Two Opinions.

It is said that Senator Stewart, of Nevada, is willing to have the Sherman Silver Purchase law repealed and trust to future legislation favorable to silver. Senator Stewart says the Sherman law is not the cause of the depressed financial and industrial condition of the country, which will not be relieved by the repeal of that law. He finds the cause in the general apprehension of tariff legislation hostile to American industries. This he believes will be demonstrated after the repeal of the Sherman law and then the silver men will be in a position to make successful appeals in behalf of their favorite metal. On the other hand Senator Vance, of North Carolina, declares that "the professed friend of silver money who will favor the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, trusting to the justice of capital or the chapter of accidents to get favorable legislation thereafter, is either a traitor or a fool." Senator Vance asserts that "when the Chicago convention denounced the Sherman law as a cowardly makeshift it was because the law stood in the way of silver coinage."

Both these Senators are right in a measure. The Sherman law may have something to do with the prevalent lack of confidence in financial, commercial and manufacturing circles, but it represents a small part of the cause of the growing distress in production and trade. The chief source of trouble is the hostile attitude towards protection assumed by the Democratic party in its Chicago platform. It is that, in large part, that prompts traders to countermand orders for manufactures, closes the doors of factories and throws thousands of operatives out of employment, paralyzing industries, arresting the circulation of money and destroying confidence. But Mr. Stewart is probably wrong in anticipating legislation favorable to silver coinage, except, perhaps, to a limited extent and at the discretion of the Treasury Department. The policy of the world is against free silver coinage and it would be worse than folly for the United States to attempt alone to maintain, successfully, the bimetallic standard. The unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, therefore, will hardly be followed by legislation favorable to unlimited coinage, although such repeal will expose the fallacy that that law is the primary cause of the prevalent prostration of business. Mr. Vance is therefore correct in his assumption on that point.

But he is not correct in the implication that the maintenance of the Sherman law, or any other law to give a fictitious value to silver, is necessary to the prosperity or welfare of the country. The United States cannot, single-handed, maintain a fixed or stable price for the white metal in the face of a constant and increasing overproduction; but it is essentially necessary that the value of every species of money bearing the stamp of the government shall be maintained at its face. This country, it is true, could do that for many years, even under the Sherman Purchase act, but the time would come when it could no longer do so. That time would come much more quickly with a free silver coinage act in force, than if the Sherman law were permitted to stand.

What the country now needs to restore full confidence is: First, and primarily, to be assured that there will be no tariff tinkering, and, secondly, that the Sherman Purchase law be repealed and the Secretary be authorized to coin whatever amount of silver may be necessary for the needs of trade. With the existing supply it will be years before further coinage can be necessary.

Cousin Benjamin Speaks.

Mr. Benjamin Folsom, United States Consul at Sheffield, England, and cousin of President Cleveland, by the latter's marriage, made a speech at Sheffield on the 4th of July, in which he distinctly declared that the Democratic party is the party of free trade. He quoted the tariff planks of the Chicago platform in support of the assertion, and said, among other things:

> England's greatest customer has been the United States, and in spite of Tariffs that have been raised against foreign countries there is, and must continue to be, a great and gigantic trade flowing from England to America. (Hear, Hear.) You have passed the worst period; you have crossed the highest barrier that can be raised between the United States and England in the way of trade obstruction. (Applause.) I will tell you why this is. For the first time since 1860 the Democratic party, which has been the party of Free-Trade, is for the first time in power, not only in the Executive, but in both its legislative branches.
> Before another twelve months has rolled by Sheffield will not be subjected to the onerous and oppressive Tariff duties that have restricted her trade.

This is putting it plainly. The Democratic Congress is to legislate on the subject of the tariff for the benefit of Sheffield and other English manufacturing towns, and against the interests of American manufactures and workmen.

It seems a foregone conclusion that Hon. Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia, will be re-elected speaker of the House of Representatives. He is probably not exactly the man President Cleveland prefers for the place, but he has evidently consented to form the committees to suit the views of the administration. Mr. Springer, it is said, will give place, as chairman of the ways and means, to Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, a free trader or tariff for revenue man. Mr. Bland will be permitted to retain the chairmanship of the coinage committee, but all the other members will be antagonistic to his views.

Pension Commissioner Lochren rises to an explanation that does not explain. He had better let his chief, Secretary Hoke Smith, bear the odium that properly attaches to the effort to deprive veteran soldiers of their meagre pensions. It was he who ordered it.

A Fallacious Argument.

Mr. E. C. Benedict, who is, we believe, the husband of President Cleveland's mother-in-law, is strongly tinctured with the free silver coinage heresy. According to the New York Press he uses the following argument: "Holding a silver dollar between the thumb and finger of one hand and a paper dollar similarly in the other hand, he says: 'What is behind this paper dollar, or, for that matter, a government bond? Nothing but the faith and credit of the United States Government and the belief that it will redeem it in its best money, whatever that is. But the paper itself upon which this promise is printed is worthless intrinsically. Now, behind a silver dollar there is also, or ought to be, the same faith in the credit and ability of the government to redeem it. But in addition to that the silver dollar is worth something intrinsically. But we find the people afraid of this silver money, which bears the stamp of the government, and which has intrinsic value besides, while perfectly willing to accept paper money, which in itself is worth nothing.'"

