ward Bond, Harold Huber, Clayton Moore and Rowena Cook.

The story opens on a note of excitement when Jon Hall, as Kit Carson, together with Harold Huber and Ward Bond as his companions Ape and Lopez, are attacked by a band of marauding Indians. The friends manage to escape, and return to Fort Bridger, where they are met by General Andrews. Fremont tells Carson that he is the only man who could possibly guide his party through the dangerous Indian country to the promised land of California.

Carson refuses, because of the danger to the women and children in the party, but his mind is changed when he meets Dolores Murphy, one of the group, played by the beautiful and talented Lynn Bari. Fremont and Kit Carson do not get along well, since the former is also fond of Dolores, but the two men try to bury their differences in the face of the common danger. In addition to Indians, the expedition is plagued by the villainous attacks of Castro, crafty Military Governor in Monterey, California.

Too much praise cannot be given to the cast of "Kit Carson" for the striking and convincing characterization they enact. To Jon Hall and Lynn Bari go additional honors for carrying off with complete success their difficult and exacting roles.
