Southern Wild Sheep.

In the great piney woods of the South Atlantic states a peculiar race of sheep roam at large, almost as wild and uncared for as the famous southern "razor-back" hog. For many centuries these sheep have existed in parts of Georgia and the Gulf states, and by adapting themselves to the climate, poor food and inclement weather, they have succeeded in surviving all of the vicissitudes of a wild and precarious life. They are commonly called in the south "the sheep of the piney woods;" they have no recorded pedigree, nor even a breed name. It is supposed, however, that they were originally brought to Florida by the Spanish adventurers when they first settled upon the present site of St. Augustine, and that at that time they belonged to the fine-wooled merino breed. Turned loose in the new country, they gradulally lost the charateristics of their breed, and degenerated to their present state. They possess even yet in some respects the characteristics of the merino sheep. They have the same general form, though less uniform, and wool that is nearly as fine as the pure-bred merino.

In the historic account of the early Spanish visitors to Florida, there are records of their bringing sheep and other domestic animals with them, and after that time no subsequent large importation of fine-wooled sheep to this region was ever heard of. Wild sheep were known to exist in the south in the days of Washington and Jefferson, who endeavored to improve their condition by introducing fine breeds from abroad. They recognized the great advantages which the south offered for the sheep husbandry, and everything was done by them to establish the business on a sound basis. With the exception of the low-lying regions along the coast, the whole country from the Potomac to the Gulf of Mexico offers advantages for sheep raising, and it was with the idea of rearing countless herds in this section that these early statesmen encouraged the industry by writings, speeches and practical demonstration.

But the south did not take kindly to sheep-raising. King Cotton assumed complete control, and crushed out all other phases of farming. Cotton and sheep were not supposed to go together. Sheep had to go with grass, and there was no room for grass in the great cotton-growing states. The few sheep in the south were consequently allowed to roam untamed and almost uncared for in the great stretches of pine woods. To-day they are found in nearly as primitive condition as they were 100 years ago.

The life of this neglected breed of sheep is interesting to one who thinks at all of the sheep industry. They roam through the pine woods in great numbers through the day, large flocks feeding together on the coarse and unnutritious wild grasses and other vegetation. The grass in the pine woods is very poor. The flocks move from place to place according to the nature of the feeding-groud, but at night they generally come to a certain bedding-place where they huddle together. Wild animals, hogs and dogs roam through the woods, and they frequently pounce down upon the helpless sheep and destroy many of them. Worthless dogs are the great nuisances of the south, and half-bred curs owned by negroes and crackers almost live off the young lambs and ewes. The half-wild razorback hogs are not much better. The bleating of young lambs from some ticket is the signal for an attack, and these strangely degeuerated representatives of our domestic hog rush upon the helpless creatures and destroy mother and lamb unless the ram happens to be within calling distance. The latter will always rush to the rescue, and whether the enemy be dog, panther, or wild hog, the ram will offer noble and determined opposition. It is estimated that more than two-thirds of all the born lambs are destroyed by these enemies every year. The sheep, wild as they are, are all owned and branded, but they are uncared for and hardly ever watched. It is not at all surprising that under such circumstances the solitary hunter, negro or cracker dwellers in that lonely woods frequently helps himself to roast mutton and lamb.

Goodness.

Real goodness is like the glow-worm which shines most when no eye but heaven is upon it. He who is benevolent and beneficent for goodness' sake does not desire nor aim for popularity nor notoriety, but feels eontent that his reward is in his own conscience and convictions. How enjoyable and self-approving it must be to see the smiles of happiness, the expressions of cheerfulness of his own making which shine upon him and bless him. But those rich men who study and strive to add to their store of riches, to become richer, and do not use the superfluity to help the needful and distressed, commit a wrong to God and humanity, and do not have "the soul's calm sunshine and the heartfelt joy," which characterizes a good man. "Though I give all my goods," said the Apostle, "to feed the poor and distressed and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." Alms alone, however liberal, however extended, neither are, nor can be the whole or the essence of Christian charity. The principles of kindness, of active benevolence, of discernment, of moderation, and of guarded virtue, as originated from Him who commanded his disciples to join the innocence of the dove with the wisdom of the serpent, are the real and needed qualities reouired.

There was a time when ths orchard was considered merely as an adjunct to the general farm, and its product as a matter for house use and enjoyment rather than as a source of revenue. Latterly this is changing, and farmers are finding that if a small orchard pays in this way, it will pay to grow a larger one for commercal use. So without at all changing the general purpose of the farm, we find larger orchards now being set out, and the profit of the farm is raised there-by.

ASK for Applewood Whiskey, at STRASBURGER S.

The Century Magazine IN 1893.

It would be hard for a person who cares for good reading to make a better investment than a year's subscription to The Century Magazine. No region is too remote, no expense too great, if it will only produce what the Century's readers want. This is the policy that has made it, as the Pall Mall Budget, of London, says, "By far the best of the magazines, English or American."

The November number begins a new volume and contains the first chapters of a powerful novel of New York society, called "Sweet Bells Out of Tune," written by Mrs. Burton Harrison, the author of "The Anglomaniacs." In this story the fashionable wedding, the occupants of the boxes in the Metropolitan Opera House, the "smart set" in the country house are faithfully reflected, and the illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson, Life's well-known cartoonist, are as brillant as the novel.