Mr. Benedict must have forgotten the time when the paper money of the government was at a ruinous discount and a gold dollar was worth nearly three paper ones. The cause of this was the immense volume of paper in circulation. The basis was too intangible to be trusted. Then came measures for the resumption of specie payments. The volume of paper was contracted and the people became convinced that the government would make that in circulation as good as gold. Free silver coinage means inflation of the currency with debased coin and consequent uncertainty concerning the ability or willingness to redeem it or its equivalent certificate in gold. Unfortunately, Secretary Carlisle's proposal to stop paying out gold, and his intention to resort to silver payments, destroyed confidence and impaired the faith of the people in the purpose to make every dollar issued by the government as good as every other dollar. This made people suspicious of silver for a time; but under Mr. Cleveland's prompt repudiation of his Secretary's plan confidence has been restored, in a great measure, in the integrity of the silver and silver certificates now in circulation. But if the volume of these should be inflated without limit, through free silver coinage, depreciation would certainly ensue. A time would come, under such a system, when it would be impossible to maintain the parity of gold and silver and the purchasing power of the latter coin would be less than that of gold. Unlimited inflation, by means of free-silver coinage, could have no other result.

Disclaiming Responsibility.

J. P. Reed, aged 83, an old soldier who served in Col. R. G. Ingersoll's Cavalry, has become a maniac because of the suspension of his pension of $12 per month, which was his only means of support. Naturally the incident has caused unfavorable criticism of the Pension Office and of Secretary Hoke Smith, who issued the order under which this grave injustice was done to a man who was no longer young when he fought for his country and is now tottering with old age, and as naturally Mr. Smith does not like the criticism. So he disclaims responsibility. On this point the Washington correspondence of Wednesday's Baltimore American says:

> Secretary Smith admits that he "made a personal ruling" in the now famous Bennett case, and it is under this ruling that all the suspensions of pensioners which have occurred under the act of June 27, 1890, have been made, and but for the Bennett ruling there would have been no authority for the dropping of this old four-score-year-old veteran. Hence, it is not easy to see how the responsibility for any single case, of all the thousands who have been suspended, can be escaped by the man who admits having prepared the decision and given the order on which all of these cases are based.
> The truth is that Secretary Hoke Smith declared from the first that he would enormously reduce the list of pensioners, and, indeed, it was the theory of the Democrats that the younger generation of voters, who remember nothing of the war, would approve the policy of cutting off pensions, on the score of retrenchments in public expenditures, and also as a reason why tariff reductions might be accomplished without embarrassment to the financial operations of the government. It is upon these lines of policy that the war upon the Union soldiers has been conducted, and the response of public opinion is coming back in such emphatic protest that the Secretary finds it necessary to attempt to shirk responsibility.
> Assistant Secretary Reynolds' letter to Judge Slagle, of Pennsylvania, says, in rather a defiant tone, that "we are pledged to make the pension roll a roll of honor, and we will continue the work fearlessly until the people who demand this reform shall call a halt." A prominent Grand Army man, commenting upon this sentence, remarked that the "roll of honor" had been made and completed twenty-seven years ago, and now stands recorded in the War Department records of the government, and that every old soldier bore a certificate of membership upon that roll of honor in the wounds upon his body or in his certificate of honorable discharge, and that it was rather late for this administration to assume to create a new roll of honor.

"My Commissioner" Blount is about to sail from Honolulu for the United States. His report has been sent by mail, but its contents are kept secret. In the meantime nothing is being done to secure for the United States the rich prize offered by the Provisional Government of Hawaii. The sugar king, Claus Spreckels, is conspiring to prevent annexation and a prejudiced Commissioner may make his plans successful. The Senate should promptly call for information concerning the status of Hawaiian affairs and take prompt steps to bring the Islands under the flag which was hauled down by Mr. Blount.

Congress will meet on Monday, but it is probable a long and bitter struggle over the silver question will ensue before it will be settled. It is said there is a growing tendency to free coinage, on the basis of 24 or 25 to one. That will mean a silver dollar with 643¾ grains, 900 fine—certainly rather a ponderous coin. The several hundred millions of silver dollers now in existence will, in that event, have to be recoined at a loss of sixty or seventy millions to the government.

Hon. Robert P. Porter has resumed the chief editorship of the New York Press, from which he retired to become superintendent of the census. He predicts Republican success in 1896.

Views of a Tammany Democrat.

Mr. John D. Crimmins, a prominent Tammany politician, who was an ardent advocate of the Democratic platform of 1892, and a warm supporter of Mr. Cleveland, appears to have undergone a change of opinion since then. He is quoted in the New York Press as using the following language:

"The greatest danger in the present stagnation of business lies in the hard times ahead for the working people. They have not fully felt it yet, but this winter promises to be one of the hardest they have ever known. And instead of economizing and saving all that it is possible for them to save now, I find them, as a rule, living at about the same rate of expenditure as when times were better.

