PHOEBE T. PYLE

My Commission expires May 5, 1941.

Now that the election is over, it is best for the nation that all that was said and done during the campaign be forgotten. Much was said about Democracy by both sides and if we consider the will of the majority to be the true test of Democracy then we must carry on even stronger toward the goal of a united nation so that we may continue to be a world power so strong that our ideas and policies will continue to be assured. Many campaign speeches could have well been left unmade as it should be possible for men to run for the high office of President of the United States without being the target of unscrupulous orators who do not hesitate, in the heat of a campaign, to blast these honored men with language that they would not dare to utter if placed face to face with the individual whom htey choose to dishonor. However as we have said before, the election is over and this country is faced with the problem of national defense and security in a world that is torn with destruction It will need the cooperation of business and labor together with all of the resources of the nation, and only with this cooperation can we succeed. We must determine to support our nation and not look upon it to support us. It will require self sacrifice and hard work and if this principle is thoroughly carried out we have nothing to fear. To the young men who are now and who will shortly be under military training we owe a great deal which we can partly repay by carrying on at home.

This week the questionnaires were started to registrants of the draft and each day twenty blanks are sent in the order to correspond to the order numbers. The questionaires must be filled in and returned to the Draft Board within five days from the time that they are sent out and whether or not a person will be deferred will depend largely upon the evidence submitted in the questionnaire. All registrants are urged to answer the questions truthfully and accurately so as to avoid future trouble. Inability to properly fill in the blank will be no excuse as a committee headed by Mr. Stephen R. Collins, Chairman; Harrison W. Vickers and Thomas F. Healey has been appointed by Governor O'Conor to assist registrants with the questionnaire. This committee is faced with a great deal of work and as they serve without pay every bit of cooperation should be given by the registrant. Do not put off until the last minute to fill in the blank. Study the questionnaire before asking the assistance of this Advisory Board so that you have necessary information available. Do not assume that you will be deferred due to something you have heard or read. Remember that your questionnaire must be properly filled in and returned to the Draft Board within the five day period whether you think you will be deferred or not. The burden is on the registrant and the law provides severe penalty for those who do not comply. It is nothing to be dreaded if one cooperates and those who do not will be made to.

Preparations are going forward for the Country Fair which will be held at the Armory on November 14, 15 and 16. It was the country fair, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Hospital, that started the drive for funds for the enlargement of the hospital. Each year the fair added a little to the fund until it finally reached a nucleus about which the recent drive was conducted. Its results were surprising to all except the small group of women who had a vision that did not fade in spite of discouragement. The fair, again this year, is to help swell the hospital enlargement campaign fund. Those who attend will find plenty of amusement at a very small cost. The nickles and dimes add into dollars which will go toward securing a more adequate hospital to better serve Kent and Queen Annes Counties.

Among the outstanding community services rendered this week was by the Chestertown and Rock Hall fire companies. Starting out at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to battle a forest and field fire near Tolchester, they continued the fight until 6 A. M. Thursday morning. The accomplishment was the saving of large numbers of small homes including an entire coolred community in addition to further damage to the forest. This is only a part of work that members of volunteer fire companies perform and all may be included in service to the community. When these fire companies ask for equipment it is only to more efficiently serve, as there is no pay to the men who do the work.

Colorful Stuffed Peppers As Vegetables Course

A dull table ca nbe cheered by the mere presence of a green pepper in slices or whole, but when there is an abundance of them, the table is filled with not only color but something very delicious. We are used to eating stuffed peppers as a main dish but here they are as a vegetable:

CORN STUFFED PEPPERS

2 green sweet peppers
11-3 cups whole kernel corn, canned or fresh
3 tablespoons tomato catsup
4 teaspoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon onion salt
Butter
Cracker crumbs
Grated cheese

Cut off tops and remove seeds of peppers. Put peppers and top slices in cold water and bring to boil, boiling five minutes. Cut cooked tops of peppers into small pieces and add to corn. Add catsup, sugar and onion satl, and pack into the parboiled pepper cases. Put lump of butter on top of each and cover with the cracker crumbs and grated cheese Bake in a hot oven 425 F. until brown on top. Serves 4.

HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE

Vegetables to be baked are placed in a hot oven. They should be cooked to just the right point of tenderness as over-baked vegetables have their texture impaired.

If bits of mold should begin to appear on jelly, carfeuly remove them and then bring the jelly to the boiling point, then cool and set aside again.

Some people avoid great waste by weighing butter, shortening, lard, etc. Here is a table of comparative weights and measures:

| | |
|---|---|
| 2 cups granuated sugar | 1 pound |
| 2½ cups powdered sugar | 1 pound |
| 10 eggs, broken are considered | 1 pound |
| 2 cups water, milk or vinegar | 1 pound |
| 1 cup white bread flour | 4 ounces |
| 1 cup fine corn meal | 4 ounces |
| 1 cup coarse corn meal | 5 ounces |
| 1 cup rolled oats | 3 ounces |
| 1 cup whites of eggs | 8 ounces |
| 1 cup yolks of eggs | 12 ounces |

Entrees made of eggs are suitable for luncheon, but are seldom served when a soup is entered on the menu. Serve egg entries when eggs are plentiful and cheap.

If, having on hand a surplus of vegetables, such as cauliflower, peas, string beans, artichokes, or sweet potatoes, that are liable to decay, pare and place in cold water until freshened and crisp; then drain and boil until tender, and again drain. You can then keep them a few days longer.

Daily care of the toilet is a very necessary thing. Flush the closet each time it is used. Put no heavy papers or cloths down the drain, and to clean, use a string dish mop with srtings cut short—kept for this purpose. A toilet brush and metal forceps holding a wad of cheap toilet paper. Use soap and hot water in cleaning. Special disinfecting is done once or twice a week. Use dissolved soap, chlroide of lime, or prepared chemical disinfectants. The mops and brushes may be scalded and aired, or kept in disinfectant. The metal forceps need only be scalded.

The jars, rubbers and covers used for canning must be perfect to insure a perfect product later on. The covers should be tested before using to see if they fit. When using rubbers previously utilized, adjust two rubbers on each jar.

Mushrooms are very rich in food value. When buying them, refuse ones which have the caps perforated by minute holes, as they are wormy.

When green peppers are to be baked, select medium-sized, dark green ones that will stand level while cooking. If the peppers are large, cut in half, otherwise cut a slice off the top and remove all tough parts, partitions and seeds, to obtain a clean cup. The bare cup is usually parboiled fifteen minutes, drained, and the skin removed. The green trimmings, thinly chopped, can be used as a part of the stuffing, or utilized, to make a salad, or added to cooking stock, stews, etc., to which they will add great flavor.

If too much bluing has been used on white clothing, boiling will remove it.

Did you know that extract of black tea is better than coffee for tinting curtains ecru?

When making a blanket wash, don't kill the suds with too much water—this is the usual tendency as one usually tries to get a good supply of water under the suds.

An onion flavor may be added to a salad by putting a few drops of onion juice in the dressing, and occasionally, for this is substituted a little very thinly chopped chive or the white tender part of a green onion.

There are ever so many people who buy a side or half a side or just a couple of pounds of unsliced bacon and do the honors at home—there are others who would like to do this very thing but think it too great a task—well, think nothing of it—just buy the bacon, keep it in a cold, dry place and to slice; put the strip of bacon on a board, skin down then using a very thin, strong-bladed knife, cut into very thin slices; one after another, as many as needed, running the knife down as far as the rind; then run the knife blade between the rind and the slices, following closely to the rind. Carefully cut the slices apart, whitout breaking them.