In this November number begins also a great series of papers on "The Bible and Science," opening with "Does the Bible contain Scientific Errors?" by Prof. Shield, of Princeton, who takes decided ground that the Bible does not contain scientific errors of any moment, and who most interestingly states the case from his point of view. Other articles in this series will include one in the December (Christmas) number, "The Effect of Scientific Study upon Religious Beliefs."

An important series of letters that passed between General Sherman and his brother, Senator John Sherman, is also printed in November, which number contains also contributions from the most distinguished writers, including an article by James Russell Lowell, which was not quite completed at the time of his death. The suggestion which Bishop Potter makes in the November Century as to what could be done with the World's Fair if it were opened on Sunday, is one which seems the most practical solution of the problem yet offered.

The December Century is to be a great Christmas number,—full of Christmas stories, Christmas poems, and Christmas pictures,—and in it will begin the first chapters of a striking novel of life in Colorado, "Benefits Forgot," by Wolcott Balestier, who wrote "The Naulahka" with Rudyard Kipling.

Papers on good roads, the new educational methods, and city government are soon to come.

Four dollars will bring you this splendid magazine for one year, and certainly no cultivated home can afford to be without it. Subscribers can remit directly to the publishers, The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York. They should begin with November, and so get first chapters of all the serials, including "Sweet Bells Out of Tune."

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Weekly is acknowledged as standing first among illustrated weekly periodicals in America. It occupies a place between that of the hurried daily paper and that of the less timely monthly magazine. It includes both literature and news, and presents with equal force and felicity the real events of current history and the imaginative themes of fiction. On account of its very complete series of illustrations of the World's Fair, it will be not only the best guide to the great Exposition, but also its best souvenir. Every public event of general interest will be fully illustrated in its pages. Its contributions being from the best writers and artists in this country, it will continue to excel in literature, news and illustrations, all other publications of its class.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Greatest of Republican Newspapers.

National in its aims and devoted to the welfare of the Masses of the American People.

The New York Tribune concedes the election of Grover Cleveland, but promises to defend the Republican policy on Finance and Protection, with all the ability it can command.

It was the discontent of the farmers which caused the Democratic victories of two years' ago. The Weekly Tribune, addressing itself directly to them for the past two years, has carried on a campaign of discussion for their benefit, almost unparallelled in American journalism; and the result coupled with Whitelaw Reid's previous great service to farmers, has been seen in the fact that agricultural communities have stood faithful to the Republican party, in a campaign in which, in other localities the party went completely to pieces. This year, the Democratic leaders changed their tactics and excited discontent among workingmen. They pointed to the higher prices of farm products, and assured the workingmen of Northern cities that the British tariff system, (that is to say, lessened protection to American Farming and Industry) would lower the prices of food and manufactured products, and the profits of "monopolists" in this country, while at the same time maintaining the wages of labor, tho wages being now the highest ever known in the United States. By false pretence, deception, and a pandering to the lowest passions of uninformed men in large cities, they have carried the country and elected a Democratic President and Congress.

The Tribune confidently awaits the result. Not for one moment, however, will The Tribune yield one inch of ground in the battle for American policies.

Roswell G. Horr's great articles will be among the features of The Tribune, the coming year. Men of every political faith are invited to read them. They will state the Republican view with frankness, point out the probable consequences of a change in the tariff policy of the country, and evade no issue, and conceal no fact, bearing upon the subjects discussed. Their thorough treatment of fundamental principles will aid every reader to a better understanding of profound and important issues.

A page a week will be devoted during 1893, to war stories and news of interest to Union veterans. Old soldiers, who have some experience to tell, which has not yet been printed, are asked to send the story to The Tribune for publication.

Farming has now become such an enormous interest in the United States, that there is an imperative necessity for making more of a specialty of the business interests of the Farmers of the country at large. Plans have been formed which ought to make The Semi-Weekly and The Weekly Tribune absolutely indispensable to every tiller of the soil during 1893.

A large number of entertaining features of general interest will also appear. "How to succeed in Life," "Village Improvement," special articles by brilliant men and women of high reputation, Chess and Checkers, and a hundred other things which cannot be recited in a brief prospectus, will appear on the Tribune's pages during 1893. The paper will have less politics and more of the thousand and one things which refresh the mind, entertain the imagination, and guide the reader in the prosecution of his business and social life.

The Tribune asks for reports as to the operations of Village Improvement Societies, from those who are acquainted with their operations.

An illustrated catalogue of excellent premiums will be sent free on application.

The Semi-Weekly is particularly commended to the attention of general readers. It gives more of the keen, incisive editorials, book reviews, foreign letters and other valuable features of The Tribune, than there is room for in the Weekly. The large type and broad columns of the Tribune make it the easiest paper to read.

To all who subscribe during 1892 for one year, the paper will be sent free for the balance of this year. Sample copies free. Weekly, $1.00; Semi-Weekly, $2.00.

Friends of Agriculture, Industry and the Republican party, are invited to make up clubs for this paper in their localities. There are four years' of trial, of new experiment, of discussion of great national topics, and of observation of the effects of Democratic supremacy before the country. The Tribune will lead in the presentation of the Republican view. The friends of the splendid record of the Republican party, can aid in the final triumph of Republican principles by seeing that the people read the Republican side of the story.