"I do not believe that the extra session of Congress will be able to relieve entirely the unhappy situation. There will be, I fear, a deadlock and a long fight in the House over silver legislation. But I do not anticipate as great danger from this source as I do from the attempt to tinker with the tariff laws. Should the present Congress repeal the present tariff laws they would throw the country into a turmoil which, to my mind, would prove very disastrous. If the tariff laws are allowed to stand I think the working people in large numbers will be able to pull through; but if they are tinkered with I look for a winter of great poverty, suffering and distress among that portion of our people. A great many of them will be thrown out of their employment as things now are. Should Congress attempt new tariff legislation still more of them will suffer."

Mr. Crimmins is the most extensive contractor in New York.

Every day comes reports of the closing of mills and factories, either wholly or partially, or the reduction of the wages of the employees. This is practically what a plurality of the people voted for when they elected Mr. Cleveland President and returned a majority of Democrats to Congress. They could'nt be convinced that the policy of the Democratic party, as laid down by the Chicago platform, would work this result, and the politicians even now strive to convince them that the cause of the present unfortunate condition is to be found in bad Republican legislation. But the business men and laboring men of the country are not inclined to be duped by such theories. A young married Democrat, of one of the upper districts of the county, said to the editor of the SENTINEL, one day this week: "I am about to change my politics. I make my living by my labor. I have heard the Republicans say the policy of the Republican party was favorable to the workingmen, but I paid little attention to it, supposing it to be mere talk. I begin to think otherwise now, and I want to see the Democratic party defeated." Thoughtful laboring men, and business men all over the country are reaching the same conclusions. In the meantime the whole country suffers the consequences of a Democrat victory won on false pretenses.

Secretary Carlisle has practically suspended the Silver Purchase act. The law is mandatory and requires the Secretary to purchase 4,500,000 ounces of silver, "or so much thereof as may be offered, in each month, at the market price thereof." During the month of July the purchases only amounted to 2,384,000 ounces, or 2,116,000 ounces less than the maximum. The Secretary's failure to purchase was not caused by a shortage of offers. Much more than the maximum amount was offered, but Mr. Carlisle objected to the price and made counter proposals. Whether he defied the law in this course is a question. The owners of silver assert that they only demanded the market price as quoted in New York. The rate was a trifle less in London, and presumably Mr. Carlisle claimed the right to consider that the market price. Ex-Judge Noah Davis, of New York, says he can be mandamused and compelled to show cause why he has not purchased the full amount of silver required by law. As the repeal of the Sherman law, however, seems to be reasonably certain, the proceeding would have very little interest for anybody.

It is said that Governor Brown declines to take any action on the petition for the pardon of Ex-Treasurer Stevenson Archer, but has signified his intention to release the unfortunate man shortly before the expiration of his term of imprisonment, which will occur in September, 1894. This will be done to preserve to Archer the rights of citizenship.

A Catholic Church was burned in Long Island City, N. Y., last week, and the trustees of a Baptist Church tendered the priest the use of their church edifice for his congregation. The offer was accepted and three sects, the Baptists, Methodists and Catholics worshipped at different hours, in the same church, on Sunday last.

1st. A tract of

35 ACRES,

The outbuildings consist of a smoke house, hen house, and stable. This property will be first offered as a whole and if not sold it will then be offered in lots. A plat of the same will be exhibited on the day of sale, no lot to contain more than 18 acres. This property is on one of the highest hills of Baltimore county, and is therefore a very desirable place for summer residences. Excellent water and fruit on the premises.

All the above property is in fee simple, except the first mentioned tract, containing 35 acres, which is subject to an annual ground rent of three cents.

The proximity of all the above described property to Owings' Mills, Timber Grove and Gwynnbrook Station on the W. M. R. R., and also to the thriving village of Reisterstown, makes it well worth the notice of any one desiring a country home.

Terms of Sale.—One-third of the purchase money cash on day of sale, or upon the ratification of the same by the court; balance in two equal payments of six and twelve months, the deferred payments to be secured by the notes of the purchaser, with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale; or all cash at the option of the purchaser.

FERTILIZER

FOR THE Fall Seeding!

We can appear before our friends, the farmers, and ask them to give us a hearing in regard to

OUR FERTILIZER

FOR THE SEED OF

WHEAT AND RYE.

The goods we manufacture and sell are the same we have handled for years, and the great success they have met with is stronger proof than any words we can say.

Our Goods seem especially adapted to the soil of this county, and we therefore urge with great confidence all farmers to use them.

Our Pure Dissolved Raw Bone Phosphate

has few equals for its availibility for bringing grass. Some of the best farmers of the county have used it for years and could not be induced to change, and the reports we have from various sections as to the yield of wheat and rye are simply wonderful. The above goods is

OUR LEADER.

We also have

OUR NO. 3 BONE,

much cheaper, but an excellent Fertilizer for Grain or Grass.

Farmers buying their fertilizer from us, this fall, will have special prices given them in the exchange on their Hay and Rye Straw. See us before buying. It will be to your advantage.
